Madison-Grant High School is located at 11700 S, E 00 W, in Fairmount, Indiana 46928. The enrollment of the high school is 495 students as of October 8, 2003.

During a varsity basketball game, sophomore drummer Aaron Vogel plays his drums while he sits on the new platform. Thanks to Mr. Shock, who built and donated the platform to the band, the drummer no longer has to sit on the gym floor. Mr. Shock is teacher Mrs. Shock's husband.

Junior Adam Riggs works feverishly in Mrs. Dosh's seventh hour English class. Adam is the son of school nurse, Betsy Riggs.

Junior Samantha Greentree, dresses as a Native American to celebrate homecoming week. Samantha's mother is the secretary at the jr. high.

In Mrs. Parker's seventh hour pre-algebra class, the students are all about helping. Mrs. Parker hands back papers from previous assignments the students have done.

Freshman Derek Stitt sometimes hangs out with his mom in her office at the jr. high before school starts. Mrs. Stitt is the technology coordinator for the school corporation.

Parents and Students “Hang Out” Together at School

Working with your parents-- what is the likelihood of that?

Most students would say that they wouldn't like having their parent as a teacher, but for sophomore Becky Parker that is a whole different story. Becky stated, “I like having my mom here because whenever I need anything I can go to her room and get it.”

As for the parents, they feel the same. Mr. Holloway stated, “It is easier to keep track of them, and transportation is easier also.”

There are also some dislikes from both sides. “If there would be anything that I don't like, it would be that people thought my kids were being treated better because I teach here. But, I haven't noticed that happening yet,” replied Mrs. Parker.

For scheduling purposes, parents think that being here is more convenient. “Being here is more convenient. I probably spend more time in my classroom because they are in practice and need a ride home. I basically consider MGHS my home,” commented Mr. Holloway.

Subjects taught by parents may have an influence on children also. Andy Sharkey, son of music teacher Mrs. Sharkey, plays many instruments including piano and guitar, and he sings.

Parents at school! For some this would be a nightmare. For most students, they would hate to have their parents around all of the time, but these families seem to like their way of life and their shared time at school.

From Top to Bottom: Sophomore Becky Parker is the daughter of math teacher, Mrs. Parker. Sophomore Andy Sharkey is the son of Junior High music teacher, Mrs. Sharkey. Junior Caleb Landis is the son of Summitville Kindergarten teacher Mrs. Landis. Business teacher, Mr. Holloway has two daughters, Kayla and Allison Holloway, who are students at M-G.

Turning Heads

by
Laura Brooker

New Teachers Turn Heads

The high school has gone through many new changes in just a short period of time. Not only have there been new ID badges, lunch tables, and lockers, but there were also five new teachers added to the teaching staff. Along with the new teachers came new and interesting teaching methods that have caught the students' attention.

The new teachers have many new effective teaching methods. "With my students, hands-on or active lessons seem to be the most effective; they hold their attention," stated Mrs. Graham.

While Mrs. Parker commented, "I always try to use language that students understand and remember, always repeating phrases they need to know. I work examples of every type of problem that they'll see on an assignment or test, sometimes working the most difficult problems with them."

Because of being a new teacher, it is often difficult to get and hold the students' attention. "In the gym, I either stand in front of the students until they are quiet, or I will use a whistle to get their attention," replied Miss Justus.

Even if they do not enjoy the subject very much many of the students really enjoyed the new teachers. "I like Mrs. Hamilton, she's really comfortable, relaxed, and friendly. She really helps you when you have questions," said junior Brianna Eden.

After completing their first year, the new teachers can now learn from their mistakes and are proud to see how their students have grown and prospered due to their inciteful teaching methods.

From Top to Bottom: • English teacher Mrs. Graham, science teacher Mrs. Hamilton, Physical Education teacher Miss Justus, and math teacher Mrs. Parker

While in Mrs. Graham's 7th period class, freshman Jared Sousa attentively listens to the discussion over the reading assignment. "Mrs. Graham is the nicest teacher I've ever had," said Jared.

Concentrating on To Kill a Mockingbird senior Anthony Head attempts to finish his 2nd period reading assignment before the big quiz.

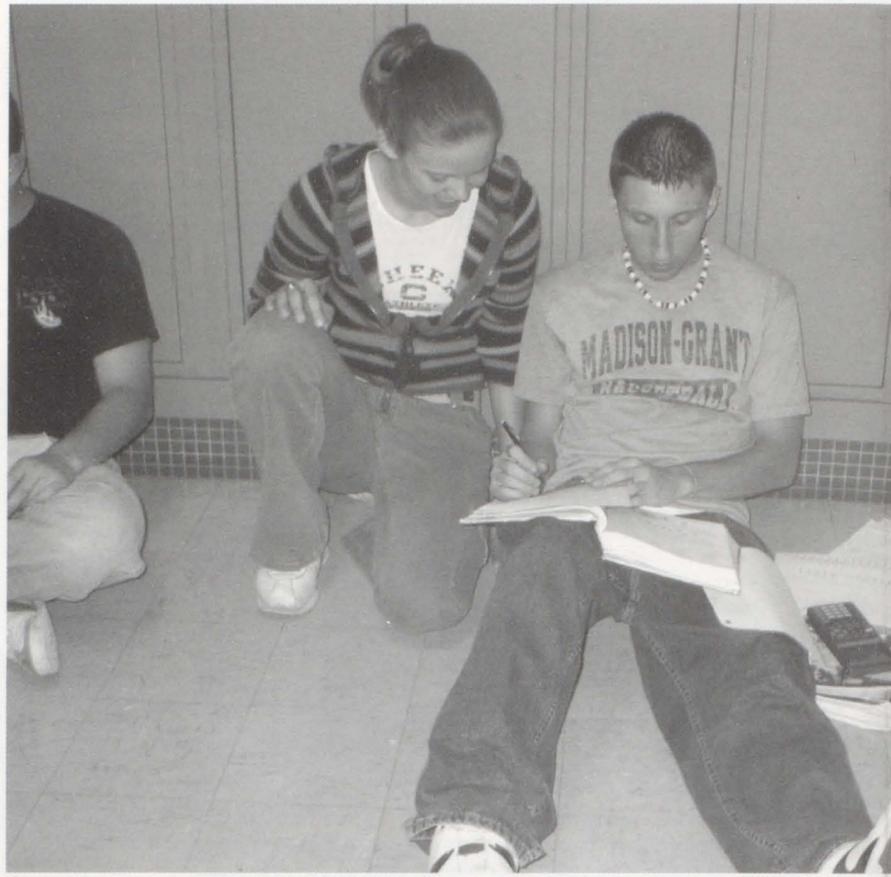

New math teacher Mrs. Debink presents the notes to the class in the form of power point. Mrs. Debink tried many different methods throughout the year to see which worked best.

While in Mrs. Hamilton's 7th period biology class, freshman Courtney Hahn presents the score board. The biology classes played "Jeopardy" to help prepare for the chapter test.

Junior Josh Carroll is hard at work, but not at the Sirloin Stockade in Marion. He is working on his homework for Mrs. Hawk's math class.

"I have money all the time. I can save and buy what I want," stated Senior Wayne Almeda who works at Cracker Barrel in Gas City.

Junior Meagan Foster is a waitress at Take A Break Cafe in Gas City.

Senior Jordan Schwab works at Movietime/Karma in Elwood.

Double Shift

by Brianna Eden

Students Earn and Learn

Pulling double duty is pretty regular for the average high school student. From sunup to sundown some students are away from home learning and earning money for various reasons.

"I felt [working] would teach me a lot of responsibility, and I wanted to earn my own money," commented Junior Ashley Mayes.

With school in session students could spend eight to ten hours a day dealing with academics and a job. Some could have the added stress of after school activities or sports, so managing time was a necessary skill.

"It's hard at times. For example, last fall I would work all day Saturday, play softball at Shenandoah until 3 p.m. Sunday and then work four to ten Sunday. It was hard to get my homework done, but it does get easier. These days are the bad days! It's hard to manage time, but you do learn the skill of time management," stated Junior Jenna Moore.

There are some pros and cons to having a job while in high school. Some are more prominent than others, such as that you don't have as much time to yourself as you used to. You also don't have the time to spend with friends. But, you have your own money.

"Benefits [of having a job] are having money to do things, like go out to eat, go bowling, go to skate parks, and having a vehicle. It also keeps me out of trouble. Not enough time to go to parties and be pressured into drinking or drugs, even though I wouldn't even if I didn't have a job," said Senior Wayne Almeda.

"Sometimes you can get scheduled when you just don't want to work and it's harder to have sick days," commented Junior Ashley Mayes.

Construction In the Classroom

by
Alisha Schwentner

Let There Be Light

Four point five million dollars were spent on the new lights and ceiling tile construction project around the school. It was a construction project that displaced students and teachers alike. Each class took its turn being moved for about a period of three days, leaving students walking around confused because they couldn't remember where their classes were for the day, and teachers carrying their classroom materials in a bag.

Some students believe that the lights helped them to stay awake. "It's real bright in all of my classes. The new lights make me stay awake in the morning," said freshman Rachel Oleysyck.

Although having the bright lights helped some students, like

Rachel Oleysyck, to stay awake, some students claim that the construction project should have waited until summer because it was making too much dust. "All the dust has messed up my allergies, since they started construction," said junior Jacquelynn Perry.

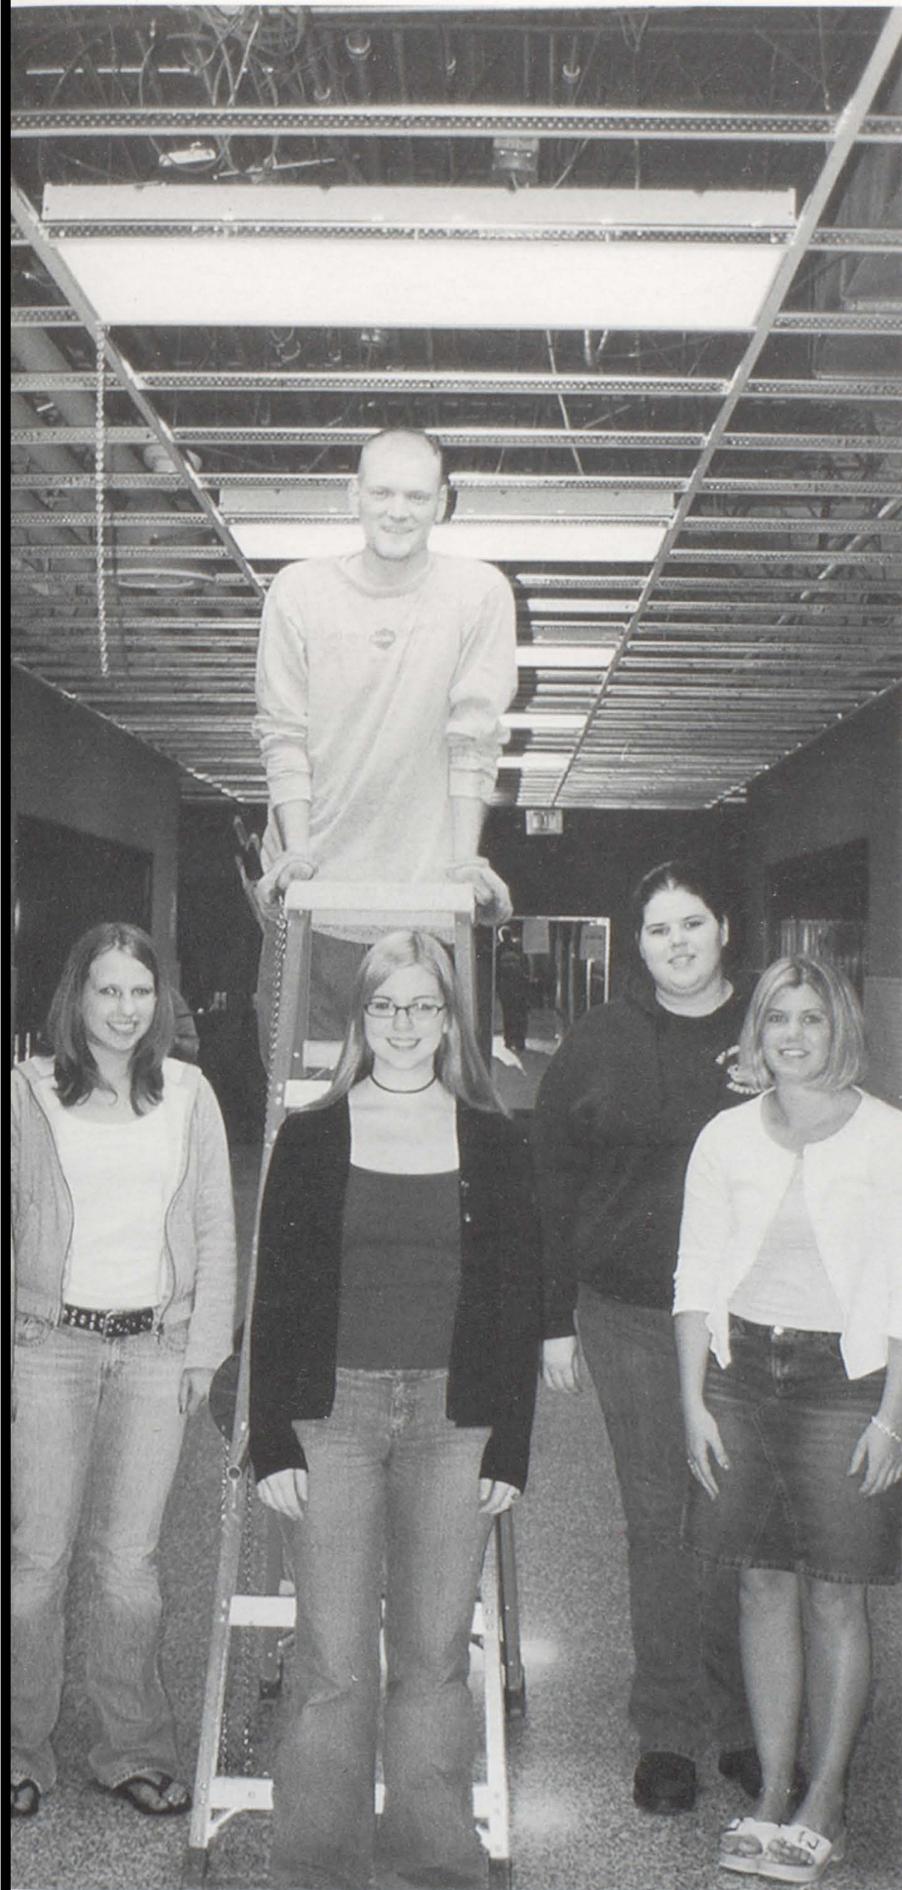

Most students were only late to class around an average of one time due to construction.

Most of the problems caused by the construction were small considering the benefits the new lighting had on the school. "The yellow lights were harder on the students' eyes," said Principal Larry Martin.

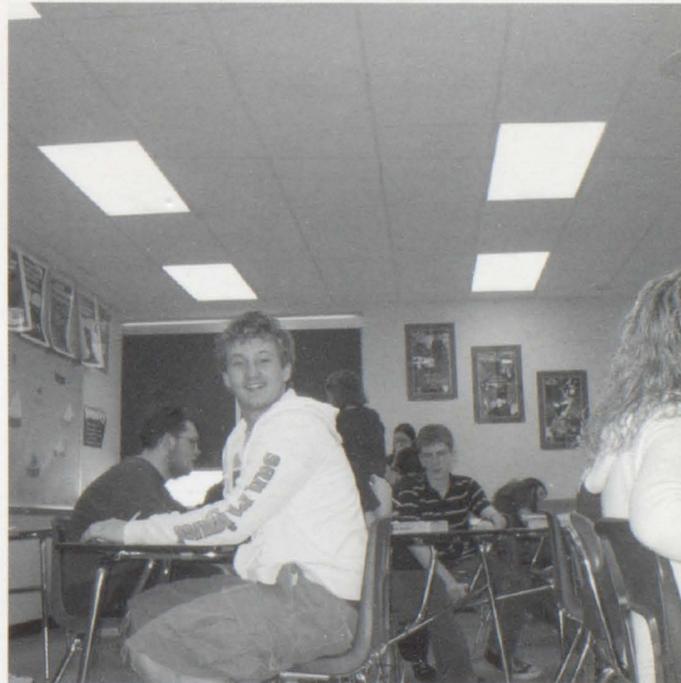

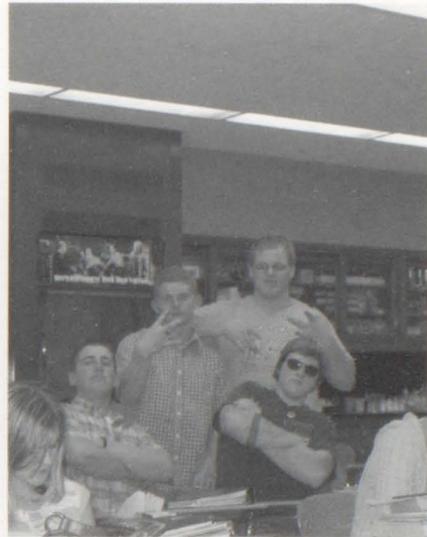

While Mr. Martin believed the lights helped the students' eyes, Mr. Dave Strasemeir felt the lights brightened people's moods. "Compared to what we had, the lights and ceiling tiles brighten the classroom. Light affects your mood, and I think this will help especially in the wintertime," said Mr. Dave Strasemeir.

Mr. Leon Earnest's class shows off the old ceiling tiles and lights before they become just a memory.

Mrs. Click's yearbook class checks out the progress of construction in the hallway as a construction worker takes a quick break for the camera.

Sophomore Shawn Wedmore sits in his math class that has already undergone the construction this year.

Sophomore Lynn Runyan, sits like a princess, awaiting the feast to begin.

Senior Brock Massey shows off two of the cats that were soon to be dissected in Mr. Martin's Zoology class.

In his third period English class, Junior Tyler Gilman interviews his Grandpa by asking him questions about World War II.

Teachers Challenge Students

Many teachers came up with challenging new projects for their classes.

In Mrs. Burnett's fourth period English class, sophomores played an active role in a project chosen by classmates Lynn Runyan, Becky Parker, and Katie Harvey. The class participated in a Medieval Feast. They were merry as they toasted their drinks and ate elk and fruit.

In Mrs. Burnett's third period English class, sophomores Ryan Smith and Aaron Tomlin constructed an Old Century Castle. The castle was constructed of posterboard, and no other students in the class chose to build a castle. Aaron Tomlin commented, "We built a castle because stories are boring because we have to read them all the time in class. Castles are cooler than stories, and it's easier to do a presentation on a castle than write a story."

Another project, the research paper, prepared seniors for college and was assigned by Mrs. Herring. This project took loads of research, organization, and interest.

Shelby Jumps said, "If I had to do my research paper again, I probably wouldn't put it off so much." Students had to pick a topic and choose the positive or negative argument, and write a six page report on it, and then give a five minute speech to the class. The report paper: 500 points, the speech: 200 points, and the grade EARNED: priceless.

From Top to Bottom: Junior, Savanna Vandiver, sings a rewritten version of the Toys 'R Us song to go with the storyline of The Great Gatsby for English. Mrs. Herring is probably regretting assigning that research paper to the seniors as she spends weeks grading them all. Sophomores, sit, talk, and eat at the Medieval Feast. Entertainment was provided by the court jester, Dayne Peters. Sophomore, Janice Cunningham, carries her precious egg baby in a basket wrapped in a blanket for a grade in Child Development taught by Mrs. Clevenger.

Routines Remain in the Classroom

Do you ever sit in class and think to yourself... "Self, am I living the movie Ground Hog Day?" Well get used to it because according to teachers, routines are in and will stay for a while.

"Routines help students adapt to college life and help them get organized," said math teacher Mr. Small. "If I don't have a routine, the kids won't look forward to my class. I make my students take numbered notes. That way if they are gone or are not paying attention, they will know what notes we are taking when they get back."

Mr. Small isn't the only teacher "in" with the routine crowd. Mr. Badger has a test EVERY Friday, Mr. Bennett has pop quizzes, and Mr. Holloway's 4th hour class has the "Price is

From Top to Bottom: Sophomore Josh Tucker puts his two cents in on Mrs. Giselsbach's routine.

"We have to come in and sit down every day, then she says "Get quiet...Okay other classes...Now study hall only..Library." "It gets old." Senior Jessica Gipson likes Mrs. Herring's research papers but wishes they lasted longer. Junior James Miltchener claims his favorite routine is getting pop in Mrs. Herring's class. Senior Katy Stephenson is annoyed by Mr. Bennett's routine, " He always tells his 'wonderful economic students' to get out their 'Favorite economics books.' We are the ONLY economic students, and it's our ONLY economic book!!!" Katy exclaims. "He also HAS to read the announcements every day before class starts."

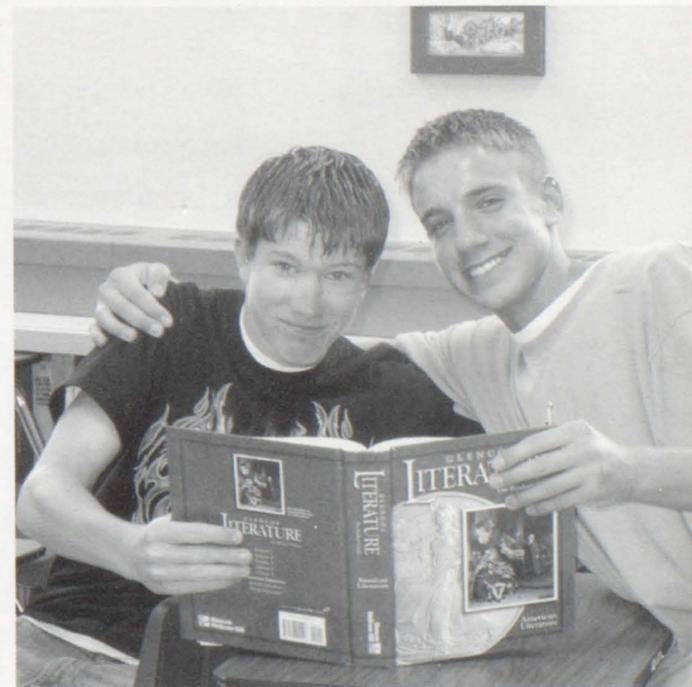

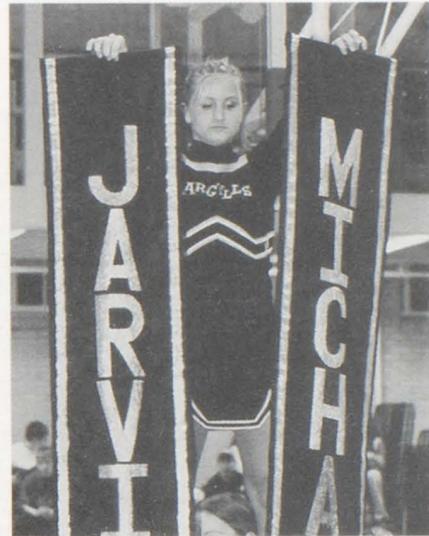

Right" hour, which is also a big hit in the routine game.

Senior Jessica Gipson has her own idea of what a good routine is. "I like Mrs. Herring's senior research papers. It is good because it prepares us for college papers and makes us work hard for our grade. It is not something you can just copy off of your roommate in college. It's something you have to work at." Jessica said if she could change anything about the routine of the research paper, she would make it last the whole semester and make it worth more points.

Juniors Kyle Wine and Brandon Ricks discuss Mrs. Herring's stories that are read every year. "We had to read The Crucible, Huck Finn, and The Great Gatsby," said Kyle. "It doesn't make it easy when you wait until the last month to do your accelerated reader, and then Mrs. Herring gives you this huge novel to read," stated Brandon.

Class routines can be helpful but can also not be fun. "Routines make the day last longer and makes it monotonous," said senior Katy Stephenson. Class routines are going to be here for a while, so we better get used to them.

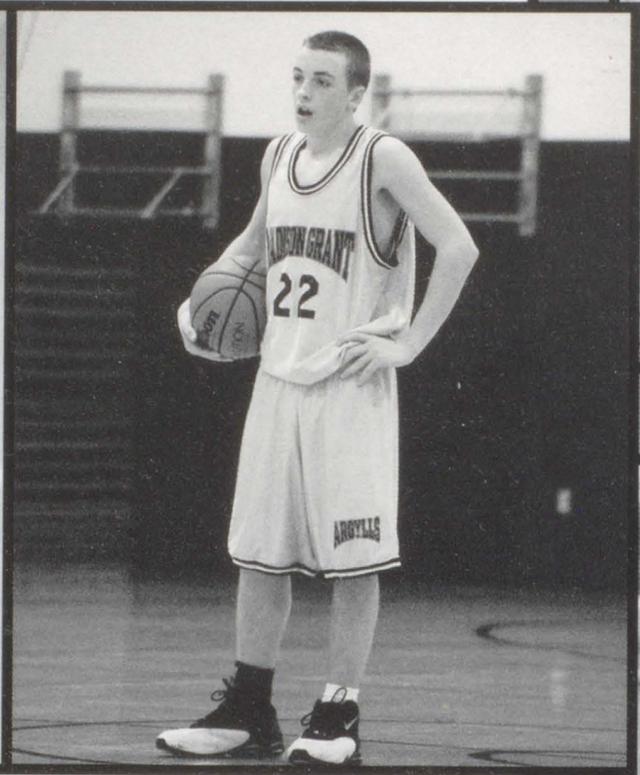

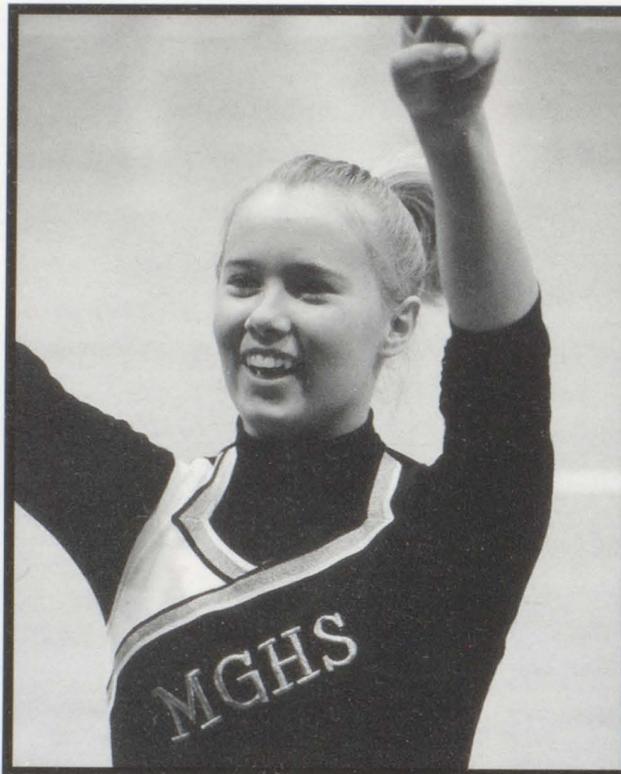

Junior Ashley Avery thinks Mrs. Debbink's routines are very helpful because, "You can expect what to do every day and there isn't any surprises." "It is the same thing...grade homework, take notes, do assignments, and go home." "I wish she would take more time to answer questions."

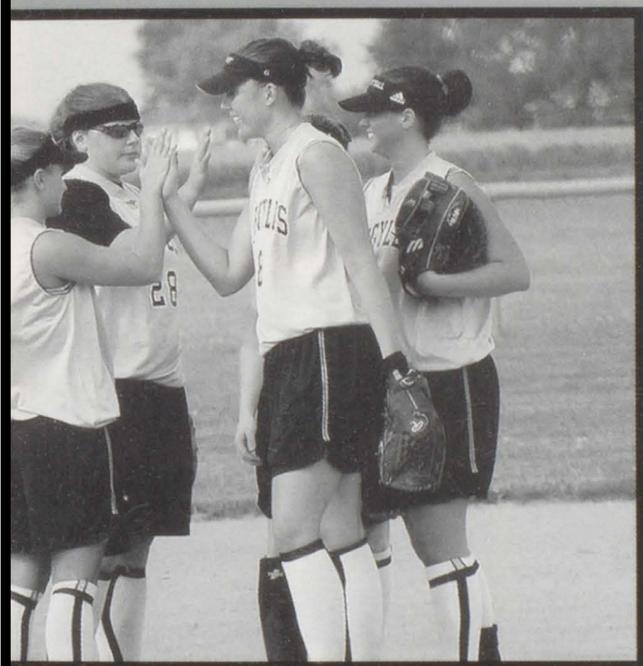

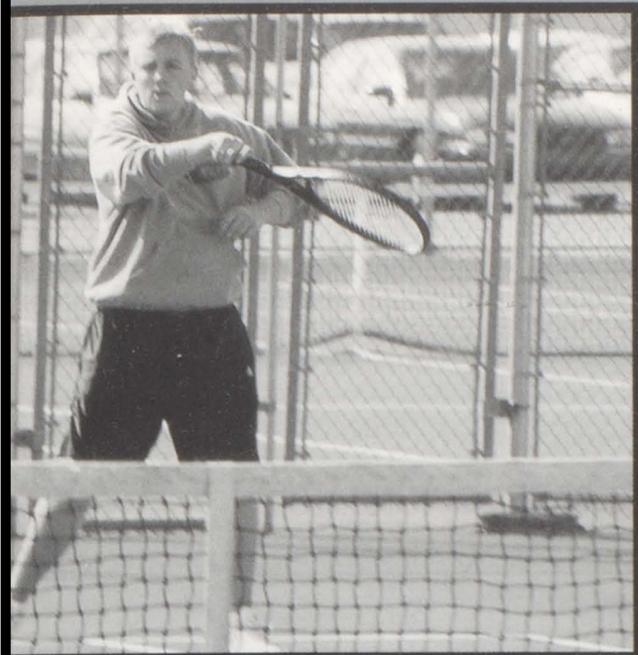

Mr. Small usually writes his notes on the board for the classes to copy. "It helps keep the kids organized," says Mr. Small. "It has worked for many years."

Juniors Brandon Ricks and Kyle Wine sit and read the "routine" stories in Mrs. Herring's 7th hour class.

New Victories

Hard work and dedication were key words to all of the Argyll athletic teams throughout the school year. The fall brought football, tennis, girls' golf, volleyball, and cross country. The winter brought basketball and wrestling. Spring finished up the year with baseball, softball, track, girls' tennis, and boys' golf.

Senior football players Josh Michael, Shane Bradford, Luther Selby, and Jeremy Billings present Coach Tom Bennett with a special award to show their appreciation for his dedication to Madison-Grant football through the years.

"Operation Football," sponsored by Channel 13 TV station showed up for a big night of Madison-Grant football. Members of the TV station were welcomed by an enthusiastic banner-filled crowd. Channel 13 tapes the players as they run onto the field.

A Call from Coach

During a break in the game, Manuel Myers talks to his coach on a porta-phone about his next play. "We talk about different plays, or whether I'm running too wide," stated Manuel Myers. "I say things like 'Hey coach, am I hitting the right holes?'"

Football

Team Experiences Winning Streak

by Ashley Marshall and Brianna Eden

Chalk up another win for the Argylls. The 2003 football season started out with a winning streak. A huge victory for the Argylls was their victory over the Eastbrook Panthers on September 12. We were one of the first teams to beat the tough team.

Along with our victory over the Panthers, we received the CIC milkcan. The CIC milkcan is an important trophy to gain during the CIC championships. Ever since the beginning of the season, the team has dreamed of beating Eastbrook. In the 2003 season, they finally reached their goal.

Another highlight of the season was the night Channel 13's "Operation Football" visited and spotlighted the M-G Argylls. In spite of the cold and rain, fans packed the football stadium to welcome the Channel 13 helicopter and its crew.

Sophomore Shane Carey dashes across the field like a pro as he carries the ball close to him.

We Are The Champions

By Stacy Russell and Nicole Smithee

"We are the champions" is what the girls volleyball team chanted as they defeated several teams to make it to the regionals. The volleyball team had a wonderful season from their winning record of 25-8 to winning the Grant Four and sectional tournaments.

The volleyball team had a few injuries this season, but the injuries didn't stop the Lady Argylls from pushing forward toward victory. This season was a great improvement from past years. Their accomplishments will be remembered for years to come.

Although the junior varsity team was very young, they still managed to maintain a record of 8-10.

Winners! The volleyball team members proudly display their trophies--(top) for winning the Grant Four and (bottom) for winning the sectional.

Work Your Way to the Top

By Alisha Schwentner

Boys Cross Country

George Perry was awarded most improved for the boys cross country team. He practiced every day after school by running three to four miles rain or shine. He ran a total of approximately 600 miles. Right before every meet he would eat a peanut butter and jelly sandwich. Perry's method to improve himself wasn't unique. He simply stated, "I practiced harder."

Girls Cross Country

Awarded for most improved during girls cross country was sophomore Alicia Jennings. She has been running in cross country for four years. She ran about three and one half miles daily and had around four hundred total recorded miles. Sophomore Alicia Jennings commented, "Cross Country keeps me in shape, it keeps me healthy, and it is also something I can do."

Sophomore Chris Simmons stated that cross country isn't for everybody. "It's very competitive; it's not for the weak at heart, and it's not a sport just anyone can do."

Tennis

Time for a Change

By Laura Brooker

Emptiness filled the courts as all tennis matches were played away due to the worn out and decaying conditions of the courts. After suffering many years of deteriorating pavement, the tennis courts will finally be receiving new tennis courts. The tennis courts are part of the many projects in the school's renovations. The reconstruction for the new courts will begin this summer, and the courts are scheduled to be finished by the fall of 2004--just in time for the boys' season.

Taking his match seriously, junior Jared Powell shows dominance on the court by launching a forehand shot across the court.

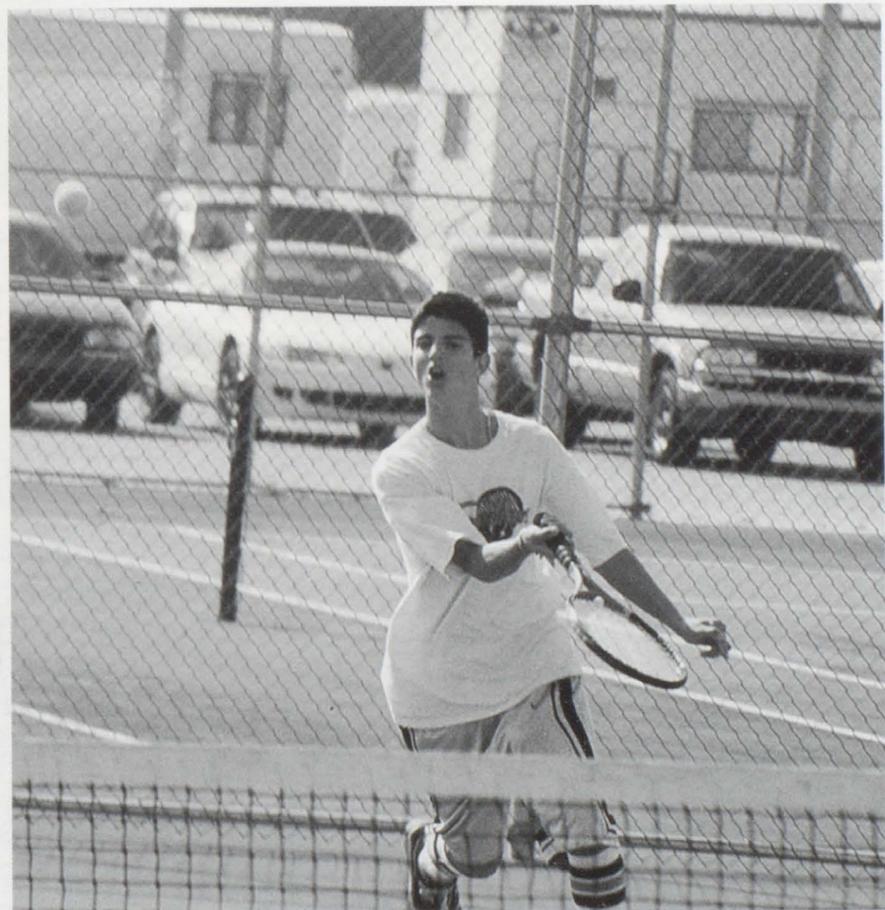

At an away match, junior Alex Ray attempts to score a point for the team by returning a smashing forehand hit from his opponent. Due to the condition of the court, all the matches were played away.

Award Winners

Most Valuable Player:
Tony Presley

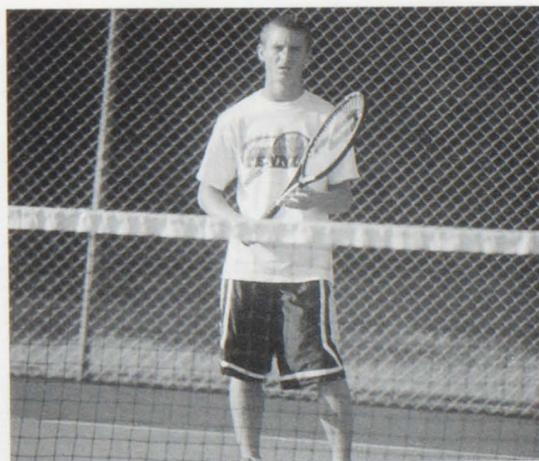

Most Improved Player:
Andrew Morrill

Anticipation rips through the soul of junior Tony Presley as he intensely concentrates on his opponent's mighty return. Tony was named the Most Valuable Player because of his great effort in contributing to the team.

Anticipation

Full of anticipation, sophomore Tyler Trimble eagerly awaits the beginning of his match. Tyler was a two-year member of the tennis team.

Fighting to get a good shot at the basket, sophomore Braden Turner and junior Tony Presley stretch out of arms' reach of Mississinewa's Junior Varsity Team.

Sophomore junior varsity player Brady Turner has a big job to do—guarding and blocking the Marion Giants. The Giants hadn't visited the Argyll gym for well over 20 years.

Boys Face Unforgettable Challenges

By Nicole Smithee

The Madison-Grant Argylls were well-armed this season with skills that many of the players learned together and had practiced together for several years starting with the youth basketball program. Senior, Darrin Brown commented, "I think our team works great together because we have all been playing together since we were little, so that makes it easy to play together."

Cheering Argyll fans filled the bleachers. This season brought many unforgettable challenges, such as the home game against Marion where son, Coach Smedley was pitted against father Coach Smedley. Instead of the traditional before-the-game handshake, father and son also gave a friendly hug. The Argylls beat the Giants by two points. Also, the game against Muncie Burris, who were ranked number one in the class, and we beat them on their home court! This season we blew Oak Hill away defending our Argyll court, and had to face them again in the IHSAA Tournament, winning in overtime. Way to go Argylls!

Girls Share Moments of Glory

By Alisha Schwentner

Fans roared at the sectionals when Madison-Grant's varsity girls won against Eastbrook. "When they played Eastbrook in sectional, they played with a lot of intensity and gave everything, they had, maintaining the very shallow lead throughout the game," said sophomore Brock Pernod. Sophomore Brett Waller agreed that the Madison-Grant vs. Eastbrook game during sectionals was the best game of the year.

Along with the varsity's exciting game came the moment of glory for the Madison-Grant girls' JV team when they won the Grant Four for the first time ever.

The Madison-Grant girls' basketball teams had a good year with only Katy Stephenson sitting out a few games due to a sprained ankle. Other players suffered a few other bumps and bruises.

Hard Work Pays Off

The Madison-Grant girls' JV basketball team won the Grant four for the first time ever. "It was an exciting game, and I was very happy that we won it. We deserved to win the Grant Four after all our hard work," said sophomore Christine King.

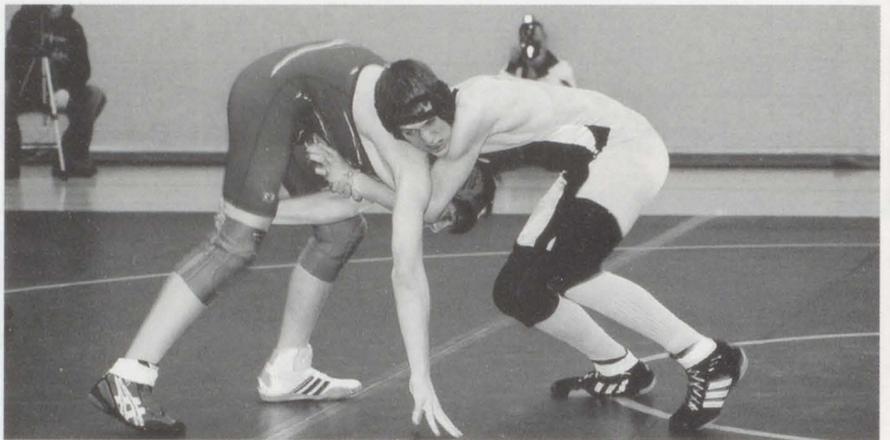

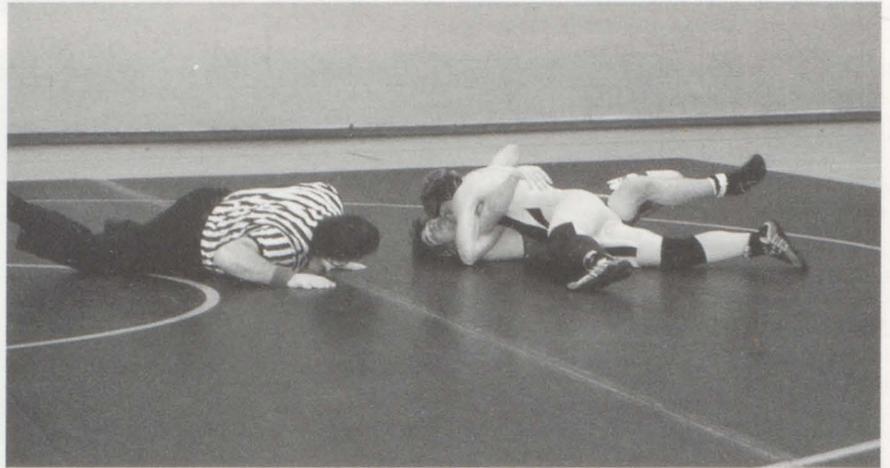

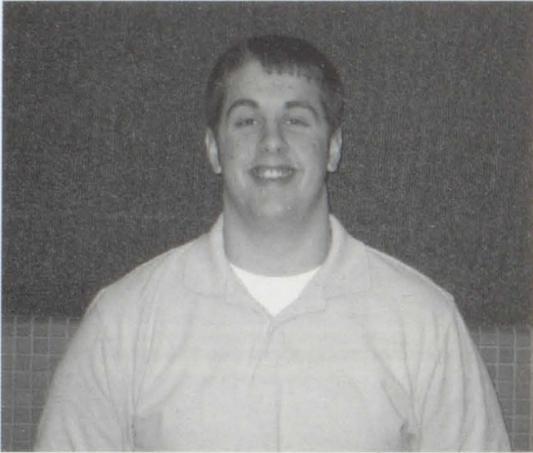

Coaches Dan Justus and Jeff Small along with sophomore Whitney Smith and freshman Kylie Justus observe the game from the bench. Coach Jeff Small commented later, "The effort at the end of the season was far greater than the effort at the beginning of the season."

Now that Junior Matt Roberts has his opponent on his back, Matt prepares to step over and pin his opponent in his signature grapevine move.

Fritz Goes to Semi-State

After moving to M-G from South Bend his junior year, Trace Fritz had a hard time trying to adjust to the new environment. After accomplishing so much in football in the fall, Trace had a 22-8 record and made it all the way to Semi-State in wrestling. The wrestlers agreed that Trace was the most valuable and respectable wrestler in the county.

Gaining control junior James Mitchener reaches for the arm and leg of his Elwood opponent at the beginning of the match.

Wrestling

Lords of the Ring The Spandex Trilogy

By Stacy Stephenson

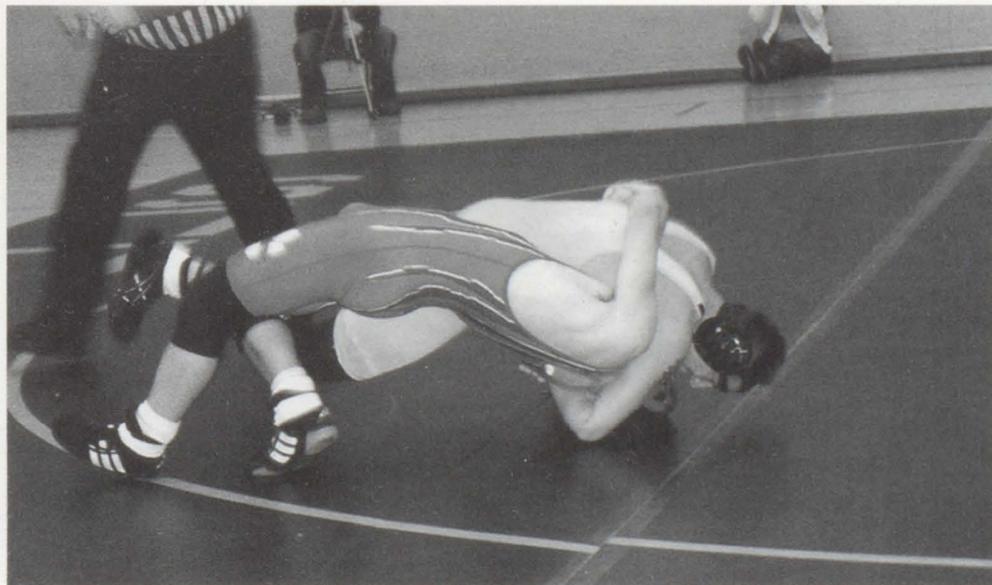

Leading the way for the M-G wrestling team was, in fact, a trilogy. Two of the three captains, also known as the 'Deadly Duo', were senior John Inglis and junior Matt Roberts. The third wrestler of the trilogy was senior Trace Fritz, not a captain but a huge part in leading the team. John Inglis led the team with 15 pins, a career high. John wrestled for six years and accomplished much his senior year. "My greatest accomplishment would have to be that I went my whole senior year, and I became 'unpinnable'...No one could pin me...I'm just that good." John finished his senior wrestling career with a 21-11 record, second place in Grant Four, third place in CIC, fifth place in sectionals and captain of the wrestling team for two years.

Next Lord of the Ring was Matt Roberts. Matt was a captain for two years. He accomplished second in Grant Four, second in CIC, third in Sectionals, and qualified for Regionals. Matt wrestled for five years and looked forward to his senior year. "I can't wait for my rematch with Nick Shepard from Mississenewa," said Matt. His other goals include going to Semi-State, like his teammate Trace, and not being pinned, like his 'Deadly Duo' partner John.

Going to Semi-State was Senior Trace Fritz's greatest accomplishment. "Walking into Ft. Wayne Coliseum knowing I have to wrestle in front of hundreds of people," was Trace's most memorable moment. Trace tied for first in Grant Four, placed fourth in Sectionals, placed third in Regionals, and was a Semi-State qualifier.

Wrestling in Spandex isn't always a bad thing. "We get to dominate on the mat and show off our hot bodies at the same time...who wouldn't want to wrestle?" said the Deadly Duo.

Senior John Inglis squeezes his Elwood opponent after hip-tossing him to his back. The hip toss/ head lock combination was typically John's favorite move.

Ready and waiting for the pitch, freshman Kacie Casas, who is catcher for the Lady Argylls, holds her glove in position to catch the ball.

On The Run

Out of breath from running the bases, senior Holly Austin waits for her chance to run from second base to third base and then for the final stretch to home.

Freshman Derek Stitt takes one last practice swing before the pitch is made. Derek is the catcher for the JV team, and also plays in field.

The Pitch Is Up!

Freshman Shawn Yeagy pitches for the M-G Argylls JV team. Shawn explains his strategy for a great game, "I just stay focused on what I'm doing, and not get over confident! I've done that before and it was bad."

Tennis

The Ball Is in the Right Court

By Alisha Schwentner

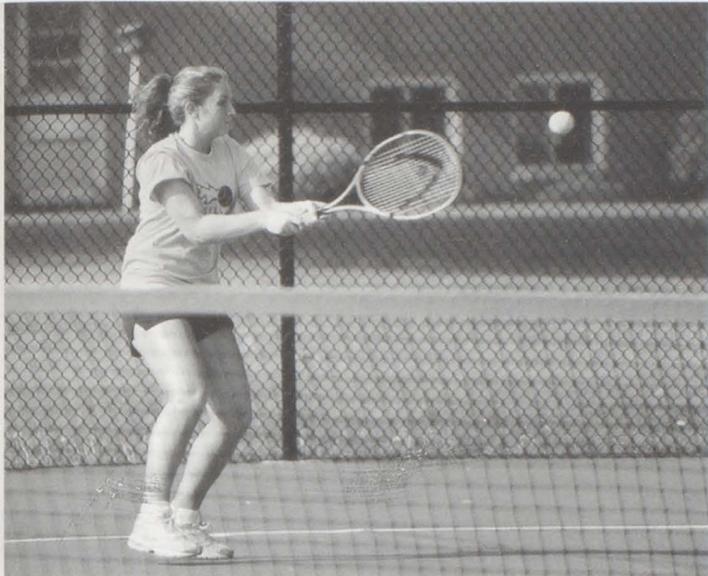

Senior Ashley Davis positions herself to receive the serve from her opponent.

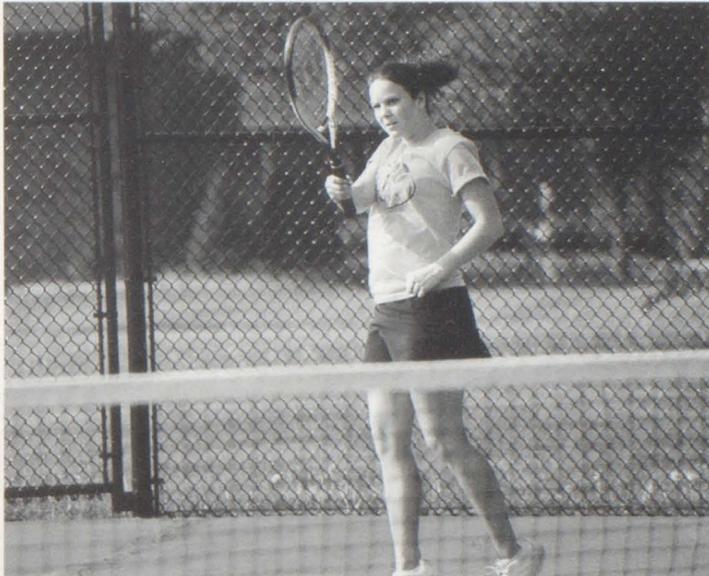

Freshman Rebecca Carey, senior Karen Craig, and juniors Carly Whitehead and Lindsey Holloway sit and wait for their turns to show the other team how to really play tennis.

Attempting to score some points for her team junior Shea Smock sends the ball fast back to the other team before they even knew what hit them.

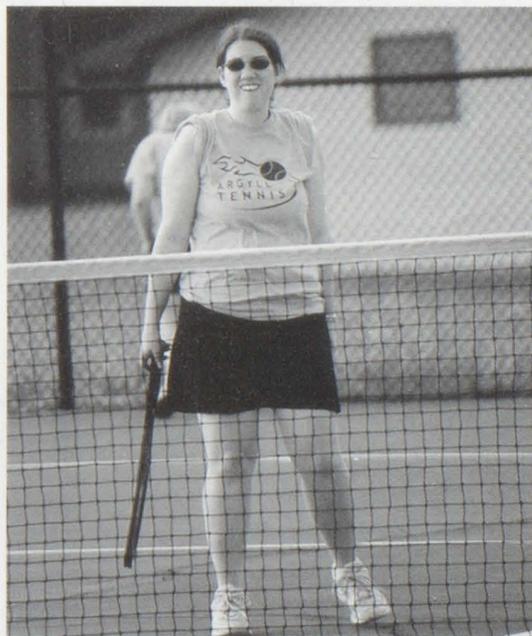

By using a strong forehand shot, Senior Katey Niverson keeps the Argylls in one more round and prevents the other team from getting one more point.

Faced without tennis courts to practice on this year, the team still did a great job. Junior Michaela Conner said, "Even though we didn't have tennis courts this year, we still pulled together and had a great year."

Ready to Play

Senior Bethany Jones prepares to face her opponent and show her who really owns the court.

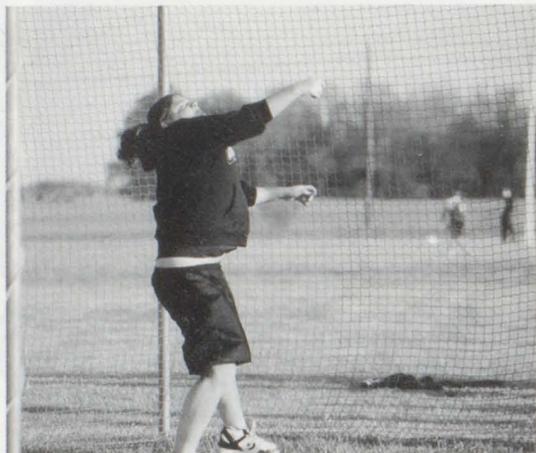

Striding ahead of her rivals, freshman Kylie Ray sprints her leg of the 4X400 relay against Whites and Lakeview.

With all his might, sophomore Daniel Jenny throws the shot as far as he can, trying to surpass his competitors.

Discus and Shotput Specialist

Senior Holly Austin, who specializes in discus and shotput, uses her strength to throw the discus farther than her opponents. Holly is the only one who advanced to regionals for the girls track team.

Staring in amazement, junior Jenna Moore stands astonished at an away game as the boys' basketball team continues to rack up the points. This was Jenna's second year as a varsity cheerleader.

Cheerleading

Spirit Lives On

By Laura Brooker and Stacy Russell

Firing up the crowd is what the M-G cheerleaders did best. From the starting line-up to the school song at the end of the game, the Argyll cheerleaders had tremendous spirit. But after football season things got a little rocky for the cheerleaders, and the team started to fall apart. The squad then consisted of only nine girls. In that aspect, the cheerleaders had a major downfall.

The cheerleading squad had some difficulties to overcome because of so many girls who left the squad. There were several reasons why people left the team. "Everybody argued, and we never got anything done," stated senior Megan Lighty.

During the basketball season, the squad was quite smaller, but that did not stop the remaining cheerleaders from giving all that they had. However, some made some suggestions on how to change the team. "I would ask for a full squad because you can't do anything with just nine people," stated junior Jenna Moore.

Although the team did not have a captain, they still found ways that cheerleading helped improve their lives. "It gives you more leadership ability," explained junior Ashley Avery.

Getting the crowd fired up before the big game against Mississinewa, the JV and Varsity cheerleaders perfect their stunt during the starting line-up. Despite all their spirit, the varsity team went on to lose the game.

Junior cheerleader, Britanni Herniak cheers on the boy's varsity basketball team. Even though the boys came out with a loss the girls kept their spirits high by cheering them on.

Spirit Fires up Crowd

Spirit is what cheerleading is all about, at least it is for sophomore cheerleader Tricia Thieleke, as she fires up the crowd for a home victory.

Despite their differences in class and color, the varsity cheerleaders join together in unison to sing the school song at the homecoming bonfire. Cheerleaders played a major part in firing up the students during the week of homecoming.

New Looks

Enjoying themselves, the M-G students take time out from their busy schedules to have a good time. Student life consists of such activities as Prom, Homecoming, Cinco de Mayo, Mardi Gras, Christmas auction, and numerous club activities.

Homecoming

By Stacy Stephenson

All week long classes competed to come in first place for homecoming. Even though all the classes participated, the juniors came out on top due to their hard work and dedication.

The competitions during the week consisted of the spirit penny drive, dress up days, color wars, hallway decorations, and cheering at the pep session.

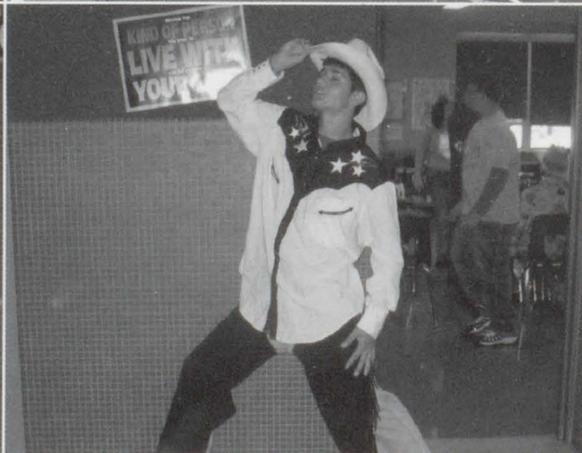

As the week wrapped up, the day turned into night, the temperature dropped, and the rain poured, while the Argylls got warmed up for the much anticipated football game.

The crowd grew bigger by the minute with dedicated fans standing in the rain, pushing their fellow Argylls to victory.

Before the game, the crowd prepared a big welcome for WTHR's Dave Calabro. Dave came to Madison-Grant for Operation Football and received a bigger welcome than ever expected.

The Argylls whipped up on the Blackford Bruins and pulled off a victory in the rain. "It was a good, wet game," stated senior football player Trace Fritz.

Day by Day

Day 1
A group of sophomores are caught "piggy-backin" in the hallway during Twin Day. Though this was the first year for Twin Day, these girls definitely knew how to be a twin.

Day 3
Seniors Karen Craig and Jerry Vest need a break from hobbling and wheeling around on Generation Day. Karen and Jerry were two of the few people who dressed up for this day.

Day 4
On Cowboy and Native American Day, Junior Tony Presley hollers for his horse during 2nd hour geometry.

While fighting the cold and rain, Madison-Grant students welcome Channel 13 and Operation Football to the M-G stadium. Channel 13 had only been at M-G one time previous to this event. All the hard work paid off in the end, as Madison-Grant won the Spirit Award for that Friday night.

During the homecoming pep session, Senior Kami Clark sings her revised version of "My Heart Will Go On" for the senior football players. Kami sang this song in the senior hallway, representing Celine Dion at Caesar's Palace in Las Vegas.

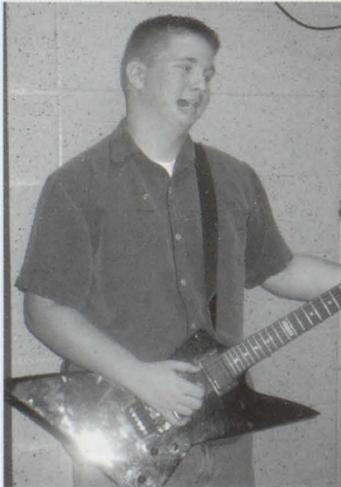

While having a good time, seniors Lacy Thomas and Megan Lighty watch the pep session Friday of homecoming week. The gym was packed that afternoon with high school and jr. high students ready to support the Argylls for a victory over Blackford.

Backstage before the show freshman Geoff Buck practices the song "Why, Georgia, Why," which he later played on the piano and sang for the talent show.

A third year Show Stopper senior Ashley Davis sings "You Go First!" at the talent show.

Some students just love to perform, and sophomore Brittany Skinner is no exception. "I just love performing in front of everyone," said Brittany.

"We practiced three times and winged it. It rocked," said Junior Matt Love, drummer for the band Backyard Boys .

Talent Show

By Nicole Smithee

Clogging, dancing, and singing entertained a packed auditorium on October 28, the night of the talent show! "There were a lot of interesting performances," said sophomore, Stacy Russell. Also, senior Kamryn Clark commented, "Some people came back with new performances, and there was a lot of new performers!"

Some of the performances included dance, such as junior, Shaunce Johnson with the song

"Take California!" There were solos, like Brittani Herniak singing "Adonai" and Brittney Skinner singing "Beautiful."

Bands rocked the audience with drummers, singers, and guitarists until their fans screamed for them! Some of the bands included Protocol with "Not You," Backyard Boys playing "Brooklyn," and Rise To The Top which included Adam Burkholder and Jesse Beal.

Argyll Idols

Duet

As a duet Show Stoppers senior Kami Clark and sophomore Brandon James sing "Whole New World" at the Argyll Idols talent show.

Father-Daughter Act

Singing "Cruisin" with her dad, freshman Kylie Justus said he helped calm her nerves. "It was really nice. I wasn't as nervous with him right beside me."

"Hokey Pokey"

Juniors Corey Sizelove, Tony Presley, and Brittani Herniak lead the audience in an everybody-join-in dance of the "Hokey Pokey".

Backyard Boys

Music Makers Turn the Beat Around

By Brianna Eden

From Disney World in Orlando, Florida, to our own football field, Madison-Grant's band classes have been playing up a menagerie of notes.

Mr. Gardner's sixth and seventh hour band classes were spotted performing at events such as their fall, winter, and spring concerts as well as at the James Dean Days Festival in Fairmount, Indiana, and even at our own graduation playing the classic "Pomp and Circumstance."

The fifth hour Jazz Band was busy this time around with their invitation to perform at the Starlight Cafe in the Magic Kingdom at Walt Disney World in Orlando, Florida, over spring break. The Jazz Band also performed in the James Dean Days parade and at the ISSMA Jazz Festival. They also took part in their Annual World Tour where they performed for all of the elementary schools in the Madison-Grant School District.

The Beat Goes On...

Clarinet
Susan Bricker plays her clarinet in the spring concert. This is one of the many instruments she plays. She also practices on a saxophone, a bass guitar, and a bass clarinet.

Trombone
Andy Sharkey jazzes things up in his solo performance during the spring concert in the high school auditorium.

Piano
Katie Scott is tickling the ivories on her piano for her performance for the Jazz band's appearance at the spring concert in the auditorium.

Bass Clarinet
Amber Collins plays her bass clarinet with vigor. The bass clarinet is about three feet tall, over half the length of her body!

Brad Atkins marches to the beat of his own drum as he plays along to the notes on his music sheets for one of the many Jazz Band performances throughout the school year.

Solo and Ensemble:

Andy Cowling plays a cello concerto on an acoustic guitar for the high school winter concert.

Lauren Moulton shines in her solo performance for the Jazz Band during the high school winter concert.

Gentry McDuffee strums his pink bass guitar to the notes of his written music for the Jazz Band's performance during their winter concert.

Taking their final bows the cast of "Bye Bye Birdie" close the show.

The Drama Club members consist of:
 Glen Davis, Amanda Hummer,
 Clint Randolph, Kamryn Clark,
 Stephanie Cornwell, Rachelle Brobst,

 Justin Julian, Tom Hart, and Corey Sixelove.

The Drama Club is Directed by Anita A. Crull.

Senior Glen Davis, as Albert Peterson, argues with Senior Amanda Hummer, as Rose Alvarez, over when she tried to ruin the Ed Sullivan Show.

Sophomore Daniel Jenny, as Conrad Birdie, tries to find out from a group of girls where the best place to hang out is.

Senior Amanda Hummer, as Rose Alvarez, submits her resignation to senior Glen Davis, as Albert Peterson

Sophomore Daniel Jenny, as Conrad Birdie, sings "One Last Kiss" to the nation, on the Ed Sullivan Show.

In the Ice House Sophomore Daniel Jenny, as Conrad Birdie, tries to steal a kiss from Senior Kamryn Clark, as Kim McAfee. To the surprise of the audience and the Drama Club, that kiss took place.

Bye Bye Birdie Another Hit for the Drama Club

By Alisha Schwentner

Many hilarious moments happened on the set of "Bye Bye Birdie," most of which the audience never knew about.

Sophomore Daniel Jenny, who played Conrad Birdie said his favorite moment was when one of the actors walked out on stage when he was not supposed to be there. "When the curtain opened for the first scene, and Brett Waller was on stage when he wasn't supposed to be, he looked at the audience then ran off stage and fell on his rear."

Sophomore Alicia Jennings, who played Deborah Sue Hinckle, said, "My favorite moment in drama was when Daniel Rodarte was sitting on top of a cart, being pushed by Natalie Hummer, and when she pushed the cart really hard forward the cart lost all of its balance and fell over with Daniel on top, who went flying into the lockers."

All of the drama members had their favorite moments, and these were just a few of them.

Singing with All Their Hearts

So Sincere
Sophomore Daniel Jenny, as Conrad Birdie, performs his hit song "You Gotta Be Sincere" in front of an audience of fawning girls and angry boyfriends.

What Did I Ever See In Him
Senior Amanda Hummer, as Rose Alvarez, and Senior Kamryn Clark, as Kim McAfee, sing about their problems with their men.

Spanish Rose
Senior Amanda Hummer, as Rose Alvarez, sings her song "Spanish Rose" in front of a group of dumb-struck men.

Kids
A group of parents led by Daniel Rodarte, as Harry McAfee, sing about the trouble kids cause them in this day.

Don't Want To Miss A Thing

By Stacy Stephenson

The night of prom was the most magical night of all. While girls stressed over hair appointments, guys did their thing until the last minute. While out getting her hair done at 2:00 p.m., Lauren Molten's date, Drew Weesner, was out getting ready to mow his grass.

The before-prom meal turned out to be quite expensive for some. Brock Massey spent $109.00 on dinner! He spent $6.50 for a glass of sparkling water. Brock had four glasses, then the waitress brought the whole bottle. Dinners for prom ranged in prices. John Inglis spent $9.00 on dinner for his date, Stacy Stephenson, but he made it and set up a romantic dinner by candle light.

Slowly couples showed up at the red carpet entrance to the Raddison Hotel in Muncie. From a carriage ride (seniors Shelby Jump and Trace Fritz) to prom, to a van decorated with obscene gestures (Jason Byrd and his dates), to limos parked outside, all lead the way to a romantic time.

Prom queen and king candidates, Shea Gunter, Krista Kroupenske, Ashley Davis, Sacha Myers, Brett Carey, Brock Massey, Shane Bradford, and Manuel Myers awaited the crowning. The 2004 M-G Prom King and Queen were twins Manuel and Sacha Myers. After being crowned, they danced together to "Don't Want to Miss a Thing," the prom theme of the May 8, 2004 M-G prom.

Romance and Good Times

SLOW DANCING

Junior Jessie Archer dances to a slow song with her date and is surrounded by couples doing the same.

TAKING A BREAK

Junior Ashley Avery and her date Brody Stitt take a break from dancing to have a glass of punch.

SHOWSTOPPERS!

Fellow friends and showstoppers, Amanda Hummer, Corey Sizelove, and Glen Davis sing and dance as they build memories.

BILLY-BOB WANNA-BE'S

Seniors Kirk Runyan and Nicole Smithee take a picture of their newly started trend. Billy-Bob teeth with become an attractive accessory for proms to come.

Senior siblings Manuel and Sacha Myers smile into the camera as they dance together as the 2004 M-G King and Queen to "Don't Want To Miss a Thing."

Junior Tony Presley and senior Ashley Davis sit down together and watch as people dance on the floor.

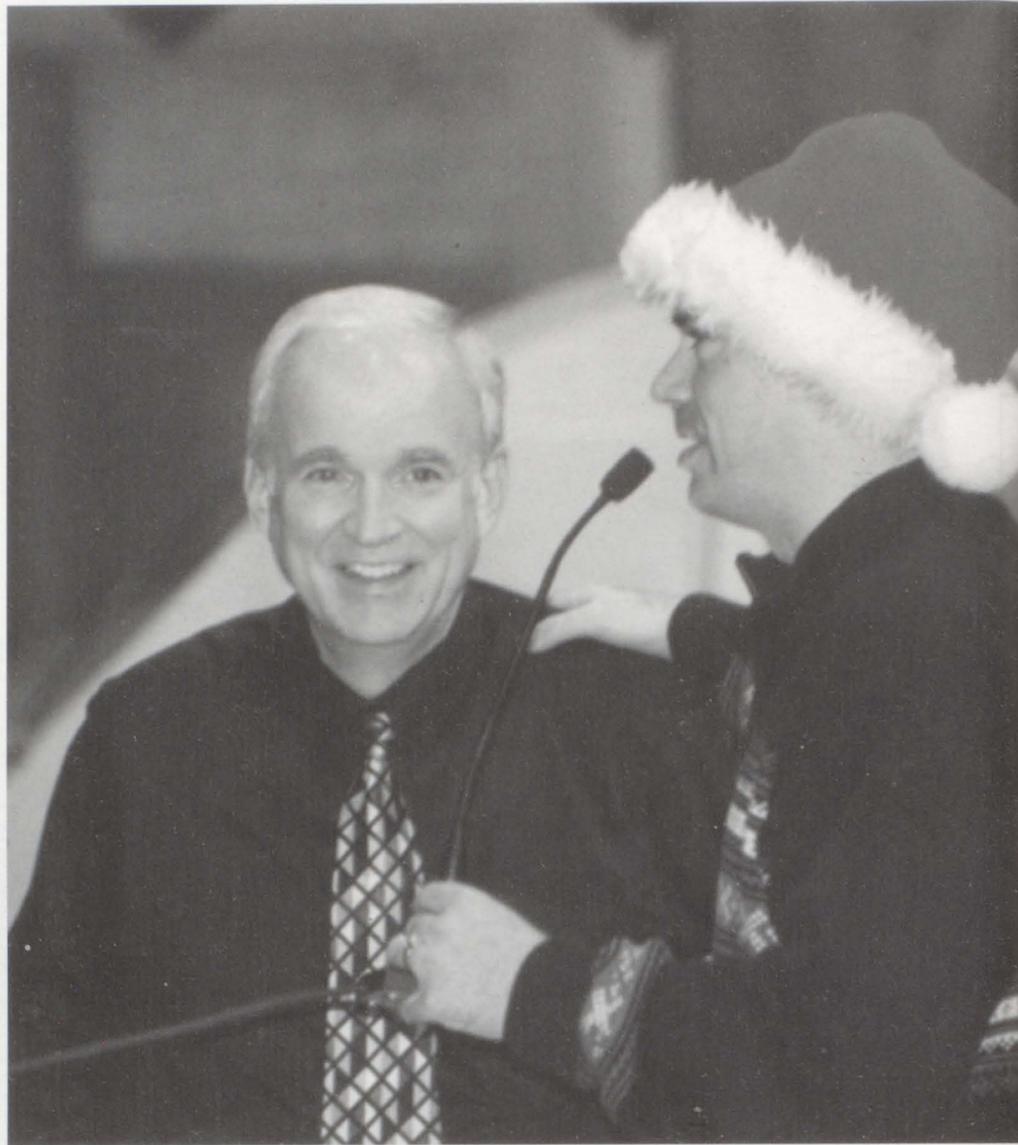

Senior high school sweethearts John Inglis and Stacy Stephenson started their own trend--wearing sunglasses.

Junior Ashley Ponder gets dipped by her date who came from another school.

Convincing Principal Mr. Martin to prove himself quite the entertainer by singing Phil Collins' "In The Air Tonight" turned out to be pretty easy for auction emcee Mr. Small.

Pitching a tent in the gym is senior Brock Massey. The tent was donated by Dunham's Sporting Goods to be auctioned off for charity.

Clowning around, Senior Manuel Myers shows how to ride a mini-bike and shows off the bike for the National Honor Society's annual christmas auction.

Senior and peer tutor Cora Bennett gives Junior High Special Education student Brandon Eden a hug during the auction.

Win A Date With Brett And Brock! Mrs. Herring and Mrs. Clevenger did, outbidding seniors Laura Brooker and Shea Gunter. The dates were later donated to two lucky students in Mrs. Toney's Special Education Class.

Christmas Auction

By Brianna Eden

Grabbing the audience's attention with a few jokes, Mr. Small stands at a podium on the gymnasium floor with a microphone in hand and a santa hat on his head. And with that, the bidding began. Mr. Small was selected to be the Christmas Auction's emcee by Mrs. Herring and Mrs. Clevenger.

The entertainment had been lined up in the weeks beforehand. Students as well as teachers and staff all had a participated in the fun. Principal R. Larry Martin sang "In The Air Tonight" by Phil Collins with little encouragement from Mr. Small. Six students also had a chance to perform for the school. Brittani Herniak, Corey Sizelove, Rachele Brobst, Justin Julian, Brittany Butcher, and Tony Presley sang and danced to "Santa Baby." By the end of the auction students were laughing, smiling, and taking there newfound treasures home with them for Christmas Break.

Santa's Little Helpers

SANTA'S LITTLE ELVES
Not Keebler-sized elves, National Honor Society Members and seniors Katy Stephenson and Shelby Jump collect the money from all the students who win bids.

THE CAT'S MEOW
Senior Shelly Midgette shows off a warm and fuzzy little kitten to students for the auction. The kittens were donated by senior Katy Stephenson.

MRS. CLAUS
Dressed up in Christmas colors and a Santa hat, senior Ashley Davis parades a Radio Flyer red wagon that was up for bid.

SHOWING SPANDEX
The wrestling team showed off their spandex as they auctioned themselves off as dates for some lucky ladies.
