Time is filled with swift transitions, and students are the most vulnerable to these changes. The merging of two small schools into one, thriving, well-oiled unit creates new ideas, opportunities, and friendships. Goblins and Quakers were transformed into Argylls. Free seats at games for the marching M-G band had to be earned with blisters and aching arches, while singers utilized their talents in Special K's. Seeking, accepting, challenging, and revising, students are swept up in the whirlwind of new innovations spiced with established traditions. They are interested enough to formulate new facets; they call the plays, and the OAK LEAVES records their progress.

Opening

Record-breaking crowd attends

Summer months provided a hectic but enjoyable time of activities. Materials became dresses, sleighs, and home furnishings as 4-H projects progressed. The flags sold by the newly-formed Chamber of Commerce decorated many homes as the morning of July 4 dawned hot and clear. The games that preceded the fireworks enticed many adults to participate. As darkness approached, the first firework exploded and thus began a series of both old and new spectaculars. The excitement continued as vacations and 4-H fairs kept students busy. But as the Madison-Grant marching band began practice for the first time in the early days of August, it was not long until students realized that the carefree days of summer were almost over.

As it explodes, the first firework illuminates the sky.

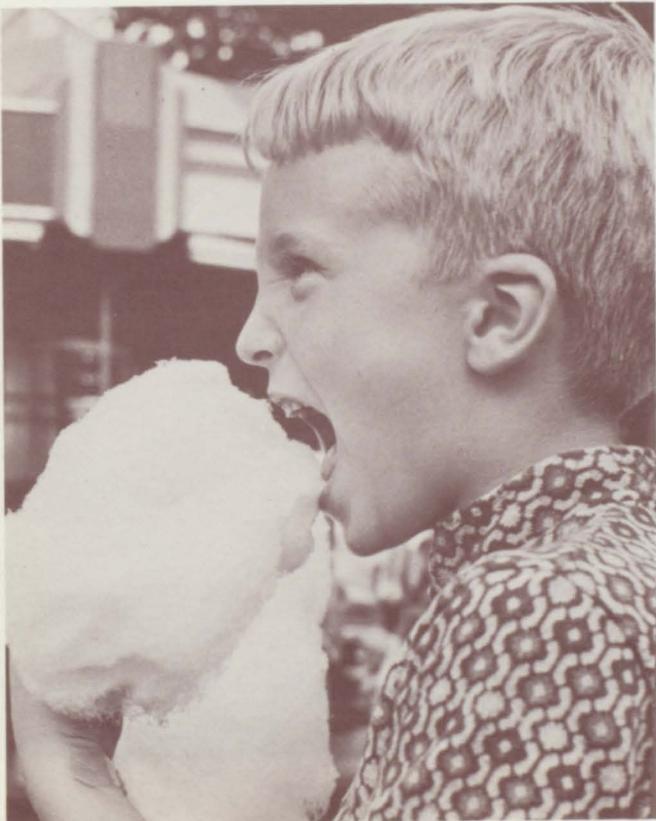

Chosen as the first queen of the Summitville Lions Club Fair, Diana Brewer presides over the week's festivities.

customary fireworks display on July 4

Pleas from their mothers to hold on tight bring mischievous grins to Shon Silvey and Wendy Smith.

Finding himself in a very sticky situation, Jeff Forrest delights in eating his cotton candy.

Exuberant Argylls triumph in first Homecoming game

Varsity cheerleader Peggy Barnhart gets carried away over an Argyll first down early in the first quarter.

Queen candidates, Debbie Eaton, Caryl Joyner, and Julie Jarrett, hide their tension with shining smiles.

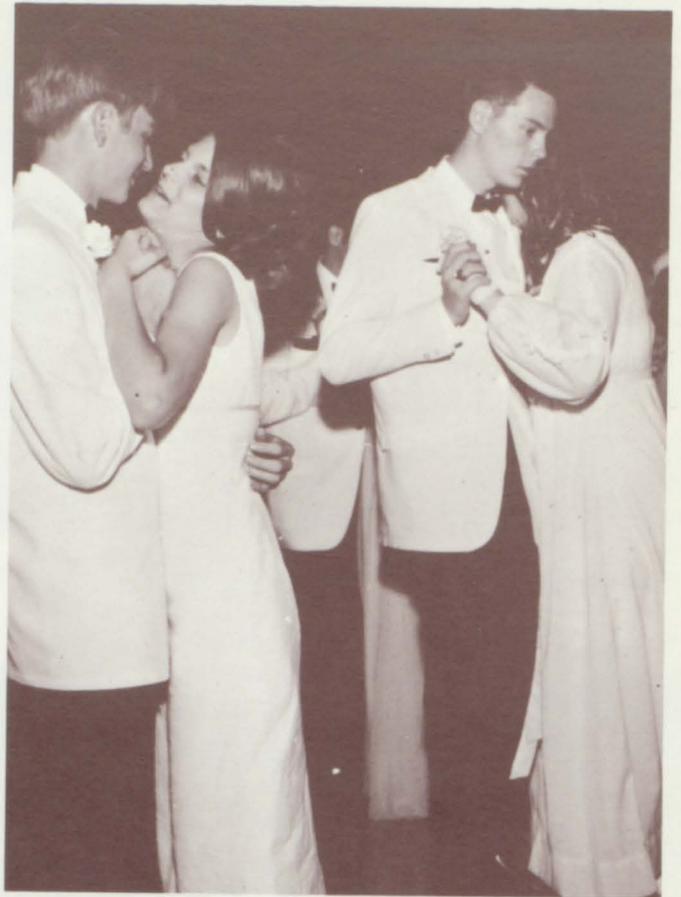

Fullback Larry Floyd smashes over the goal-line from two yards out, giving the Argylls six points.

On September 26, Madison-Grant's first Homecoming transformed the cold grayness of once-empty bleachers into a fall-colored confetti of wool clothes and eager faces. Enthusiasm was kindled with a bonfire and pep rally on Thursday night; and a parade composed of floats, queen candidates, and the marching M-G band on Friday night. During the game, tension mounted as the North Miami defensive unit surrendered a field goal to the Argylls with only seventeen seconds left in the second quarter. Halftime ceremonies included the crowning of Queens Caryl Joyner and Patsy Painter to reign during the rest of the evening. The three-point lead and the miracle of momentum proved insurmountable for the Warriors as the Argylls clinched a 17-13 victory.

The announcement of South Campus Homecoming Queen brings fulfillment to the dreams of Caryl Joyner.

'Hits of the '60's'
and prom climax 1969 school year

Irene Davidson and Gerald Elsworth share the last dance, "Somewhere Over the Rainbow," at the 1969 prom.

An air of excitement descended upon the students as the spring of the 1969 school year initiated two principal happenings. The first on May 10 found many students at the Senior Citizens Building in Anderson dancing to the strains of the prom's theme song "Somewhere Over the Rainbow." After the traditional crowning of the queen, a king was announced; and he took his new place of honor. Reading of wills and prophecies and touring of the Senior Potpourri Room occupied the remainder of the dance. Just a week later on May 17, formals and white jackets were donned again for the variety show. Butterflies were stilled as performances, ranging from comical TV commercials to the more serious hit tunes of the '60's, developed on stage. As the last notes died away, students realized that this was the final variety show presentation for SHS.

Attendants Kathy Barley and Barbara Dunlap flank reigning king, Steve DuPouy, and queen, Connie Cullen.

Taking time from bowling, Julie Jarrett and Charlie Little discover that rolls and hot chocolate pep them up at 4:00 A.M.

The drudgery of army life is the primary topic for discussion between David Coleman and his pal, Danny O'Day.

Performing one of the many "Hits of the '60's," Diana Dickerson sings "Gentle On My Mind."

Greasepaint aids in portrayal

Fear for their child's health prompts the concerned expressions on the Captain's and Mrs. Keller's faces, played by Don Thurber and Julie Jarrett respectively.

Her inability to understand why she is not like others motivates Gloria Pyle as Helen Keller to take out her frustrations on Martha, the servant girl, played by Laura Smith, as Debbie Eaton, portraying Percy, watches on in fear.

Exhibiting a host of unknown dramatic talent, the class of 1970 presented its junior play, "The Miracle Worker." Four and a half weeks of hard, nightly practices produced bruised knees and shins as the fight scenes developed. Even though it was a drama, peals of laughter were heard as the dog drank from the cup of water and as a chair unexpectedly fell apart on the line, ". . . over my dead—chair . . ." But, the comedy did not end there. As seniors, the more experienced actors furthered their endeavors with the staging of "The Family Nobody Wanted." Through tape recordings and a short in a wire, which caused a small fire, the practices led to the final production for the class of '70.

of all ages and nationalities

Mr. Johnson, played by Mike Waller, discovers that his stomach is unaccustomed to the tantalizing flavor of rattlesnake.

As the realization that W-A-T-E-R has a meaning dawns upon Helen Keller, her teacher Annie Sullivan, played by Connie Cullen, has accomplished the miracle.

After mastering the bus routine, first-grader Scott McCune is ready to tackle "bigger" problems.

During the autumn "monsoons," umbrellas prove invaluable to puddle-jumpers like Debbie Eaton.

Autumn adjustment days dissolve as

Like a typical growing student, connoisseur Brian Kirkwood lives on sandwiches and french fries.

Melody Webb and Laura Smith share traditional commencement sentiments after the program.

graduation arrives

Autumn pulled the drowsy students out of their carefree summer trance into the infectious bustle and buzz of school life. Selecting a new school song, screaming for an Argyll touchdown, and nibbling on french fries from the sandwich line soon harmonized with established activities. Yet, just when the students' blood began to course in rhythm with the heartbeat of school life, spring enveloped Madison-Grant; and along with the blundering butterflies, came graduation. Although ordering of announcements and the fitting for caps and gowns was traditional, being the first graduating class of Madison-Grant was a unique experience.

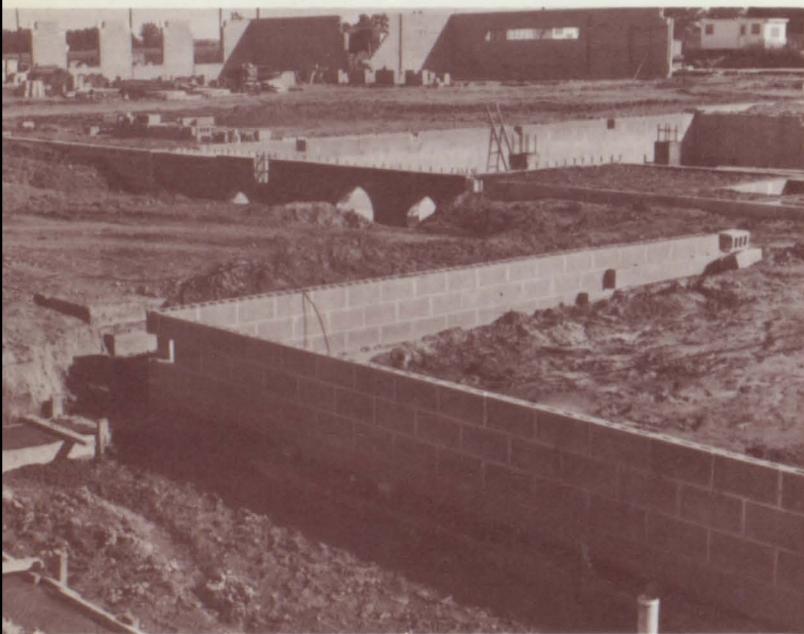

In the hectic moments before graduation, Doug Hull takes time out to ponder its importance.

Builders bring Madison-Grant to life

Even on a crisp winter day, the friendly sun beams down its approval on the construction.

Amid treadmarks and footprints, Madison-Grant peers out of the earth into a world of late summer.

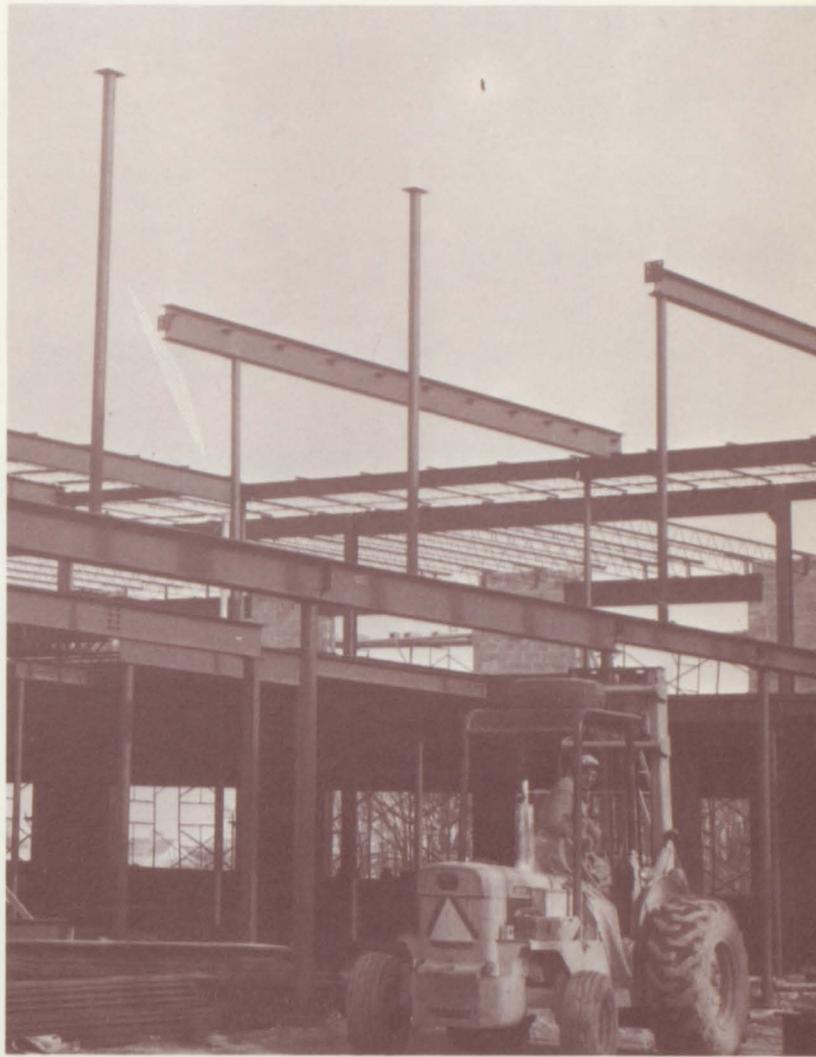

Lawrence Rhoads, president of the Holding Corporation, scoops into the parched earth at the ground breaking ceremony.

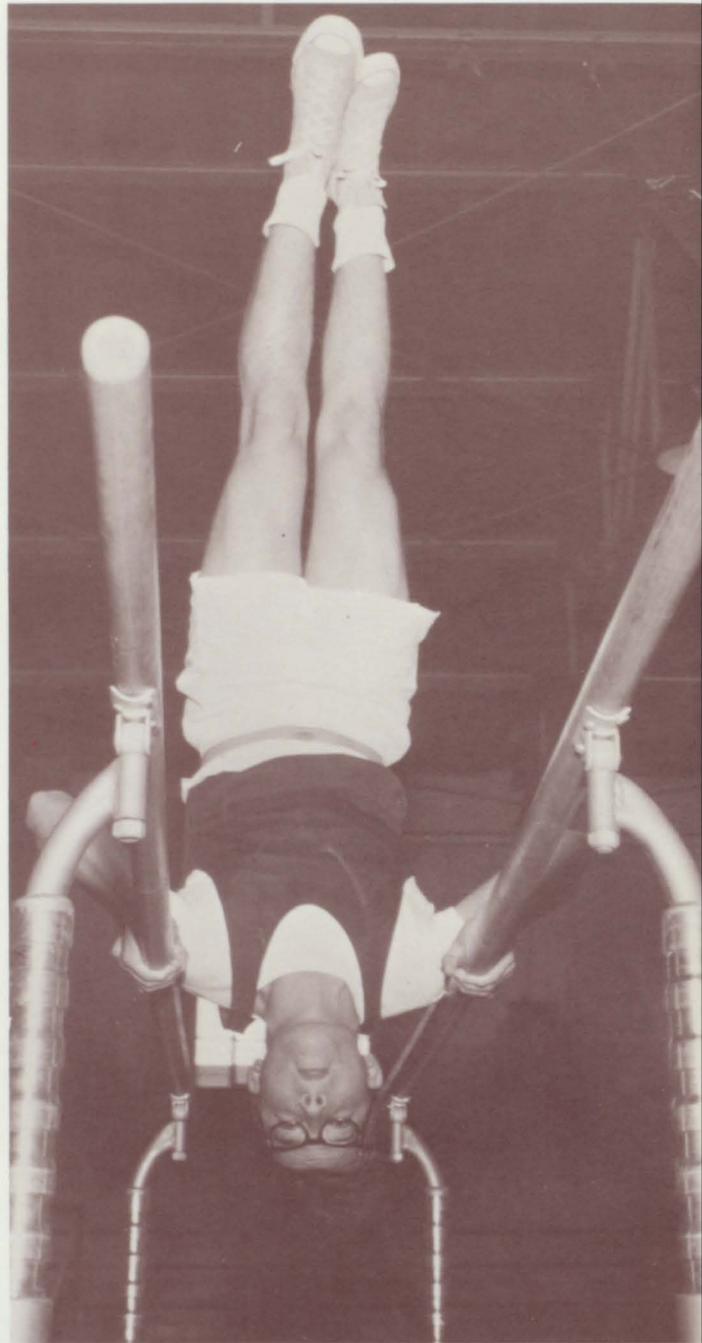

A looming crane hovers over the unfinished gymnasium.

Forklift performs daily duties to aid in the enclosure of the structure before winter arrives.

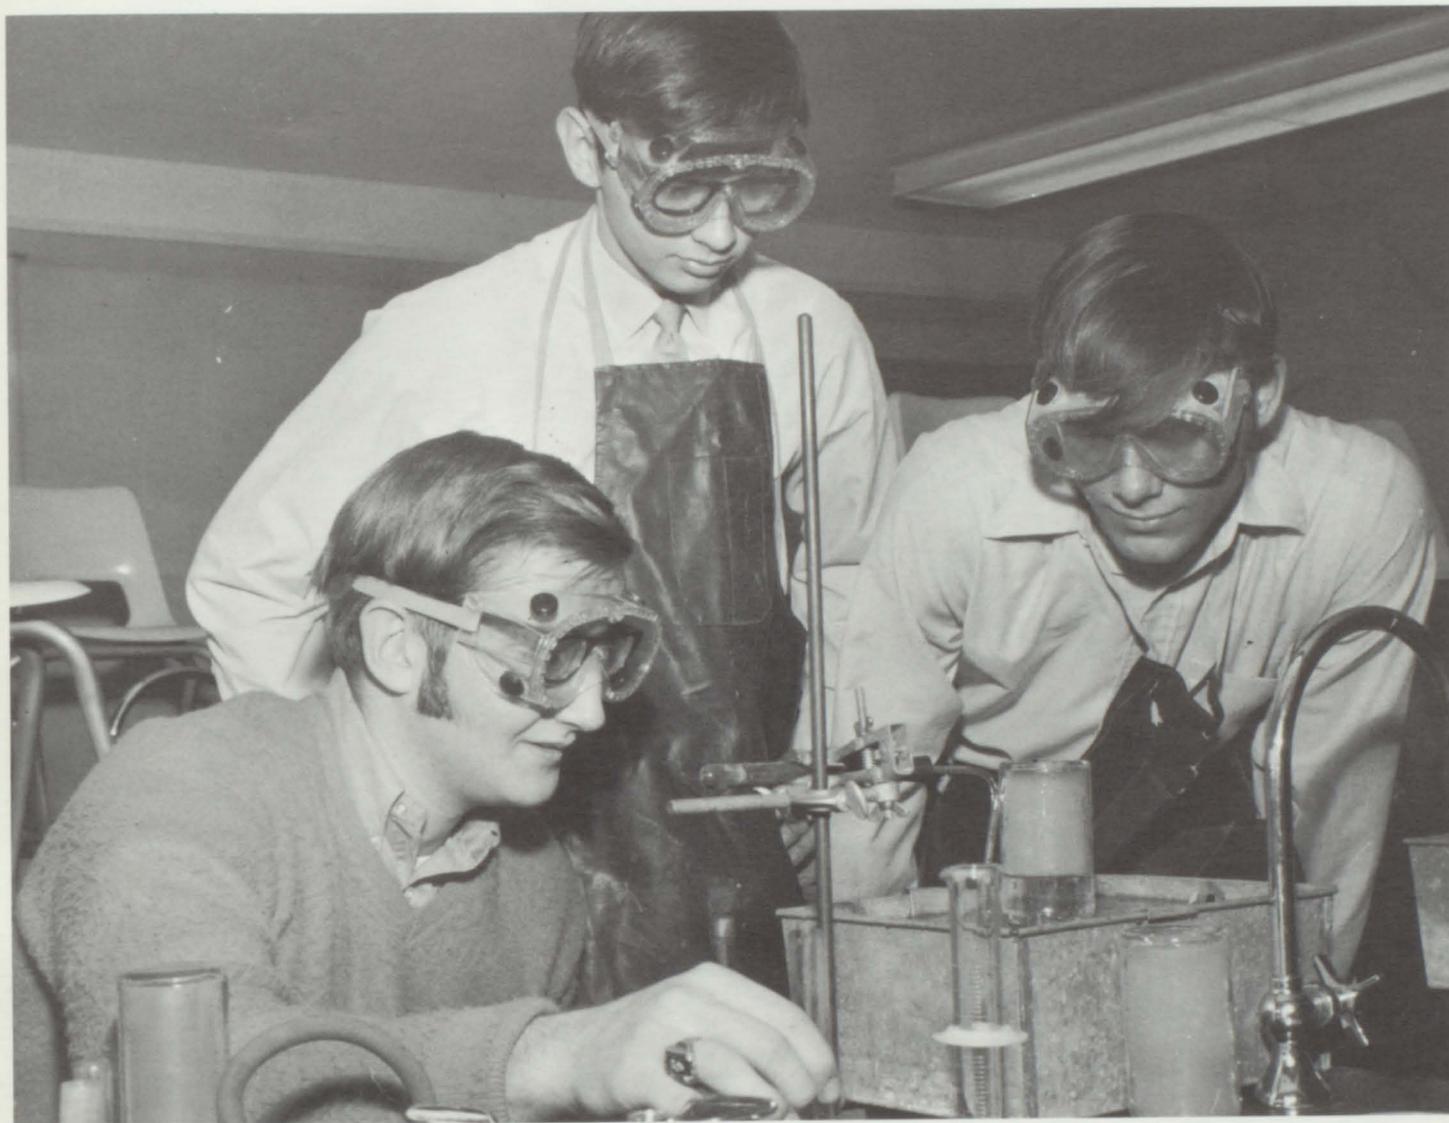

As the sun glared down, the students from both campuses trudged through the mud at the new building site of Madison-Grant on May 5, 1969, to witness the official ground breaking ceremony. Shortly afterward, heavy equipment crawled onto the scene and began disfiguring the land. Early fall blended into winter, and passersby noticed the steady progress as walls were erected. When completed, the structure will house forty-three classrooms—all boasting the rare luxury of air conditioning. A stage in the cafetorium will delight dramatists, while sports fans look forward to the football fields, the baseball diamonds, and the gymnasium, which will have a seating capacity of 3200. The deadline set for the 1970-71 school year is rapidly approaching, along with the reality of Madison-Grant.

The various departments of academics are constantly growing to meet the demands of life outside the classroom. From the new texts in social studies to the relocation of the library in the cafeteria, Summitville is always changing to offer course variety as well as up-to-date information to the student. Senior English students grasp the meaning of Shakespeare by putting themselves into the characters of Macbeth. Cadet teachers now are given full credit for their help in the elementary classrooms. The Chamber of Commerce awards money to art students who create the best Christmas scenes on downtown store windows. The school is always alert for needed alterations in the curriculum in order to help the student develop his identity.

Academics

New teachers bring novel ideas to language arts

"Double, double, toil and trouble," is the motto of these witches Debbie Eaton, Diana Brewer and Barb Dunlap as they cook up disaster for Macbeth.

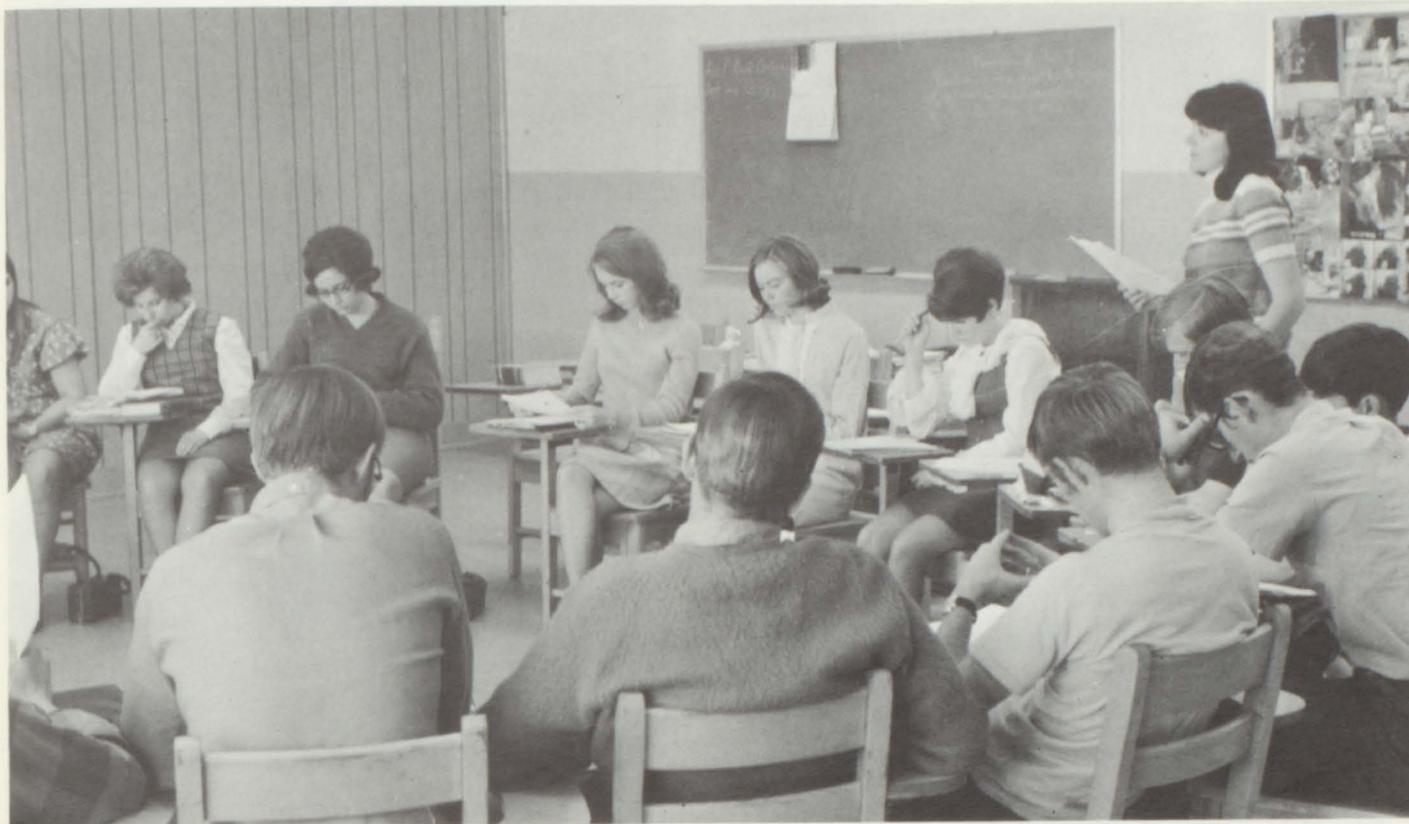

With much emphasis placed on vocabulary, Mr. Dave McClung makes challenging contests out of verb drills.

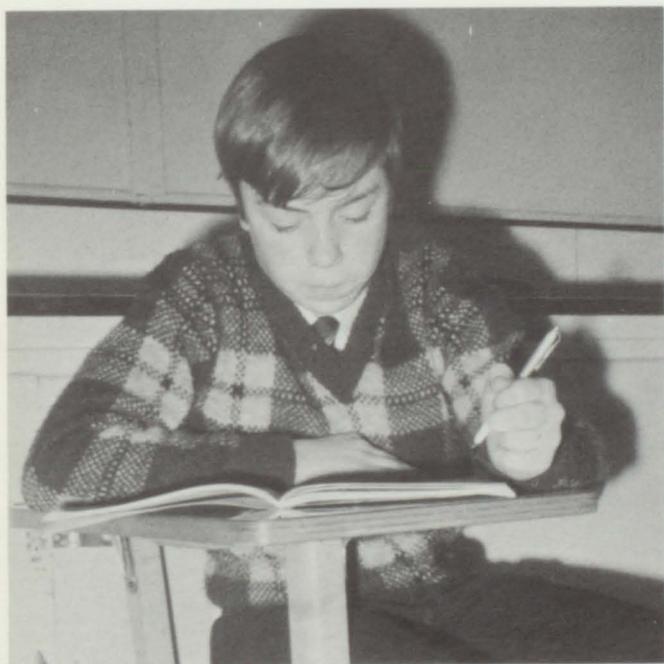

By listening to Spanish music, Spanish III student, Steve DuPouy, learns more about the culture and tradition of the people.

Spreads Christmas spirit

Junior English students exchange ideas and thoughts on The Adventures of Huckleberry Finn through a circle discussion.

Before handing his spelling paper to a neighbor to grade, Jeff Clark rechecks each word.

Typing races stimulate students to utilize speed

Aware that the bell will ring any minute, Anita Brewer hurriedly lifts the cover from her typewriter.

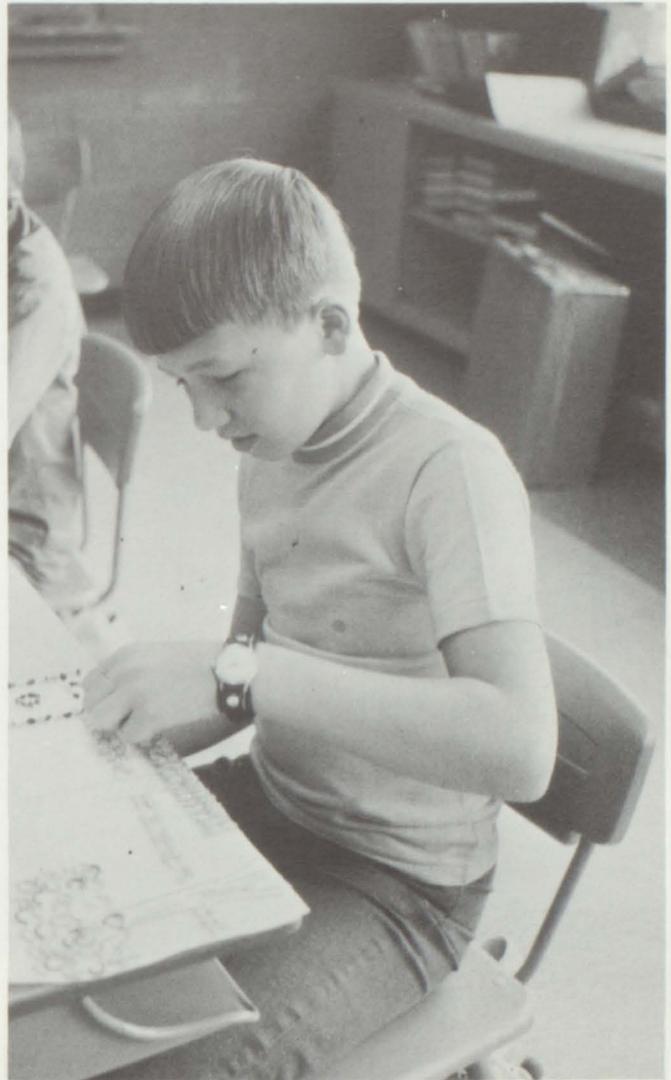

The winning row in the typing race will soon be revealed when Reggie Watson, Dennis Hollingsworth and Judy Meyer tally the scores.

Tissue paper promotes Christmas spirit

With each blow of the hammer, Randy Lee chips away more plaster from his future masterpiece.

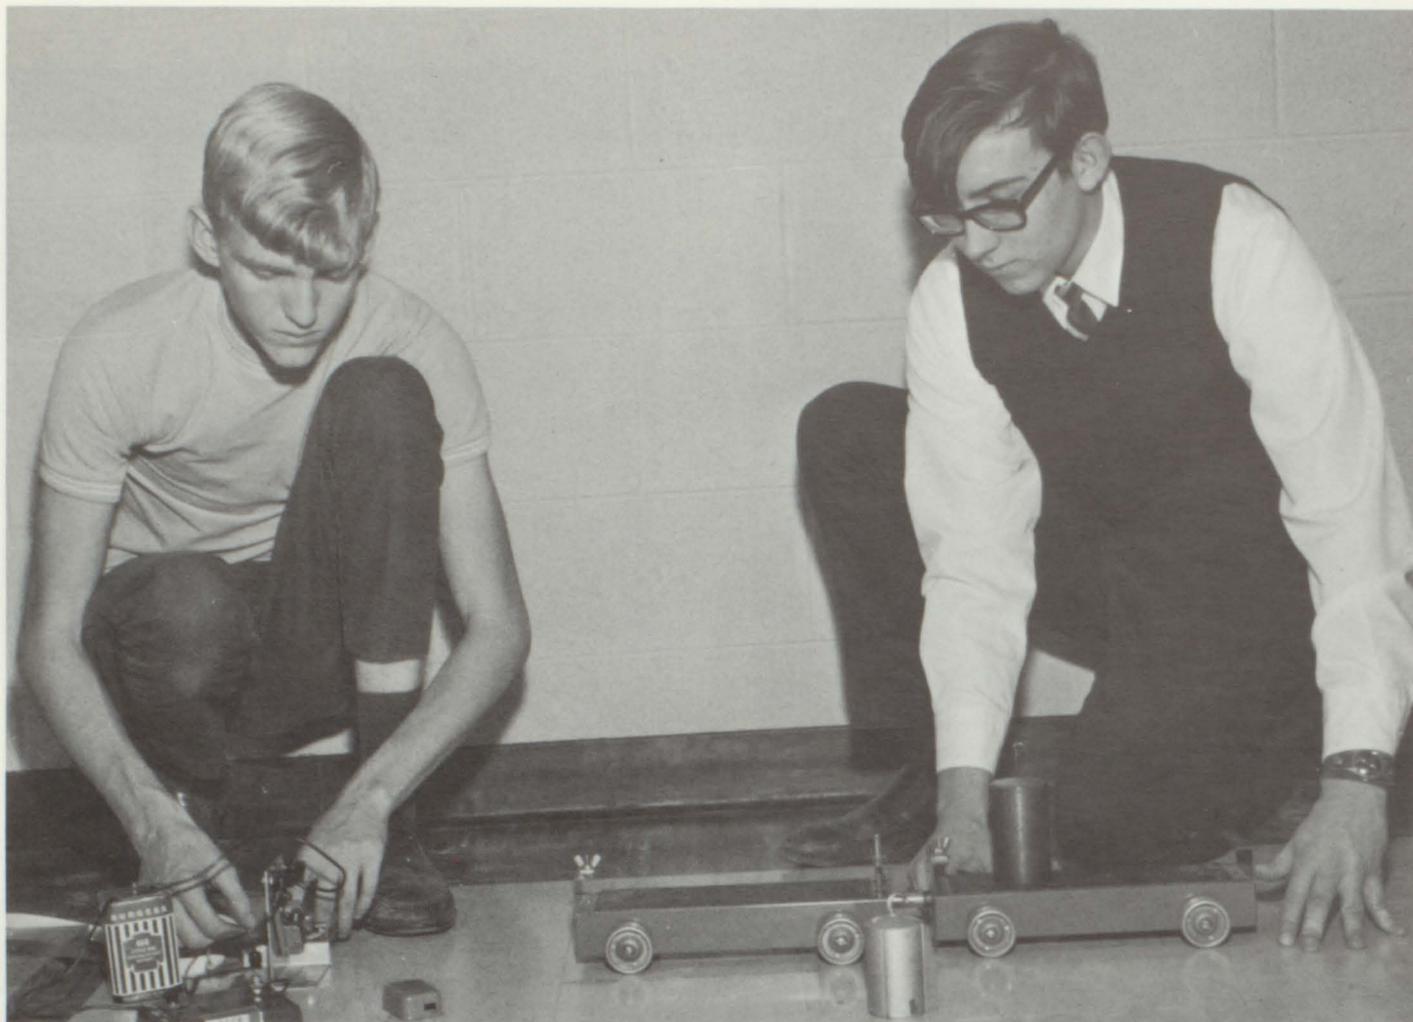

While carefully completing his mosaic, Scott Chesney realizes the pains an artist takes in his work.

As Christmas season draws near, art student Anne Neese decorates the school windows with colorful scenes made from tissue paper.

Physics is entertaining as well as educational for Mike Phelps and Bob Daily as they demonstrate the laws of momentum.

Students apply formulas and equations

With the specimen pinned neatly in place, Carol Crouch and Vicky Armstrong devote their full attention to Mr. Everett Webb as he indicates the position of a gizzard in an earthworm.

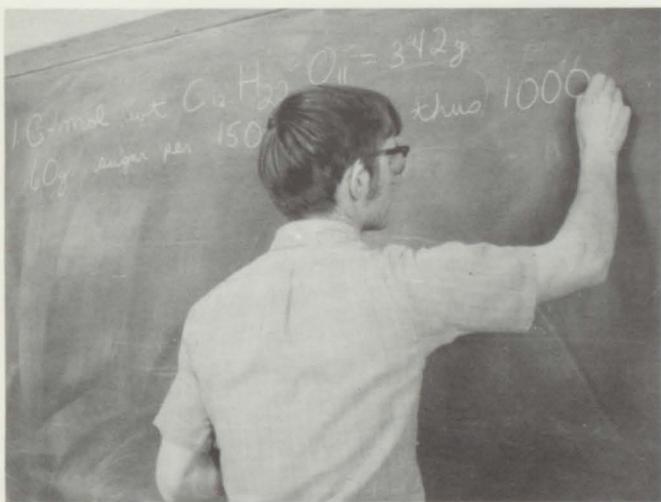

With one pull of the cardboard, Mr. Paul Carmony proves to Bobby Snelling that hot water is lighter than cold water.

Christy Bohlander and Jeff Cochran have found that two heads are better than one for solving difficult algebra problems.

to experiments

Calculating the freezing point of sugar in water, Bruce Broyles finds with the addition of sugar the freezing point is lowered and the boiling point is raised. How sweet it is!

No, they are not stealing the answers; government students Betty Reding and Dennis Joyner are filing their questions.

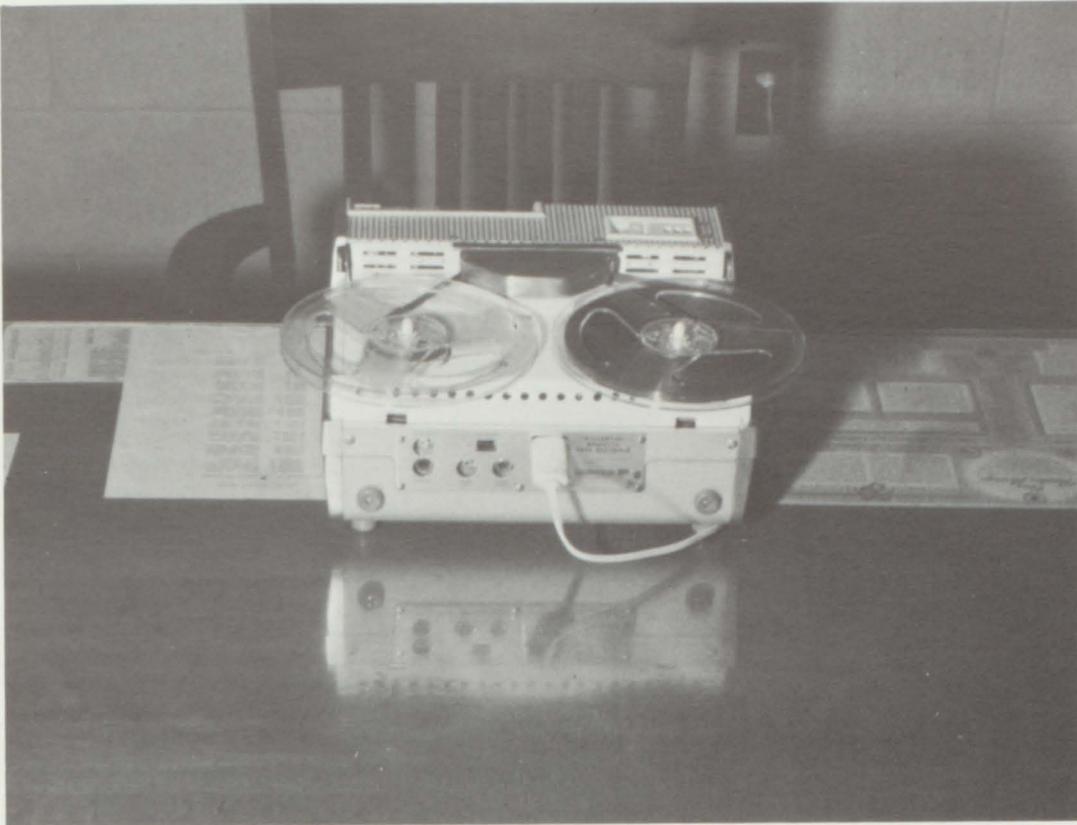

During world history class, Diantha Hull relates some of the gruesome details of the battles in The Conquest of New Spain.

New texts for

Economics students Julie Jarrett, Caryl Joyner and Barb Craib find that weekly work sheets aren't nearly as difficult when they work together.

Your mission, should you wish to pass, is a government test tomorrow. This lecture will self-destruct in five seconds.

social studies contain current topics

Deep in concentration, Randy Street tries to memorize the Declaration of Independence before the bell rings.

Teacher Mr. Ronald Rieman and shop student David King spread straw and sprinkle water on the newly poured sidewalk to keep it from cracking and drying out.

While it is held in the tight grip of the vise, Steve Swegman puts a smooth edge on the board.

Lee Hollingsworth and Danny Piercy combine their knowledge of car engines with their physical strength to remove the case cover from the crank shaft.

Excellent employment

Vocational classes promote domestic fundamentals

Debbie Blalock finds that careful sifting of flour is a very important step in making pie crusts.

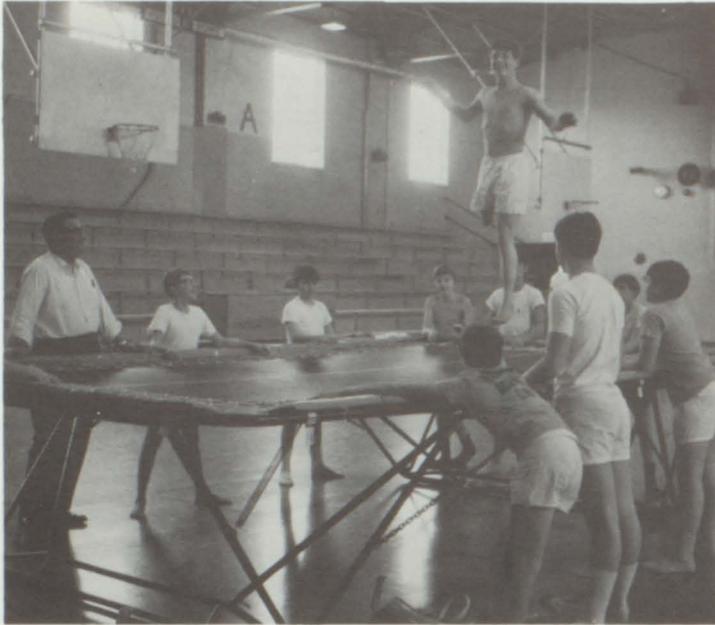

Unable to locate a bowl large enough to hold their dough, Zula Hollingsworth and Enola Larkin improvise with a bucket while making cookies for open house.

After mastering the ancient art of tea-making, Anne Neese and Teresa Lee prepare their brew for members of the class.

Trampoline instills sense of balance

As Randy Wallen and Doris Gibson work out on the trampoline, other classmates watch and anxiously await their turns.

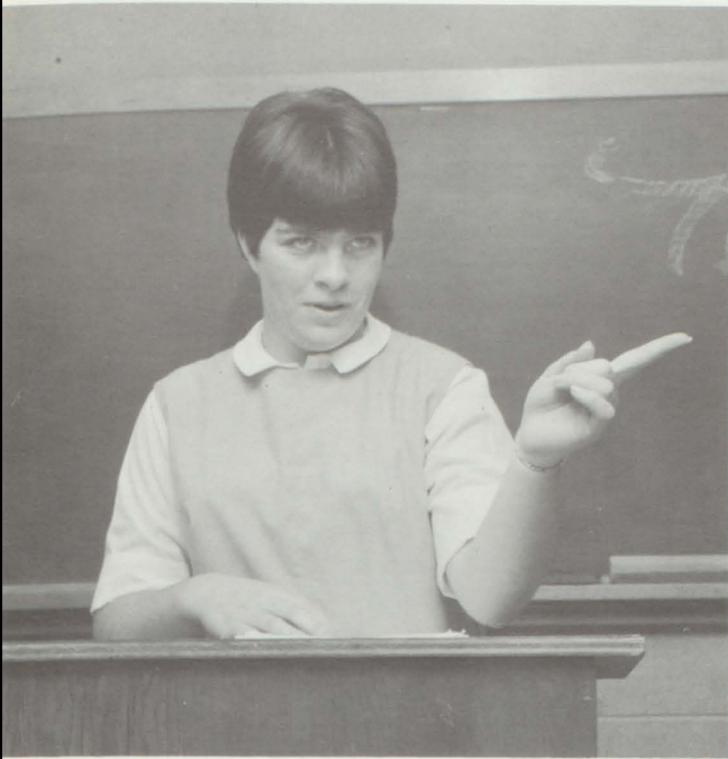

After doing three minutes of step-ups, Christy Bohlander takes a breather and checks her pulse count.

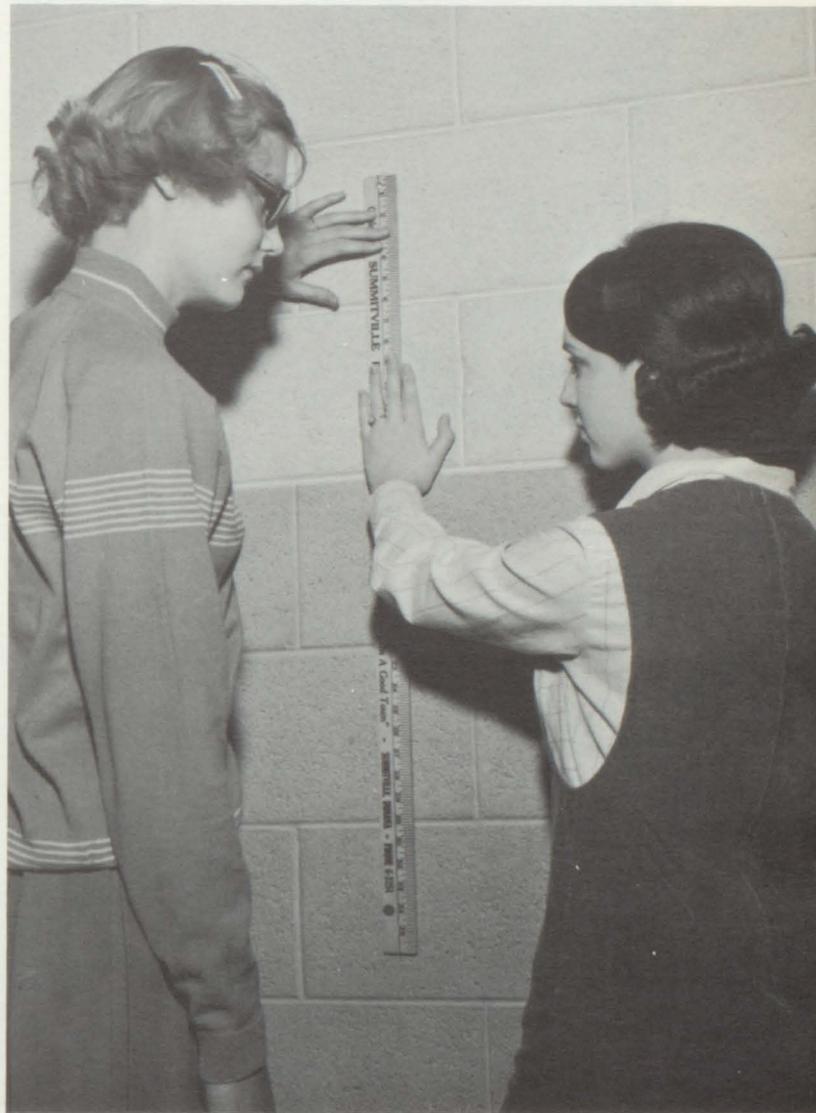

One last hit by Barbara Meyer brings a shriek of joy from Donna Carter as their team wins the volley ball game.

Psychology and health explore mind and body

Gaining experience in public speaking, psychology student Janet Williams emphasizes steps to more creative thinking.

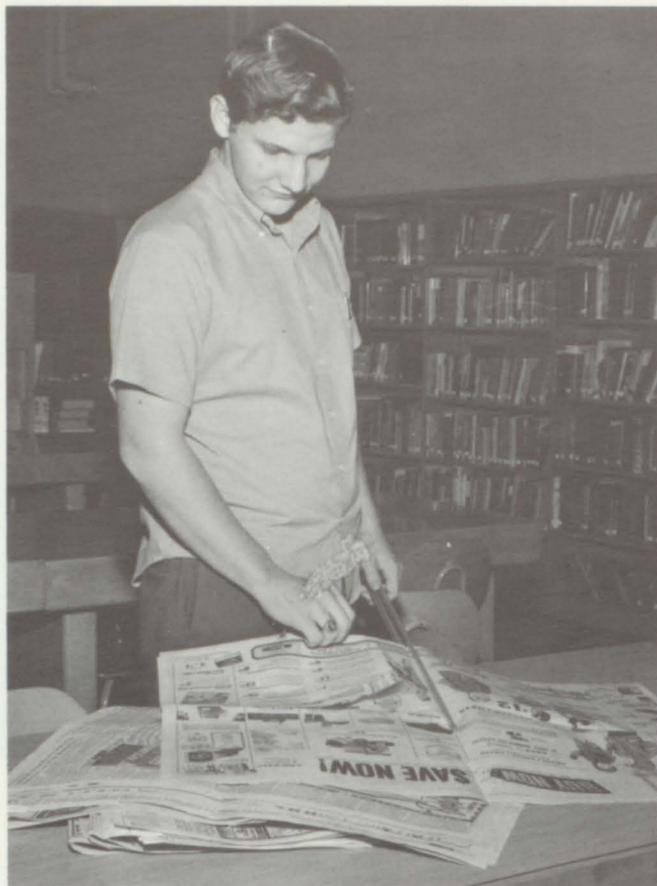

By stopping the yardstick as soon as Emily Miller releases it, Laura Smith measures the speed of her reflexes.

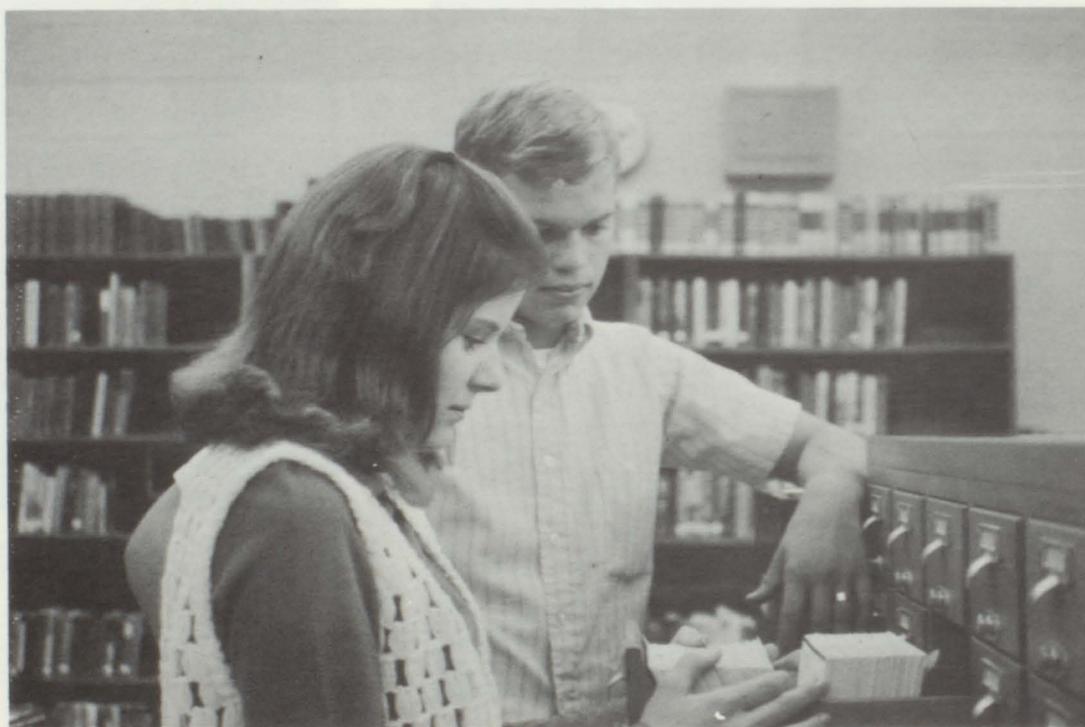

In health class, sophomore Diana Mills learns to perfect her posture by using a string dropped from the ceiling.

As the daily papers come in, Phil Petty's job is to arrange them for the readers' convenience.

At the book fair, sponsored by the library, Steve Beckley and Lu Ann Smith look over the selection of books on display.

Library hosts book fair at Summitville

Unfamiliar with library procedures, Tom Hiatt asks librarian Pat Smith for help in locating a book.

"Don't get carried away, this is only rehearsal!" pleads Charlie Massey to Carol Mahoney and Gail Ewing as they practice the one act "Sunstroke."

Electives allow students to pursue interests

As she tries to persuade a student to finish his lunch, Jean Barnett learns some of the problems a teacher encounters.

Rhonda Idlewine bites her lip as she comes within inches of a scraped fender while attempting to park the car.

Through the uniting of people, north and south campuses become one. The broad spectrum of personalities merge through many avenues of expression. Teachers commute between schools, bringing unique variations to the classrooms. From laryngitis after the Argyll games to mass harmony of the choir, we plunge into the world of involvement. By mingling at the aftergame dances, or munching at the Spanish Club party, we develop new friends. We taste the bitterness of losing the tourney championship, and realize the work involved in a "marching" band. As we share this year together, share the laughter and the sadness, the friendships and the activities, the successes and the defeats, we are ready to form one body of people—Madison-Grant High School.

M-G administration develops harmony and efficiency

After a busy day, Superintendent Harold Dick and Madison-Grant Principal Merrill Holloway relax with a cup of coffee.

Bi-monthly board meetings at the administrative office in Fairmount find the members, Myron Peacock, Jr., Carl Craib, Dean Hiatt, Secretary Wilma Roth, Superintendent Harold Dick, Max Leisure, Administrative Assistant Don Inglis, Maurice Pierce, Chet Mann, and Don Hanes, discussing details for the Madison-Grant High School.

Students find a reliable leader and an understanding friend in Mr. Robert Absher, principal of Summitville School.

Administrative Assistant, Don Inglis, is a familiar face to students and faculty at Summitville.

Filling out a class schedule isn't as difficult as it first seemed to seventh grader, Randy Mason, when Mr. Robert Absher explains the procedure.

As the doors swing open for another school year, so opens a year of new activities filled with memories of the past. Former Baker's Dozen members are challenged as they strive for the coveted positions that Special K's offers. The music department selects a new style of uniforms and eagerly awaits the shiny, brilliant costumes which will display the black and gold insignia. Within a year's span, the Summitville High School cheerblock takes on a new name and becomes known as the Madison-Grant cheerblock. Cheerleaders don plaid kilts to carry out the Argyll theme. Spanish Club members enjoy sharing projects and parties with new faces from the North Campus. Present activities pave the way for future ones at Madison-Grant High School.

The sports' world is altered this year by the combining of people to strengthen the expanded athletic program. Goblins and Quakers form one loyalty as the Madison-Grant Argylls and make their debut in the Mid-Indiana Conference. Baseball sets the stage with the diamond men posting a 6-7 record, while Coach Jim Stone's harriers sprint to a 9-2 season. As the leaves begin to fall, pigskins start flying, and football arises as a new phase in the sports' sphere. Spirit runs high, reaching a peak as basketball emerges with the flashy Argylls making the century mark time after time. The endeavors of coaches, players, and managers hush the opponents' sneers about the "Argylls" and establish a winning, competitive tradition at Madison-Grant.

Stopping a drive, the Argyll squad instinctively seeks to bring this Warrior down to earth.

Being the target of a gang tackle, Dennis Buroker decides that this play isn't worth it all.

Running the down-and-out pattern, Roy McCarter nabs the football and heads for the goal line.

nabs county tourney crown

Three Argyll players converge on an unsuspecting ball.

Snaring a crucial rebound, Charlie Little, aided by Robert Holloway, attempts a follow-up shot.

Senior Mike Waller averages 12.7 rebounds and 20.1 points per contest.

Depth proves to be backbone of high flying Argylls

Tim Dailey shoots over the Argyll defender Doug Holloway.

John Blake's effort to out-muscle Dave Phillips for a precious rebound results in a jump ball.

After a sneaky steal from Tom Holmes, Charlie Massey scores an easy lay-up on a fastbreak.

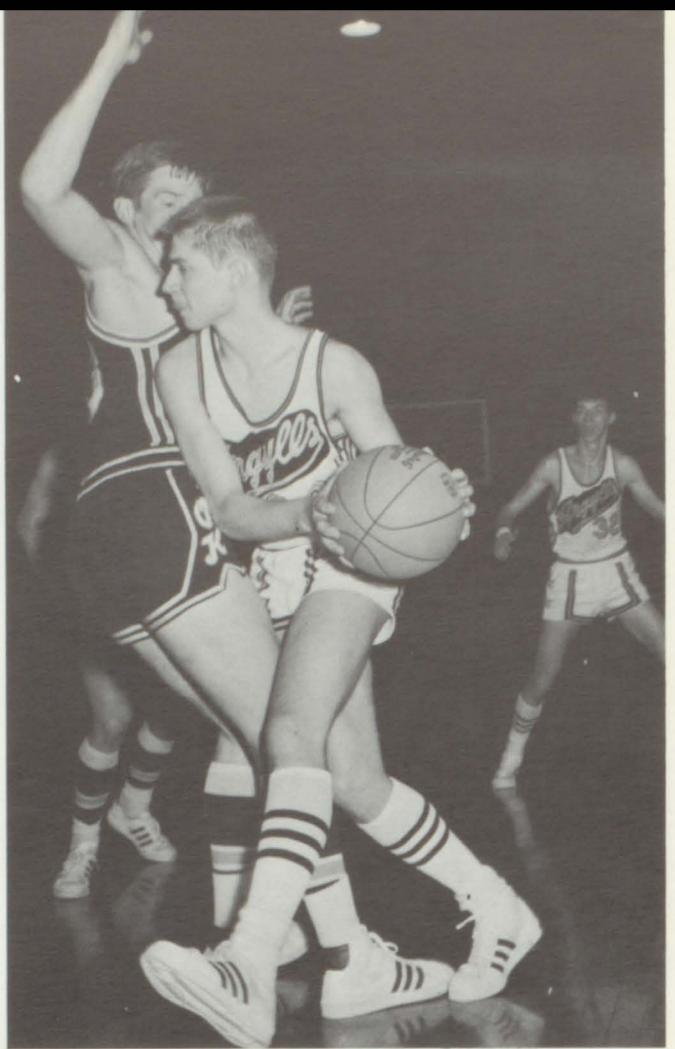

Coach Everett Webb and Athletic Director Paul Davis confer on up-to-date Argyll equipment.

Holloway, an Argyll in need, draws the attention of teammates Davis, McCarter, and Waller.

78-66 sectional finale closes
Argyll debut

The ball control of Larry Davis shakes opponent's defense.

The Argylls' most avid supporters observe with intense interest.

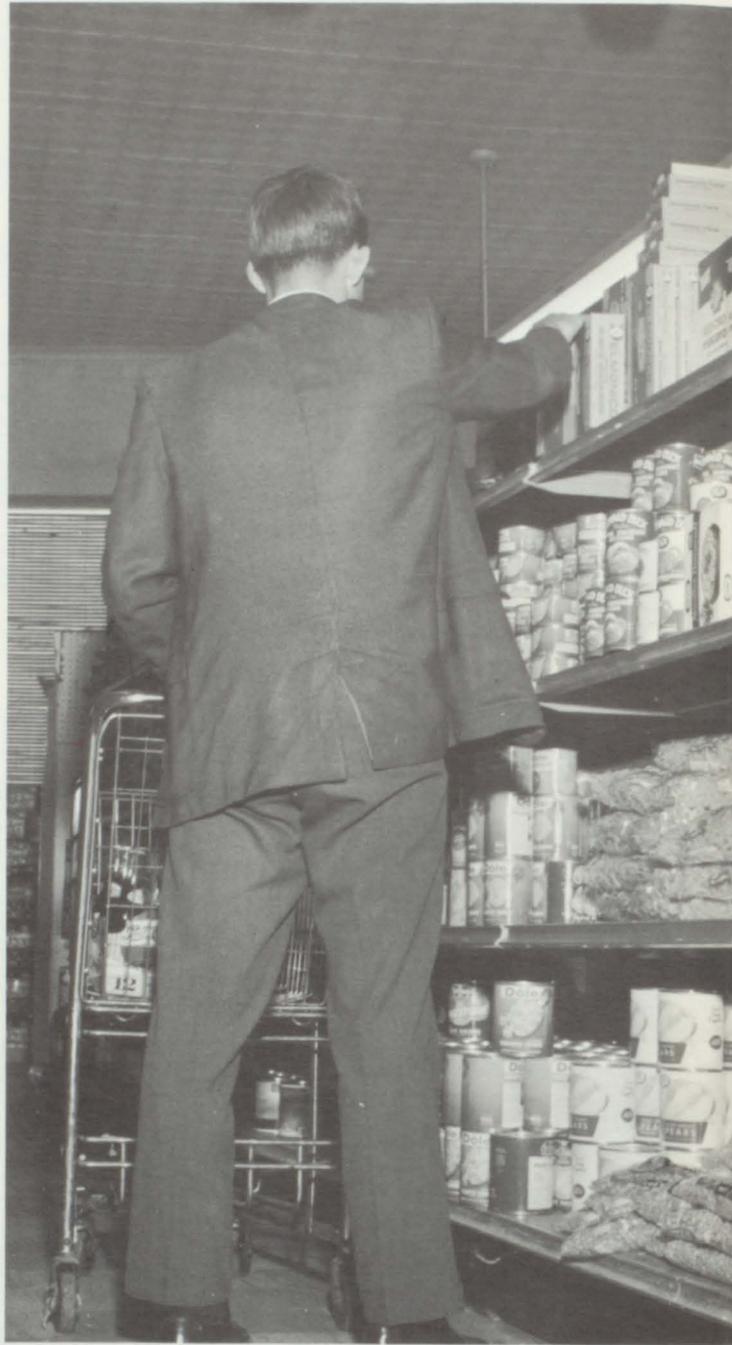

Grappling bodies struggle for position under the boards, while Larry Davis ambles along.

Frustrated Blake attempts to snatch the ball from an Eagle.

Guarding becomes simple when two Argylls sandwich a helpless Eagle.

Although many changes have occurred in the Summitville area since the beginning of the century, some of the most radical variations have taken place in the field of advertising. Storekeepers used to rely on the praise of others to sell their goods, but they now hire agencies for the specific purpose of informing the public. These firms have all kinds of "gimmicks" to help sell products. They run from commercials on radio and television to writing vapor messages in the sky. In Summitville, the merchants use radio, newspaper, and the school yearbook to communicate with a customer in his own language. These new trends illustrate the transitions in advertising.

would this be fair?

How would you like to play a basketball game with your opponents allowed a lower basket? Because of their poorer playing ability, the officials explain, this is only fair. You'd holler, wouldn't you?

Ridiculous, of course, but is it so farfetched? Karl Marx had such a theory, and Communism preaches this kind of doctrine.

Even some of our "big government" planners and bureaucrats think nothing of penalizing the good business players to aid the others.

In a true free enterprise business system, no one gets a lower basket. Anyone may play the game, but each wins or loses on his own merits. You don't get a "lower basket," nor is your competition given an advantage.

At I&M, we have grown and created new jobs by serving our customers better. By being a little "better players," we have developed ways of generating and delivering electricity and provided improved electric service at the lowest possible cost.

Education is a gas.

It lights up dark places.

It lifts your sights.

It inflates the ego.

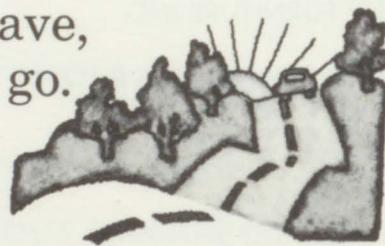

Not everybody likes it.

But nobody goes far without it.

And the more you have,
the farther you can go.

We hope you'll keep going with your education. And, when the time comes, you'll think about Delco-Remy as a good place to work.

Acknowledgements

Progress is perpetual as ideas constantly change with time. We have tried to freeze the uniqueness of this year in our book. However, we realize that no amount of copy writing, picture cropping, or photographer prodding could squeeze all the worthwhile changes into one edition. We hope that the mere glance at a face, picture, or caption will bring back to mind a whole set of events and emotions, whether important or insignificant. In closing, we wish to thank Mrs. Patricia Phelps, who left our hallowed halls but not our headlines; Mr. Larry Glaze, whose hamburgers lifted our stomachs as well as our spirits during those long Monday evenings; and the main characters of our production—the students of Summitville.
