Taking a break away from the computers, seniors Zach Wright, Matt Mason, and Travis Harris give thumbs up to BCA class during sixth period. "BCA is wonderful! I enjoy spending what seems like hours refining my computer skills, and the good times I have with my fellow students is great," commented Matt.

Recollecting Our Friends

Hawaiian Day was a change this year instead of the usual "Black, Gold, and White Day." People wore outfits from flowered shirts to grass skirts like senior Maxwell Shutt's outfit. Showing off a lot of school spirit is just one of the many factors that made him Homecoming king.

Smiling for the camera, junior Shawnzy Howard shows off her purple hair on punk/crazy hair day. She was very involved during Homecoming week as she dressed up everyday. She also liked to show her school spirit in the hallways, at lunch, or anywhere with her friends.

Attempting to look buff, senior Andy Stanley flexes during sixth period while he is busy being an office assistant. Andy spends many long hours in the school weight room. "Lifting weights gives me a warm, fuzzy feeling inside and helps me capture my inner light," stated Andy.

Enjoying choir class, freshman Megan Shull smiles during her seventh period class. "I like choir because I don't have to think very much; I just sing. My favorite part about being a freshman is that I don't have some of the responsibilities that the upper classmen have," added Megan.

Taking time out from a busy day, Mrs. Shock took another approach to farmer's day and dressed up as a cow. This is just one of the many wild outfits she has. On her wardrobe, Mrs. Shock stated, "I think it's good to be different and an individual. But the 'different' has to be within the boundaries."

Known as the circle of friends: Zach Wright, Adessa Spangler, Shannon Compton, Eric Deines, Nicole Skinner, Jason Dickey, Annie Stackhouse, Jenny Dickey, and Justin Tobey hang out during first semester "A" lunch. It was tradition for the group of seven seniors and two sophomores to relax in the gym after enjoying a delicious school lunch.

In Miss Harbin's second period genetics class seniors (front row) Chris Seybert, April Vickery, Stephanie Sullivan, Shannon Compton, Trent Hockersmith, (back row) Eric Deines and Tiffany Allen show their school spirit by wearing blue, which was the senior class color during homecoming week on "color my world" day.

During the football season, the student council and class officers sold paper footballs to raise money for "Jerry's Kids". Student body president, Max Shutt and student body vice president, Jenny Dickey stand in front of the large poster, showing off all the footballs student council members and class officers collected. Before the season was over, the amount of footballs had doubled.

Getting her groove on senior Shannon Compton busts a move with her friends during the Sadie Hawkins dance held in November.

After getting the best time in the obstacle course, senior Eric Gonzales gets escorted off the field on the shoulders of fellow classmates. The obstacle course consisted of things such as running through tires and a 50-yard dash. Though they got first in the obstacle course, the seniors came in second in the whole Homecoming competition.

The leaves were used for a fun picture mocking a scene from the movie Braveheart. "Being a senior isn't all it's cracked up to be! You have too many deadlines and not enough time to enjoy your last year," commented Nicole.

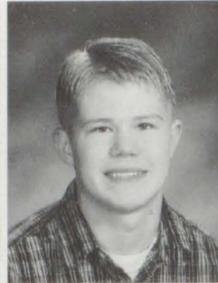

"At first I felt like the tooth fairy, but it grew on me, and I no longer had that feeling," explained senior Curt Haisley. This was the first year the boys had to have some form of identification as a Homecoming attendant. In spite of his Homecoming scepter, Curt participated in punk day.

Rube-Goldberg Team: Members- Charlie Reff, Tim Baughman, John Baker. The goal of the Rube-Goldberg contest is to build a machine that can do a job in 20 steps or MORE! This year, the team had to fill a jar with models of the 20th century, and then seal the jar. The Madison-Grant Rube-Goldberg team built a machine that completed this task successfully, the two required times, in under 9 minutes. Their machine did not need any human help! This got them 4th at the Regional competition at Pendleton Heights.

Enjoying his P.A.T. (Preferred Activity Time) activity, junior Ryan Burris concentrates on carving a headless horseman design out of his pumpkin during Mrs. Solm's 4th period basic art class. "I think P.A.T. time is a great way to get your mind off of all the work you have to do for other classes," added Ryan.

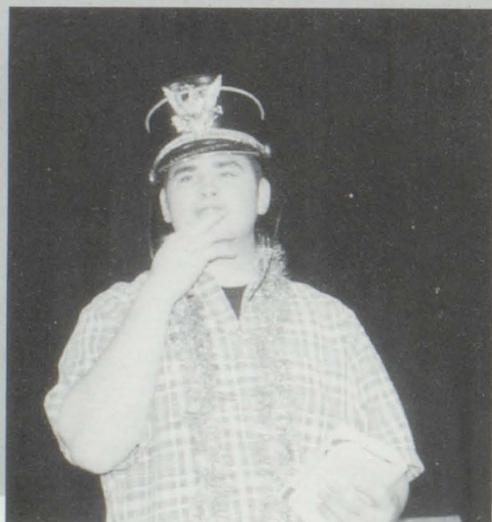

Finishing up a worksheet, freshman Leigha Cogdell smiles as she thinks to herself what she will be doing after school during her seventh period Mrs. Burnett's Academic English 9 class. "Mrs. Burnett is a good teacher; she makes English easy to understand," added Leigha.

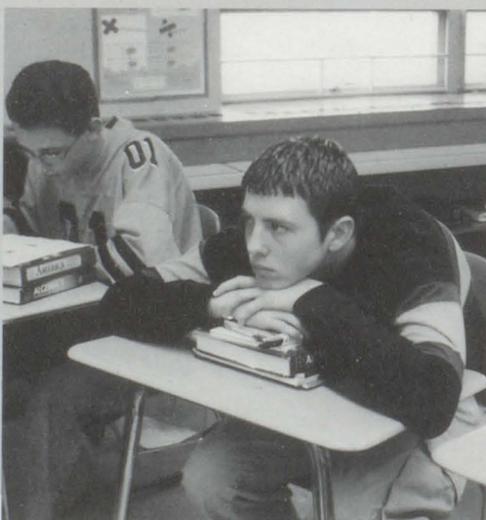

Figuring the problem out, senior Brooke Huntzinger starts on a calculus problem during her 7th period class. Brooke was supporting school spirit as she wore her pajamas all day for Homecoming. "Calculus is my favorite class because math is my favorite subject, and the people in my class make it fun," stated Brooke.

Reflecting Our Knowledge

Trying to remember his lines, senior Zach Wright plays the character Marcellus in the Shakespeare play Hamlet during Mrs. Herring's 5th hour Academic English 12 class. "If it wasn't for Deines and Tobey helping me with my lines, I would have totally failed that play," stated Zach.

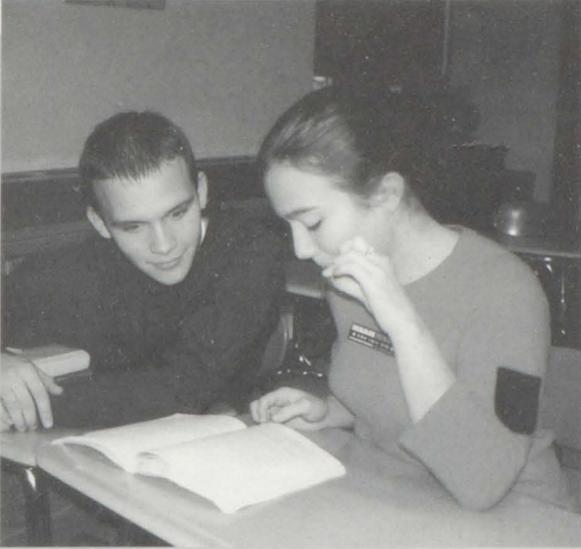

Resting his head on his books, sophomore Kyle Scott packs up his stuff early as he does everyday in Mr. Wilson's 7th period Algebra 1 class. "I think math is boring, probably because I am not any good at it," stated Kyle.

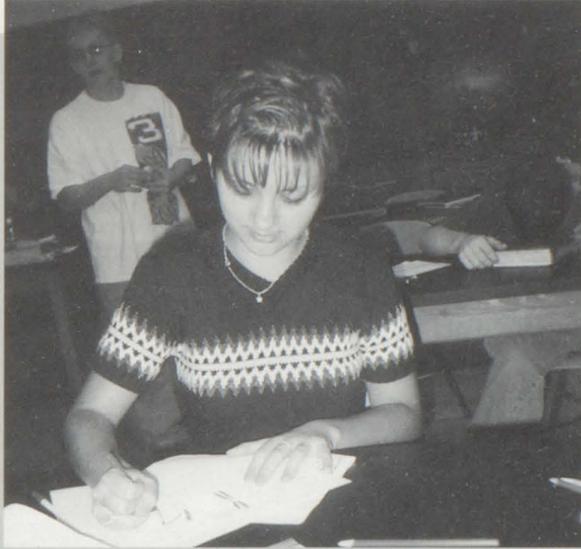

In complete concentration, sophomore Stephanie Tomlinson focuses on a very complicated quiz given by Mrs. Haviland during her 5th period English 10 class.

Obviously not getting enough quality time at home, senior big brother Jesse Lainhart helps little sister Sara Lainhart with a question during Mrs. Herring's 7th period vocabulary class. "Not only is Sara my sister, but she is my friend and I love her very much," stated Jesse.

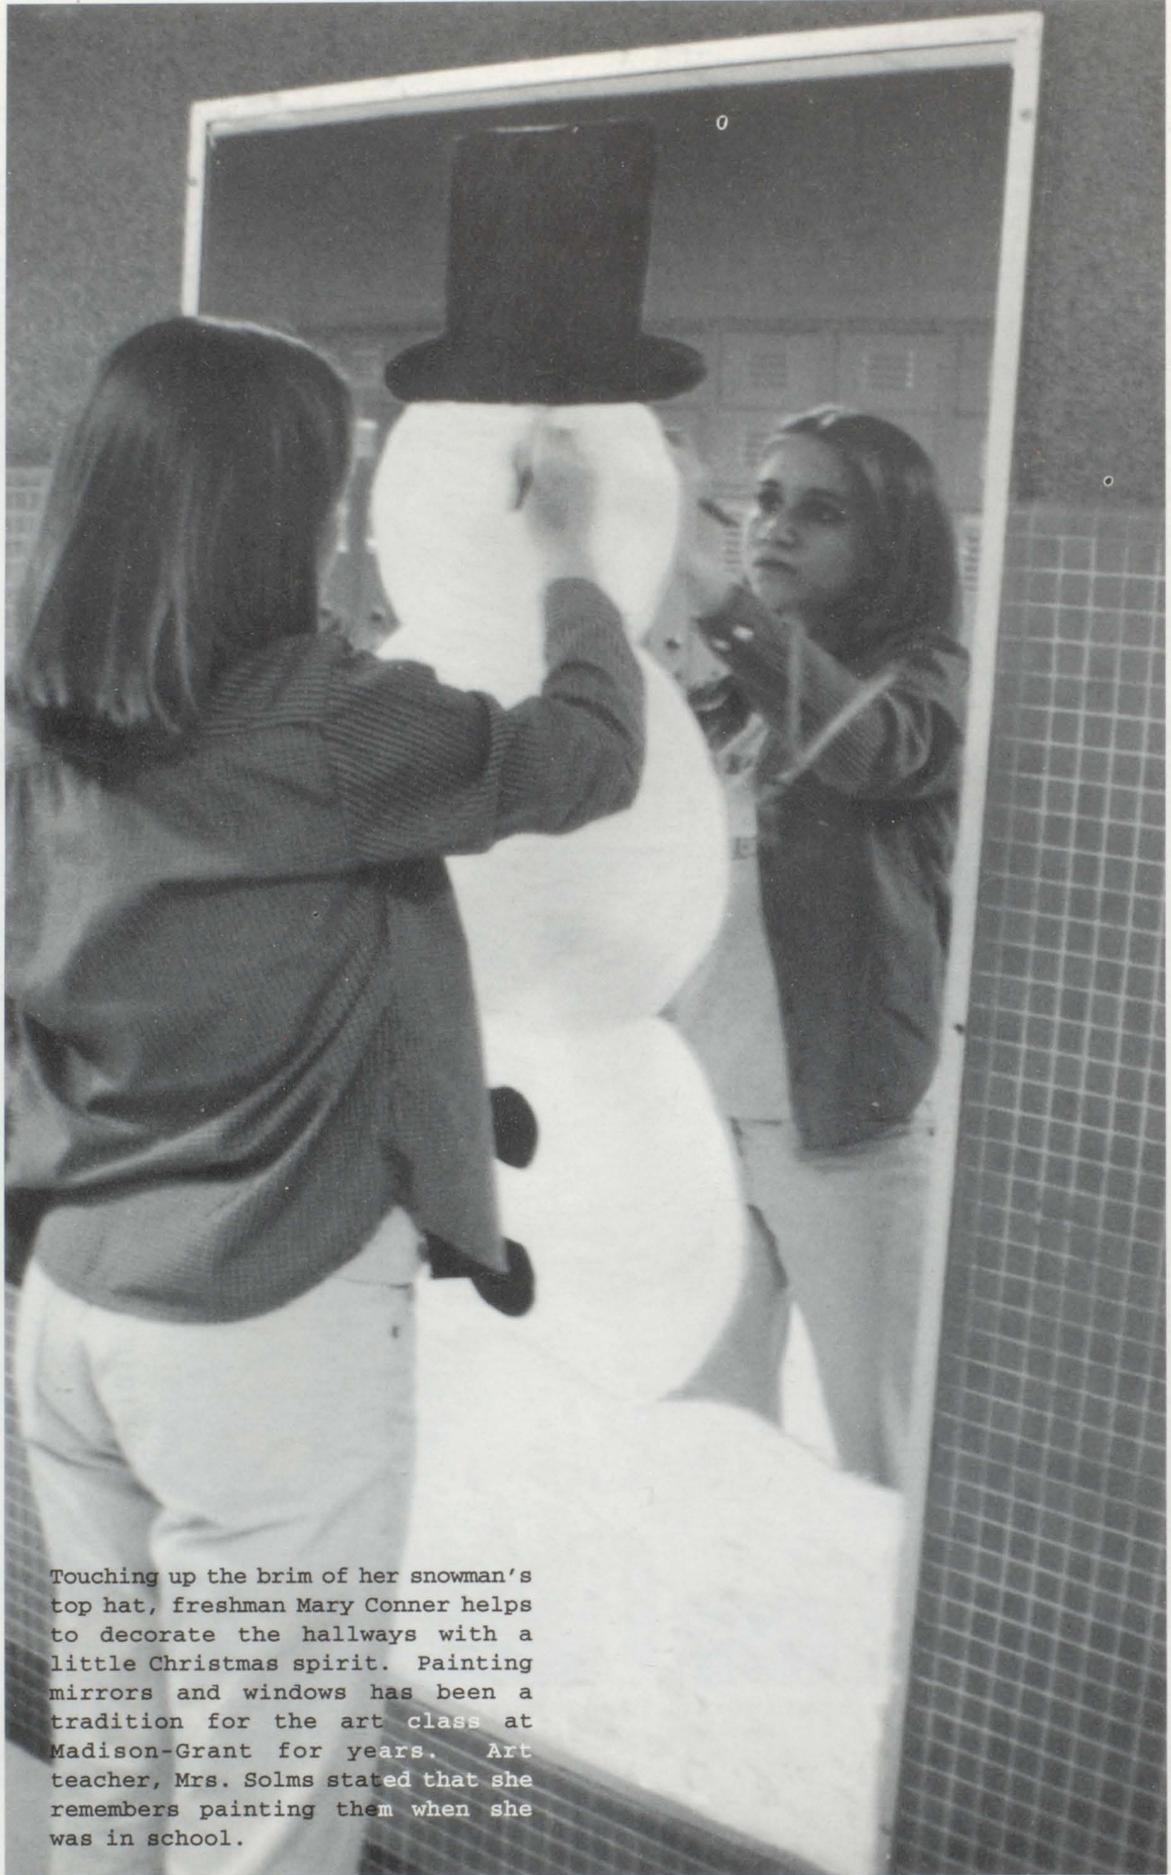

Coloring in her phases of meiosis, freshman Lindsay Jones concentrates on staying in the lines during her 5th period Ms. Harbin's biology class. "I really liked biology. Ms. Harbin made the class really creative and enjoyable," said Lindsay.

Enjoying her brand new chair, French teacher Mrs. Phipps poses with her French III students after returning from seeing a French play. "We really enjoy having Mrs. Phipps as a teacher and we wanted to show her by getting her something she wanted for Christmas," said junior Sara Stephenson.

Touching up the brim of her snowman's top hat, freshman Mary Conner helps to decorate the hallways with a little Christmas spirit. Painting mirrors and windows has been a tradition for the art class at Madison-Grant for years. Art teacher, Mrs. Solms stated that she remembers painting them when she was in school.

Finishing up on her painting, junior Jackie Ketring adds the final details to her candle. The art classes spent days painting the pictures on the windows all around the school. M-G students have been painting on the windows for over 20 years.

Adding details to his colored-pencil drawing of a tree frog, senior Jared Payne works hard in his third hour Drawing III class. "Art keeps me busy. I'm constantly in the library looking for a new subject to draw and paint," commented Jared.

Applying some black outline to her Christmas tree, senior Charlene Mockobee adds finishing touches to her painting. The hallways are decorated like this all over the school, when the art classes get into the Christmas spirit.

Carving her pumpkin for art class, senior Angela Cisney scoops out the seeds from her pumpkin. Carving pumpkins was a project for the art class. It turned out to be a good way for the art students to show off their creative talents.

Getting started on her painting, freshman Ashley Compton concentrates on staying between the lines. After she was finished, this small spot of blue transformed into a giant Christmas ornament. "I really don't like art that much, because I'm really not good at it, but I had to take something," commented Ashley.

Anticipating the arrival of the annual James Dean Festival, art club officers Aftan Pierce, Kelly Monahan, and Christina Short, painted pictures at the Outpost Restaurant. The pictures were 50's based and/or related to Fairmount. In total, the girls spent thirty hours painting.

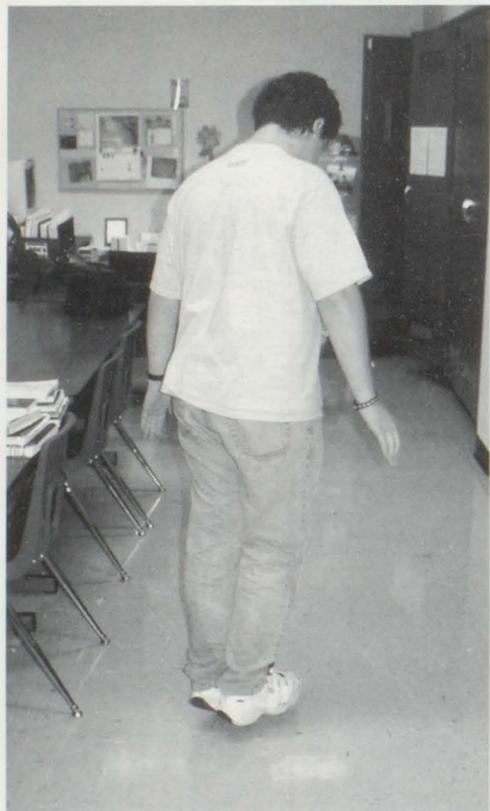

"I took clothing class because it's fun and relaxing," said sophomore Rachel Butcher. Matching up her edges, Rachel prepares to sew together two pieces of fabric. She is making a pillow for English teacher Mrs. Herring.

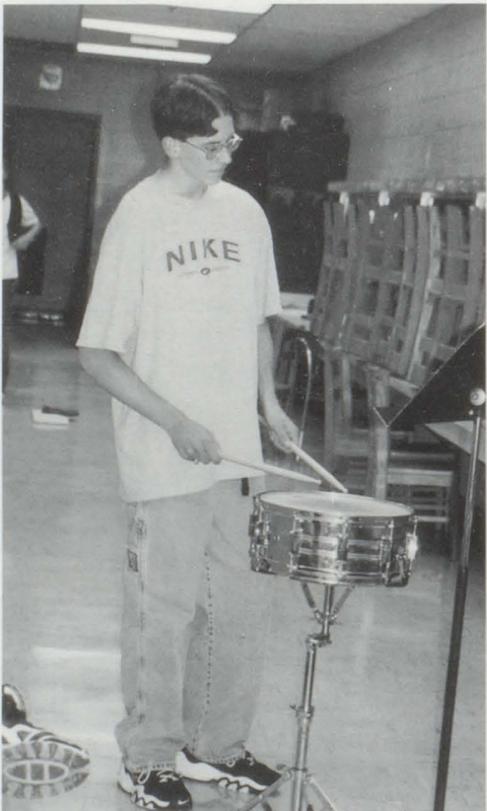

Getting a little assistance from science teacher Mr. Martin, seniors Shannon Compton and Morgan Rhett study the characteristics of bacteria through a microscope during their 6th period microbiology class. "Don't take microbiology. You'll be afraid to breathe by the end of the course," commented Morgan.

Competing for votes seniors Lee Ross, Priscilla Harrington, Aaron Solms, Stephanie Randol, and Jennifer Jones play the game, 'Hat in the Ring' during 2nd period government class. "Playing the game 'Hat in the Ring' made me realize how difficult the election process was," stated Jennifer.

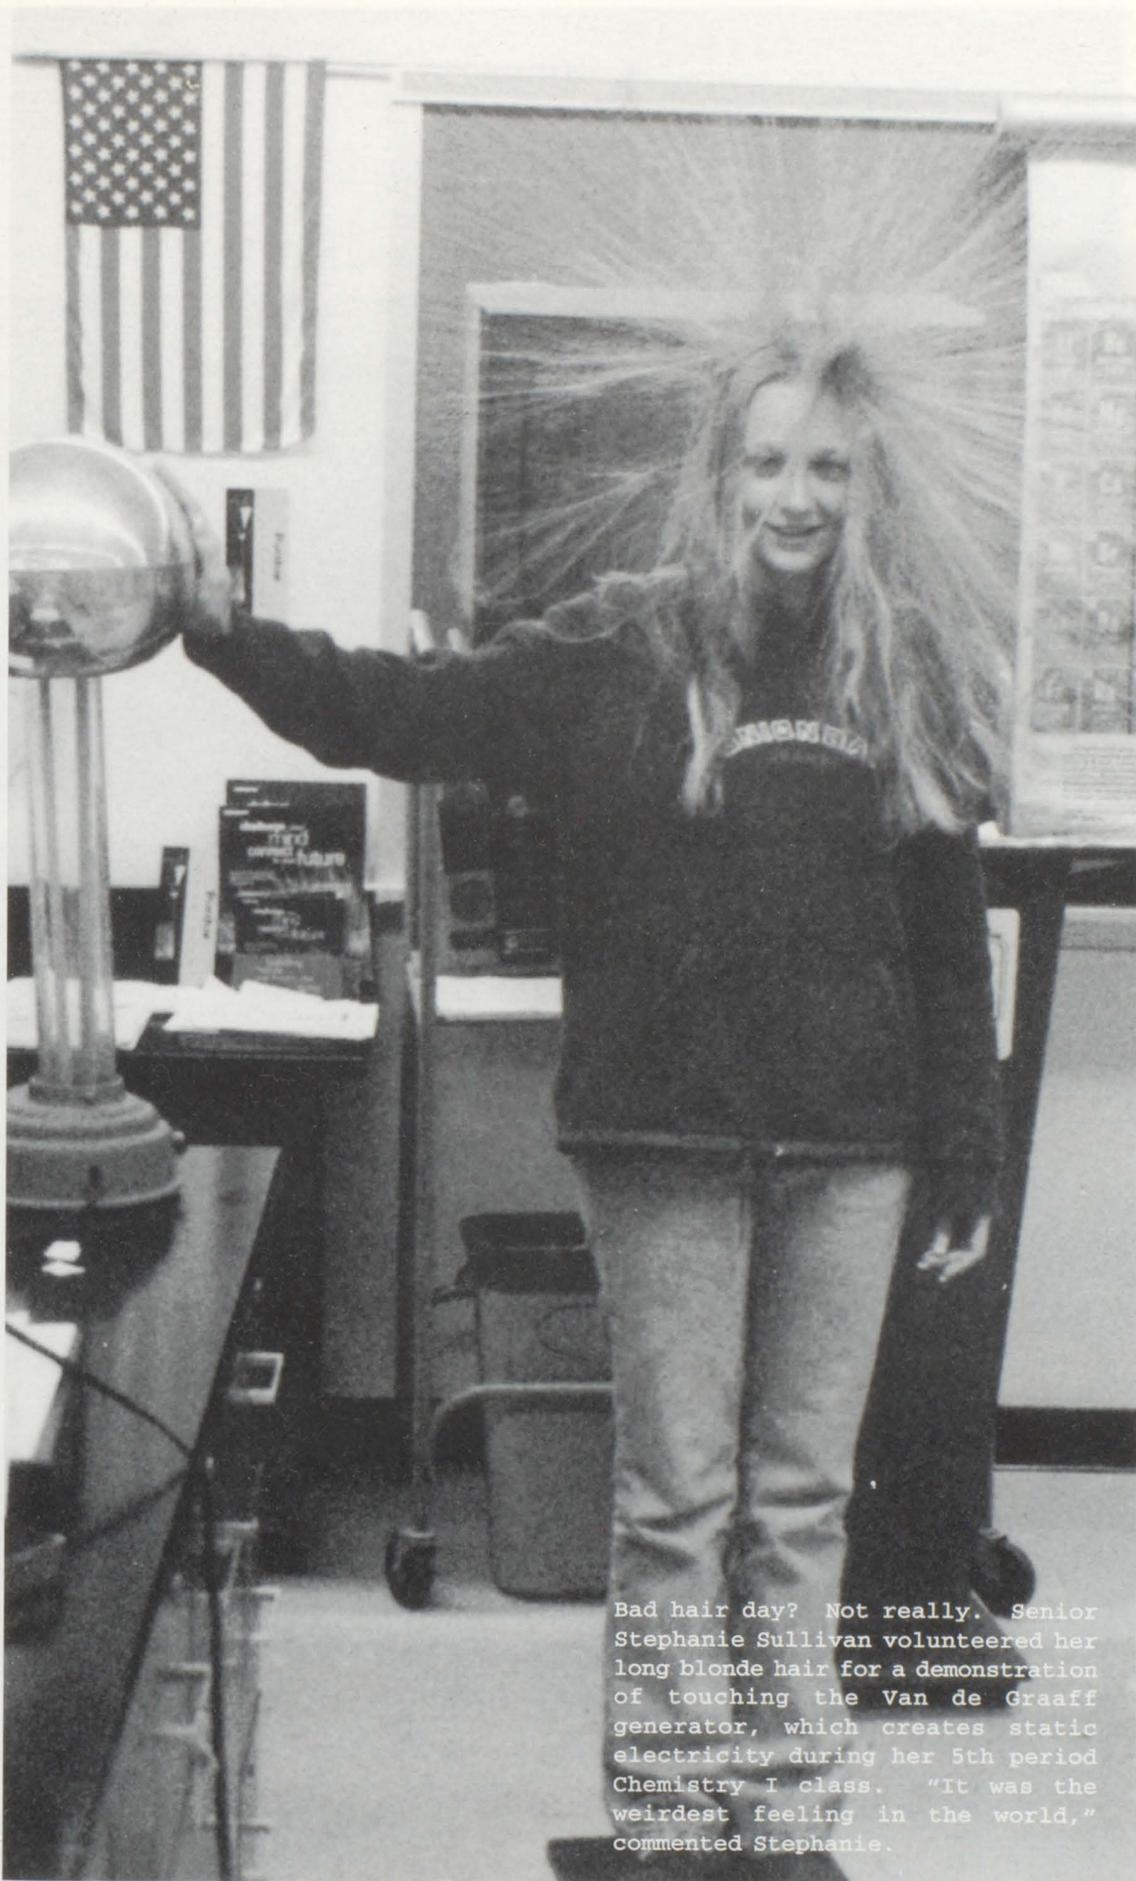

Is senior Brandon Whitmore really levitating? That's how it appeared to students placed to the rear and off to the side, as he said he would need to have complete concentration. "There's nothing mystical about it. It's all a bunch of simple tricks and nonsense," stated Brandon. The 6th period Psychology Class was studying E.S.P.

"I like band because it is fun and I enjoy playing the drums," said junior Donald Fields. During his 6th period band class, Donald was concentrating pretty hard on his music for a playing test. He was being recorded as he played for a grade.

Really acting out the role of his character, senior Eric Deines plays Horatio for the Shakespeare play Hamlet during his 5th period academic English class "Since Hamlet was the most boring play ever, we made it a little more interesting by dressing like complete weirdos," commented Eric.

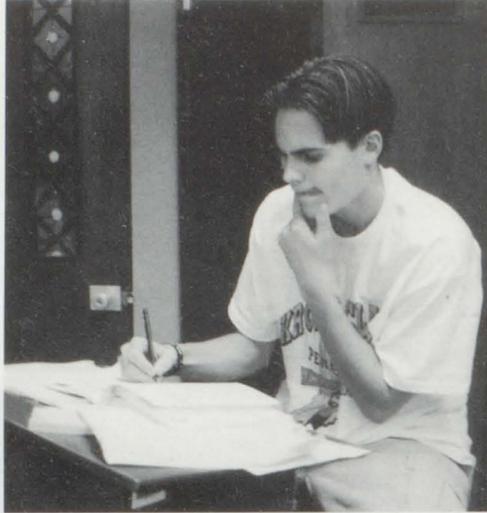

Bad hair day? Not really. Senior Stephanie Sullivan volunteered her long blonde hair for a demonstration of touching the Van de Graaff generator, which creates static electricity during her 5th period Chemistry I class. "It was the weirdest feeling in the world," commented Stephanie.

Sophomore Lesley Jamieson works quickly and quietly as she fills in her Spanish workbook. The workbooks come in handy because with every new chapter comes new Spanish vocabulary which can be put in the workbooks for easy reference.

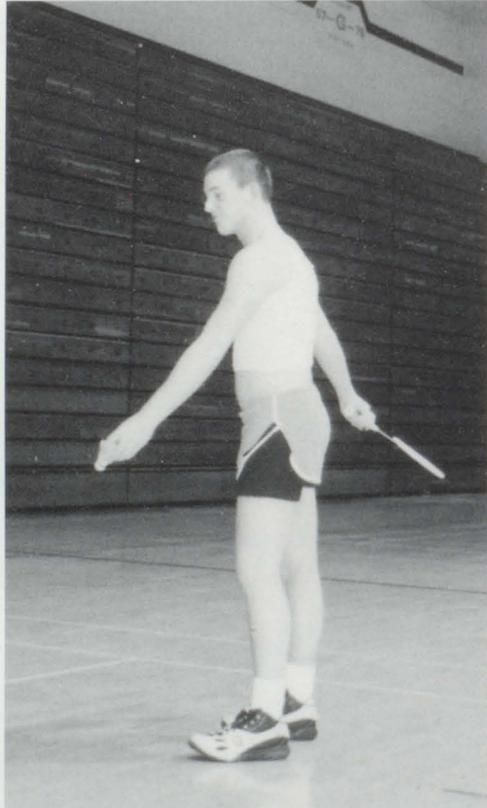

Junior Brock Meyer is thinking long and hard about all the words going through his head in Mrs. Herring's vocabulary class. "I want everyone to know that Rodin's The Thinker is not just in France anymore," laughed Brock.

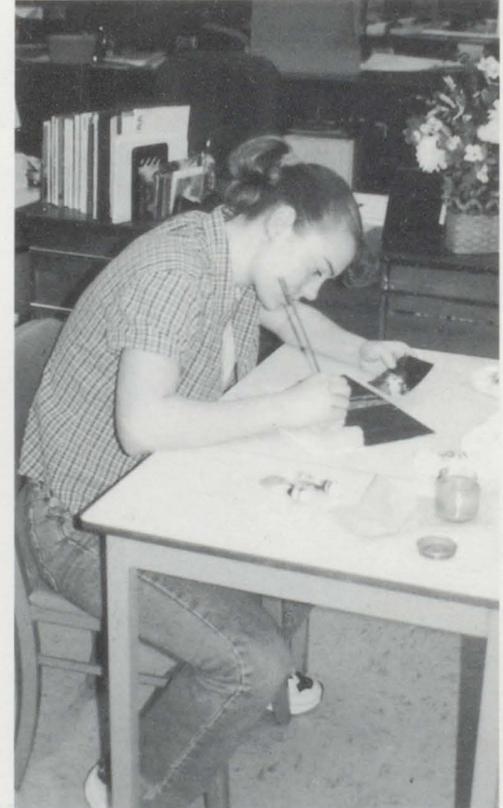

Using her free times wisely, senior Kristy Carmany reads the next two chapters in The Virginian, the book assigned to Mrs. Herring's English 12 students. Kristy comes to school only one period a day because she attends Tucker Vocational School, works, and takes a college computer/keyboarding class at Ivy Tech.

In Mr. Hunter's seventh period math class, freshman Josh Webster hurries to get his fractions worksheet done so he won't have homework. "I really like this class because Mr. Hunter is pretty cool. The class is small so if we have a problem or a question, Mr. Hunter is always ready to help," explained Josh.

Breaking a sweat in advanced P.E., junior Zach Harrold gets ready to serve the birdie over the net during a very exciting and competitive game of badminton. "I enjoy being with all the fellas in gym class. It's a really fun class because we have a lot of freedom," commented Zach.

During a free period, junior Aftan Pierce quietly finishes her work for Mrs. Solms' painting class. Aftan works for Mrs. Solms' painting class. Aftan works for some of her drawings and paintings she has done. One of the awards she has received was the first place trophy from the Garfield art contest during James Dean Days.

In Mrs. Herring's English 11 class, junior Ashley Street is quietly reading The Crucible. "I really like Mrs. Herring. I learn a lot in her class because she is a great teacher," commented Ashley.

"Typin' ain't easy," exclaimed freshman Evan Joyner. Doing a three-minute timed writing for Mr. Smedley's keyboarding class. Evan concentrated hard and typed fast in order to get a decent grade for the day.

Junior Michael LaPierre works on his vocabulary for marketing. "Being able to go to the library during study hall is a great thing and I enjoy it. I just wish I could go to the library as many times a week as I want or need," commented Michael.

Being tested over The Virginian, senior Stephanie Vector tries to recall what she has read. "Mrs. Herring assigns several chapters to read each night and reviews the next day. Reviewing the pages we have read really helps me understand the book better," stated Stephanie.

During free day in Foods II, junior Corey Chambers constantly stirs his kitchen's burrito filling. Corey's group brought in food to make burritos. "It was an interesting free day. I just wish the burritos tasted better," commented Corey.

Making it a group project, juniors and seniors help provide answers to their crossword puzzle in Mrs. Clevenger's housing class. Senior Amanda Sweet commented, "We learned a lot about house layouts, color schemes, and interior decorating. The class was interesting and Mrs. Clevenger was a great teacher."

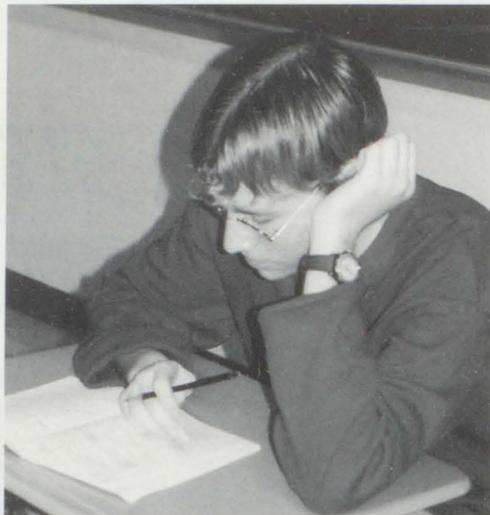

Juniors Angela Aslinger and Leah Woodcox are amazed about the process of childbirth when learning about it in Mrs. Clevenger's child development class. Angela said, "I have really learned a lot in this class, but OUCH, childbirth looks painful!"

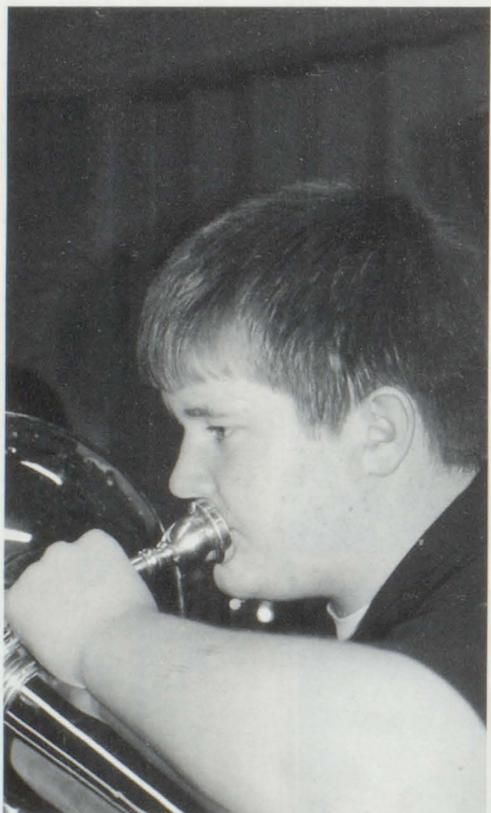

Typing out envelopes for mass media class, junior Katie Miller stated, "I thought it would be neat to take mass media because you get to be part of the making of the yearbook that everyone remembers." This was Katie's first year in mass media.

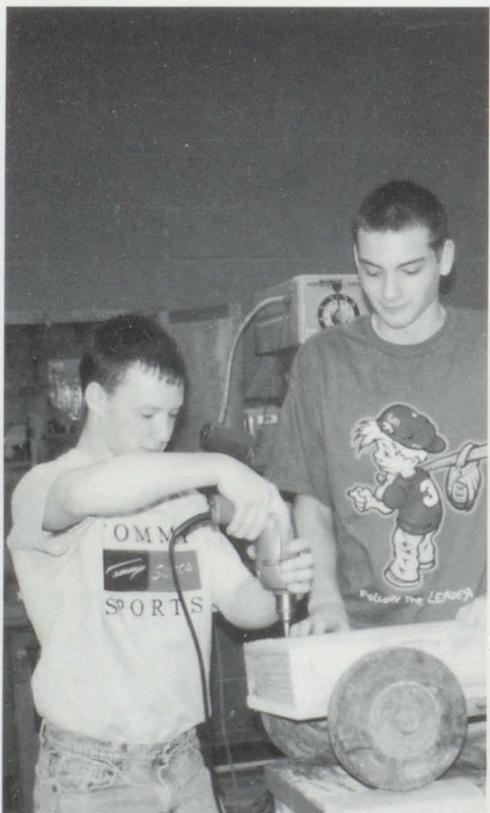

Concentrating on his workbook, senior Shawn Stephens is trying to narrow down his choices of words to use during Mrs. Herring's first semester seventh period vocabulary class. Shawn is taking vocabulary to prepare himself for the papers he will have to write next year for college. Vocabulary class is also a good idea for preparation for the S.A.T.'s.

Watching as the student teacher, Miss Powell, demonstrates an experiment during seventh period Chemistry I class, junior Zach Enyeart watches intently, as she blows up a can. Zach is prepared to leap from his seat, in case of an accident.

Concentrating on every note, sophomore Ben Harvey follows along with Mr. Lamb's instructions as he plays the tuba during his sixth period band class. Ben has been in band since the sixth grade.

Holding the drill steady, sophomore Kyle Vanmatre tries to drill a perfect hole in his project. Sophomore Brad Austin assists Kyle. The class project in Woods I class was to construct a portable tool box.

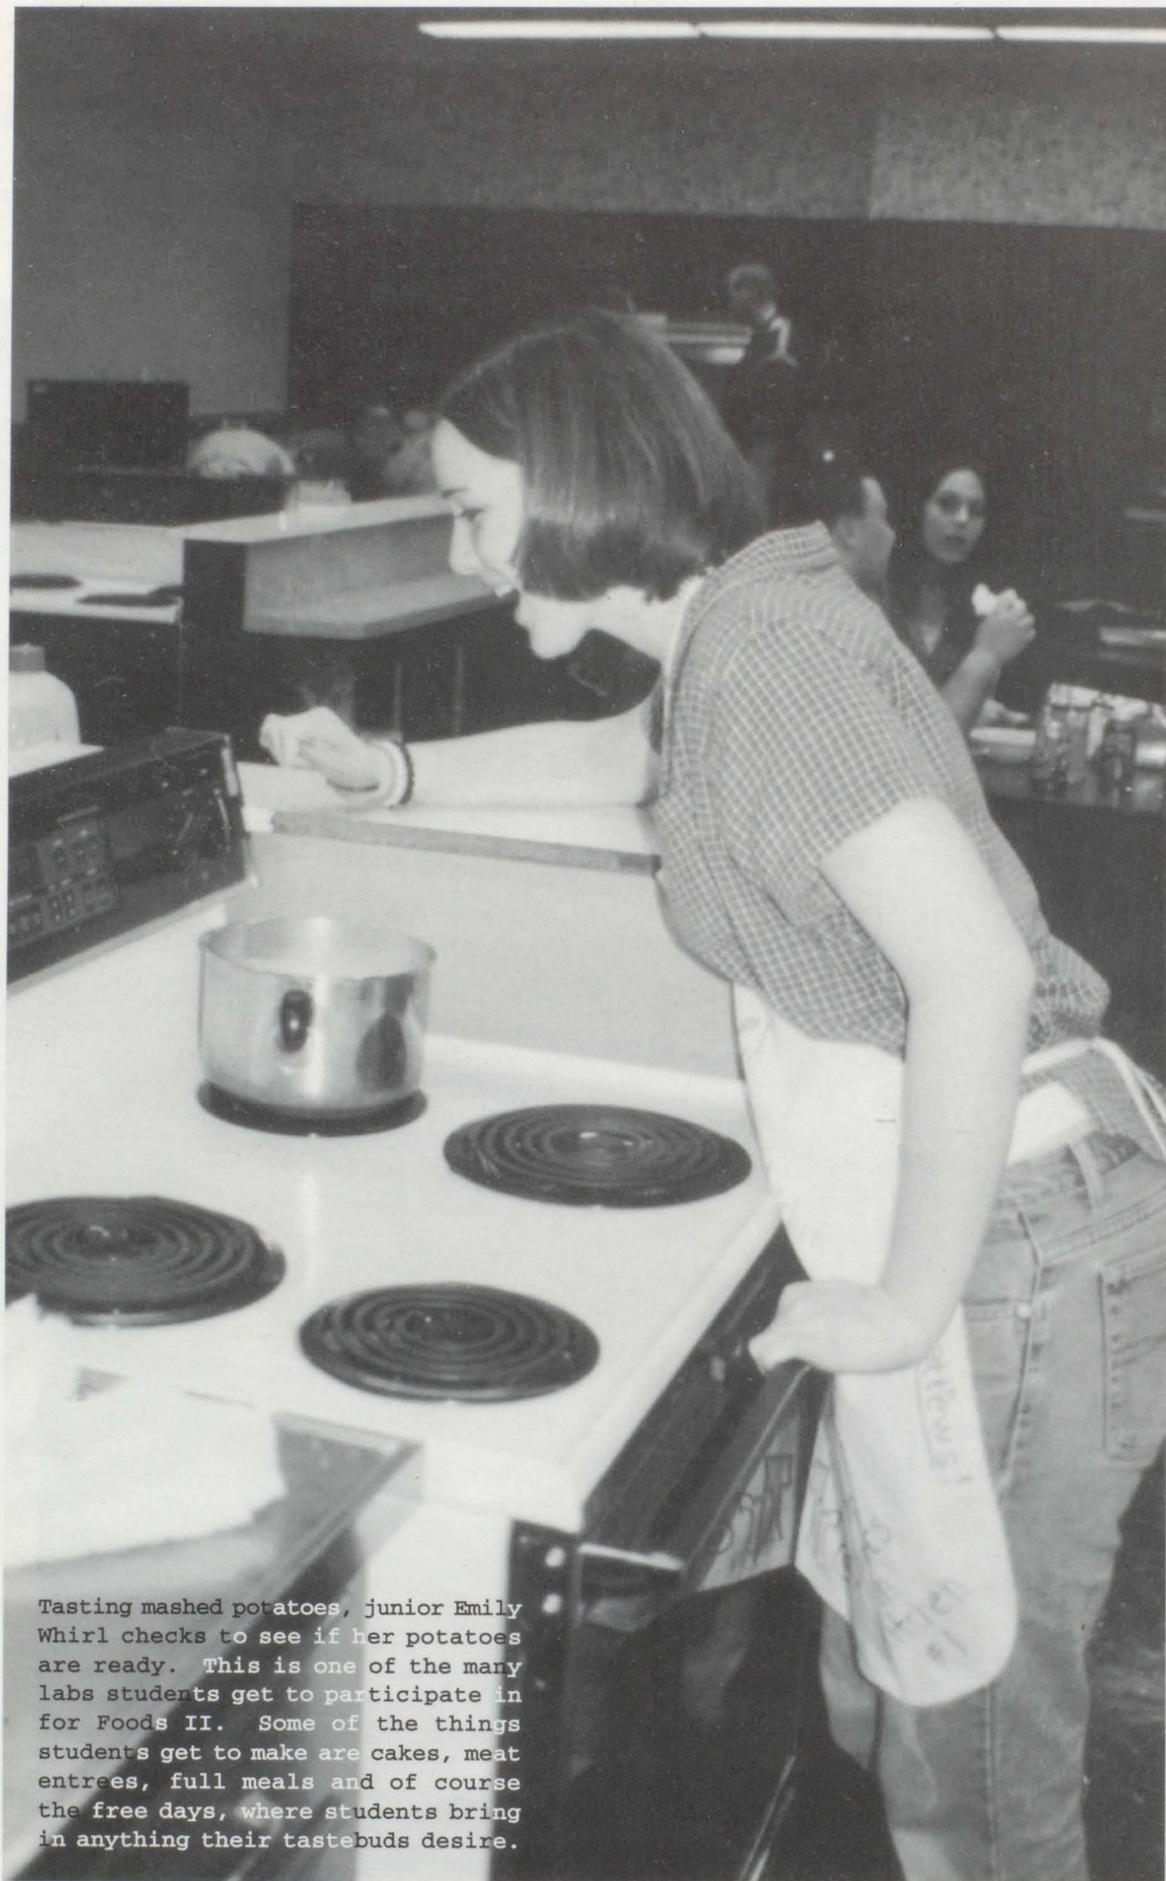

Senior Mindy Wooten listens as new teacher Mr. Smedley explains what to do. Mr. Smedley commented on his first year at Madison-Grant, "I'm really happy to be where I'm at, because I'm back in Grant county where I came from."

Where's Steve? Senior Steve Jones blends right in with his fellow students in Mr. Bennett's economics class. Steve was supporting camouflage day as one of the many spirit days we have for the basketball season.

Tasting mashed potatoes, junior Emily Whirl checks to see if her potatoes are ready. This is one of the many labs students get to participate in for Foods II. Some of the things students get to make are cakes, meat entrees, full meals and of course the free days, where students bring in anything their tastebuds desire.

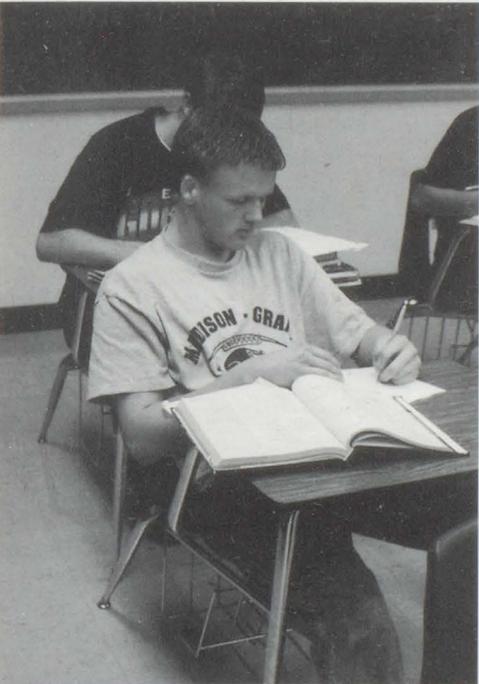

Concentrating on Mr. Hunter's every word, freshman Natalie Cooper works on a worksheet during her 7th period Math Skills class. "I really like Math Skills because I like the way Mr. Hunter teaches it, replied Natalie.

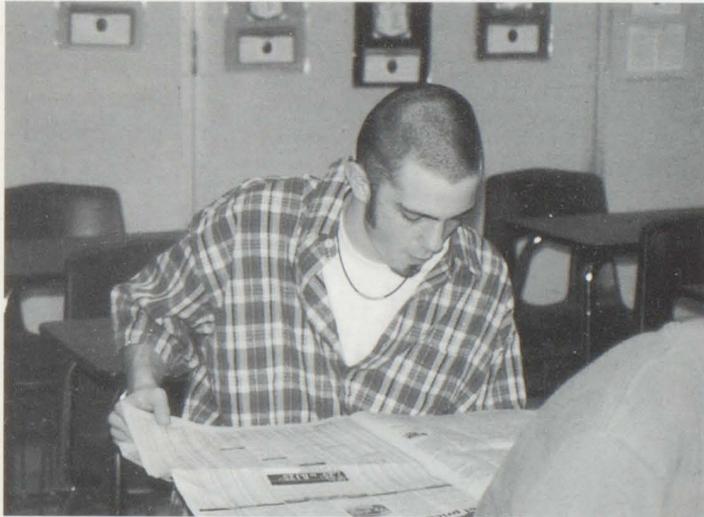

Reciting songs in choir, junior Carrie Ashendorf and Leah Robertson work on their music in Mrs. Sharkey's class. Music has played an intricate role in both Carrie and Leah's time here at M-G.

Preparing for their trip to Paris, juniors Andrea Davis and Kellie Monahan look at a map of France. This is the first time Madison-Grant students have gone to France since 1992. The students have done much to earn money for the trip including a baked potato sale and a car wash.

Working during class, sophomore Greg Weesner, intently works on his Spanish homework. Many students enjoy taking a foreign language class to widen their knowledge of people and places around the world.

Working together on a dance for the Ar-Guys N' Gals are seniors, Charlene Mockobee and Jeremy Pfeffer. There is a lot of hard work and practice that goes into the choreography of the dances they perform yearly.

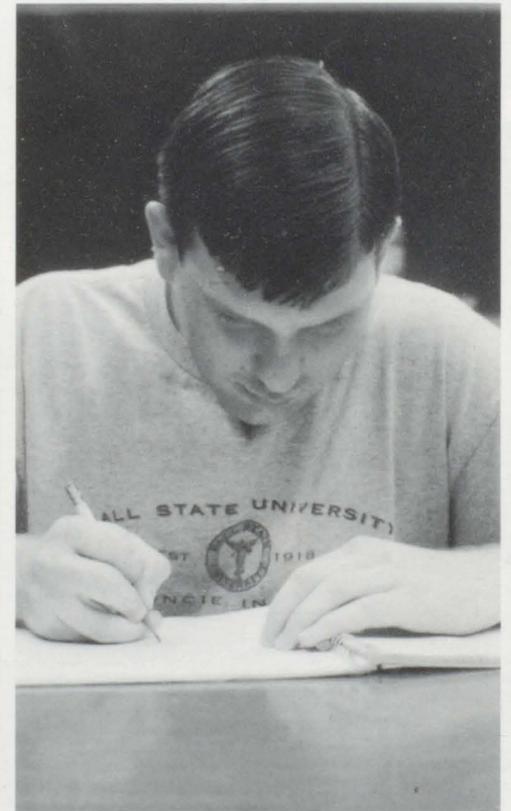

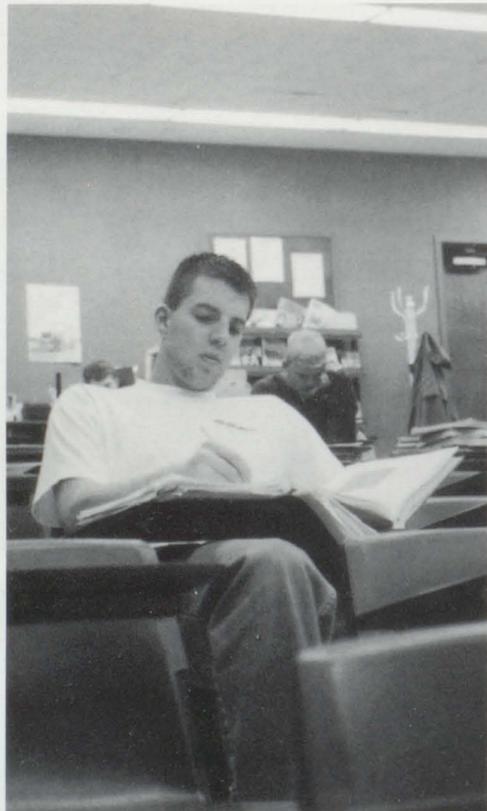

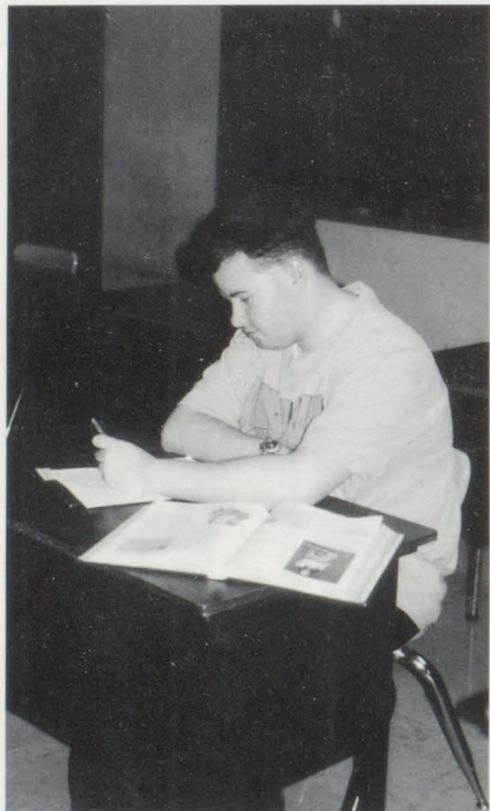

Junior Dustin Williams works on his trigonometry homework in Mrs. Dunlap's class. Dustin was a base for the cheerleading squad, which will be remembered because it's the first time in years bases have been used.

Playing away on his trombone, freshman Zach Melton makes sure he gets the correct slide placement. Zach commented, "I like band because I get to sit by Milky D. (Daniel Shepard) and we have a really good time."

Trying not to make a mistake, freshman Andy Miller concentrates on what he is typing. Andy kept very busy his freshman year in high school by playing a sport every season.

Senior, Tony Pitt works on his marketing during Mr. Smedley's fourth hour class. "I really like marketing because Mr. Smedley teaches it," commented Tony.

Working during his fifth hour study hall, senior Matt Stephenson finishes up his government homework. "I really like study hall because you can get your homework done in there instead of at home."

Studying intensely during his lunch hour, junior Noah Meeks knows what it takes to get good grades. Noah was inducted into National Honor Society earlier this year, and hopes to one day become the president.

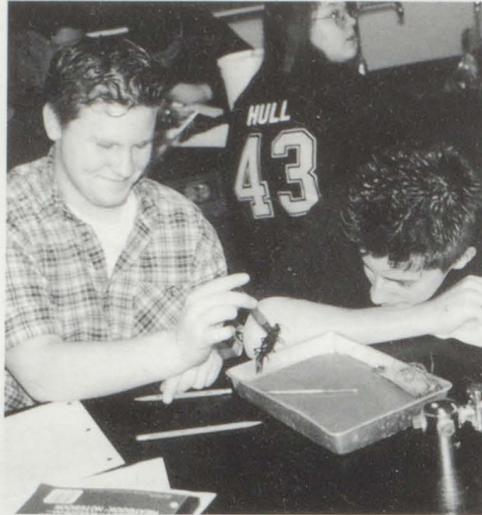

Junior Kelly Monahan tries to sell a couple suckers to junior Jesse Hall. Twelve French students will go to France this summer on an educational trip. They will spend seven days touring France.

Enjoying their dissection lab freshman Zach Osborn and Zach Melton study their grasshopper. This is a project many students enjoy to do in Biology. Not only do students get a chance to dissect grasshoppers, but they also dissect frogs, worms, and squid.

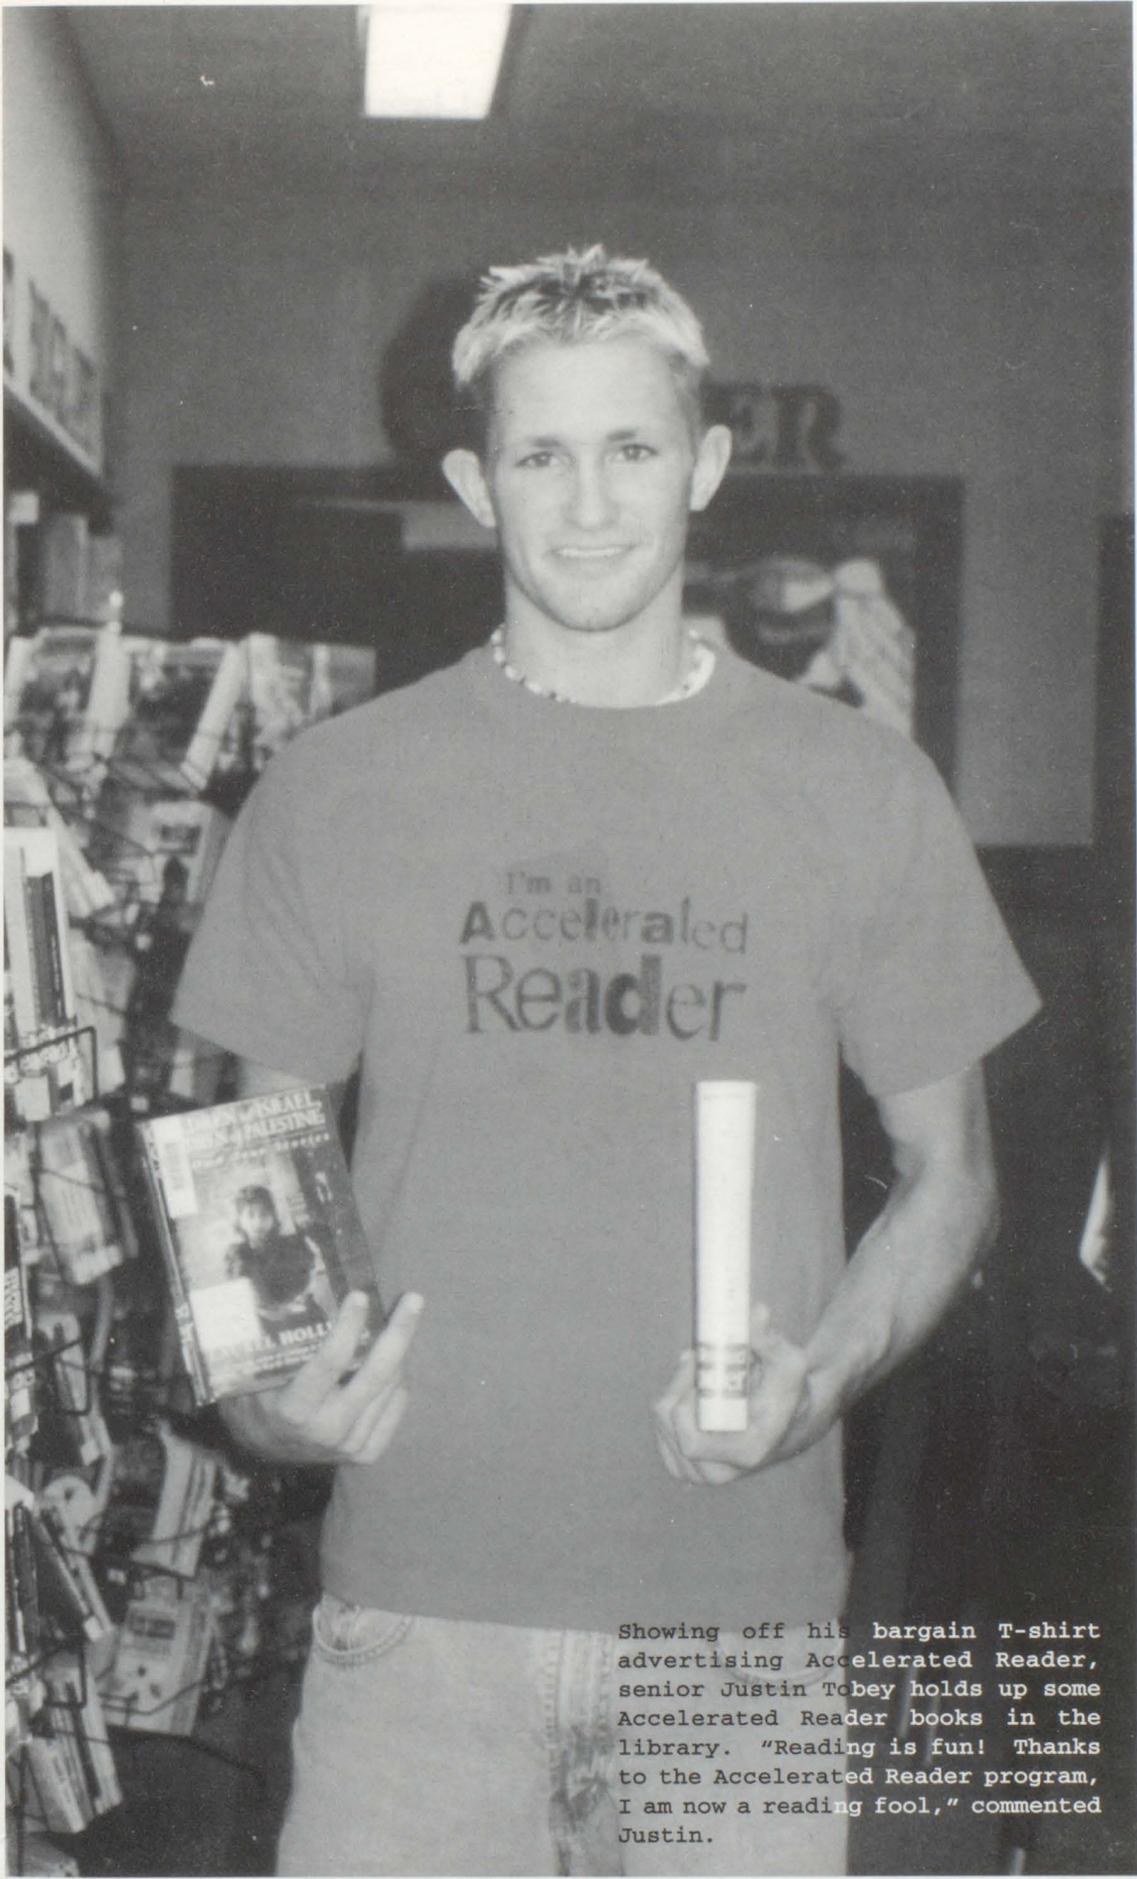

Working together on a lab in Mr. Earnest's Chemistry class sophomores Kelli McDuffee and Amanda Strausser piece together ions and molecules. This type of lab work enables the students to enjoy themselves while learning important lessons.

Helping freshman Jordan Zirkle with his Algebra questions, Mrs. Kirby gladly explains why A and B variables are in that equation. Although Algebra is a very difficult class, many students enjoy learning it.

Working diligently on a make-up test junior Kelly Monahan writes down her next answers with assurance that her studying paid off. The hallway seems to be the popular place where students can complete their make-up work.

Taking a break out in the hall senior Snow Davenport reads her Accelerated Reader book. Accelerated Reader is a fairly new program designed to encourage kids to read more books throughout the year.

Showing off his bargain T-shirt advertising Accelerated Reader, senior Justin Tobey holds up some Accelerated Reader books in the library. "Reading is fun! Thanks to the Accelerated Reader program, I am now a reading fool," commented Justin.

Passing the ball in the perfect form, senior Shannon Compton directs the ball towards the setter. Shannon helped the team with her strong back row ability and her setting skills which helped out later in the season.

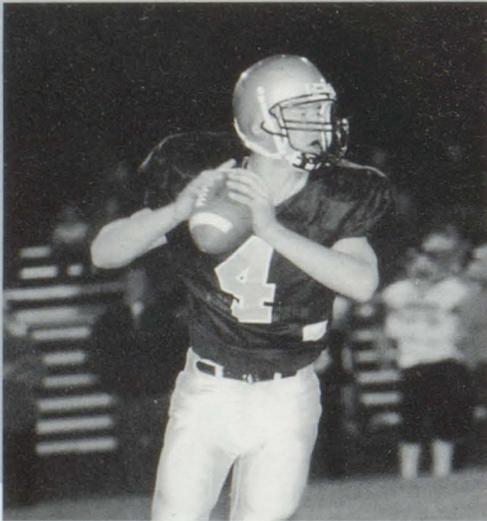

Concentrating on the next play, senior Matt Mason watches for an open pass down below. As a senior guard, Matt was a key player to the team. The varsity had an upsetting season but still pulled through with their heads up.

Hoping for an ace, senior Kelly Mason looks at the opponents' court to try to find a weak spot. "Kelly was a vital part of the team this year. Not only was she a strong player, she was a good leader," stated sophomore Katie Hughes.

Recalling the Games

Looking for an open pass, sophomore Jason Dickey decides quickly on what would be the best play. This was Jason's second year to play quarterback on the varsity team, a tough position to fill, but Jason adapted quickly.

Determined to finish in front of her opponents, senior Desiree Justus runs hard during one of her cross country meets. Desiree has been on the cross country team all four years of high school.

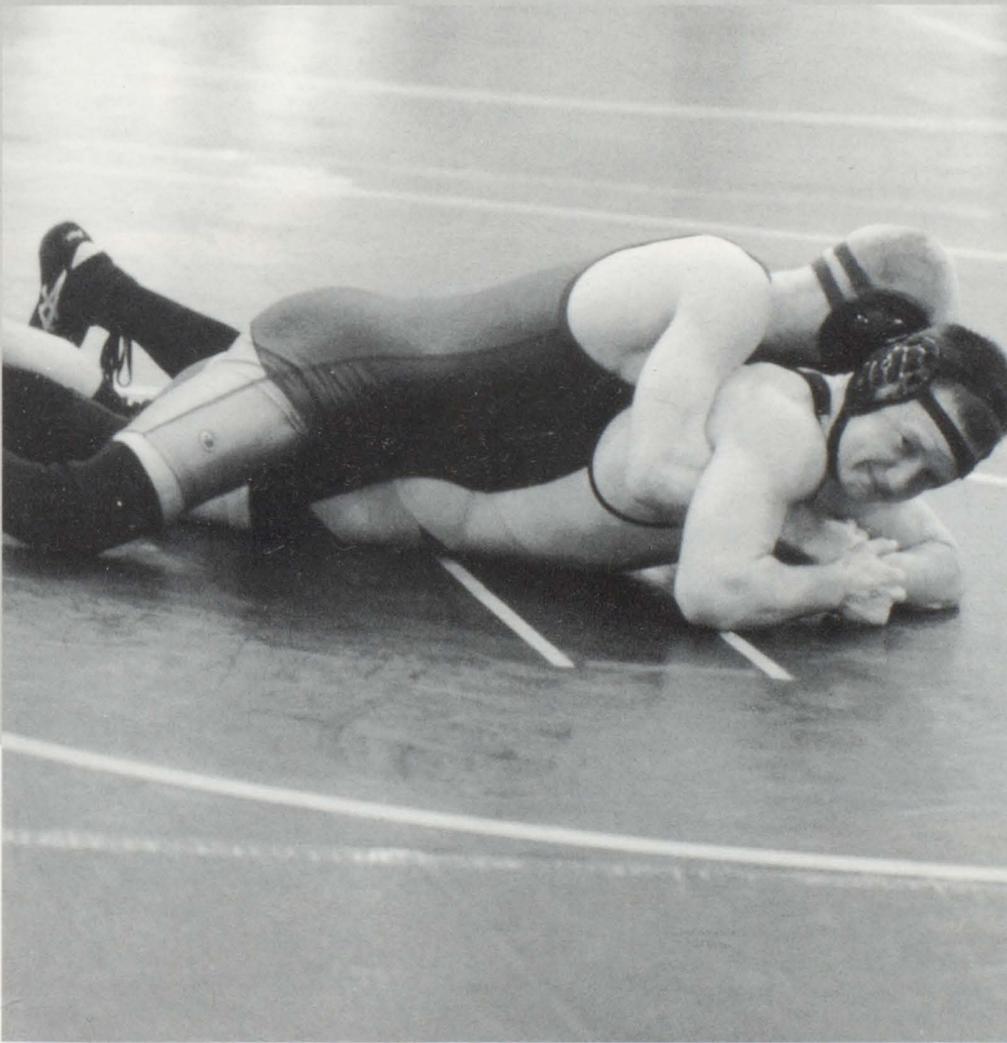

Using his height to his advantage, junior Eric Avery keeps the ball high trying to work it towards the basket.

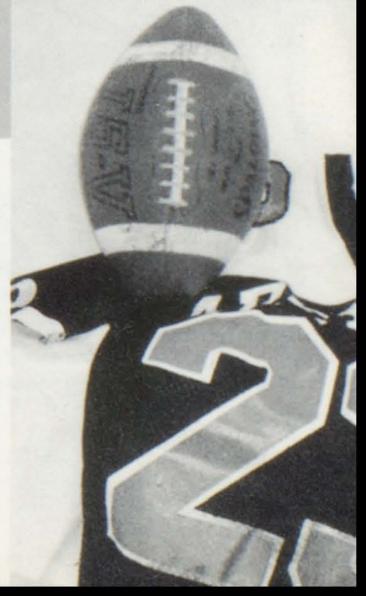

Getting ready for the race, the cross country team is taking some time out to have a prayer. There were only two senior leaders on the boys cross country team this year, Sean Pogue and Ryan Hochenberger.

Listening to Coach Younce during a time out, the Lady Argyls varsity basketball team plan a victory against the Lady Eagles of Oak Hill. With this year being the last year for both Coach Younce and Coach Fox, the team ended their season with four wins and seventeen losses.

Struggling with his opponent, sophomore Kyle VanMatre tries to reverse the move that his Tipton opponent put on him. Kyle had a strong year and even made it to the regional competition, which is a very big accomplishment for being a sophomore.

Doing a dance between quarters, junior Katie Williams flashes a smile to the crowd. "I liked the home games the best, because they were more exciting to cheer for. I also like how we came together as a squad," stated Katie. Katie has been a cheerleader since her freshman year.

Sophomore, Andrea Short is the flyer for the varsity squad. "The hardest part about flying was trying to gain trust with each other in the stunts," said Andrea.

"The stunting was a lot more fun with the guys, they were sturdier and we could do more difficult stunts," commented sophomore Jerin Harvey. Her least favorite thing about cheerleading was her fly away skirt.

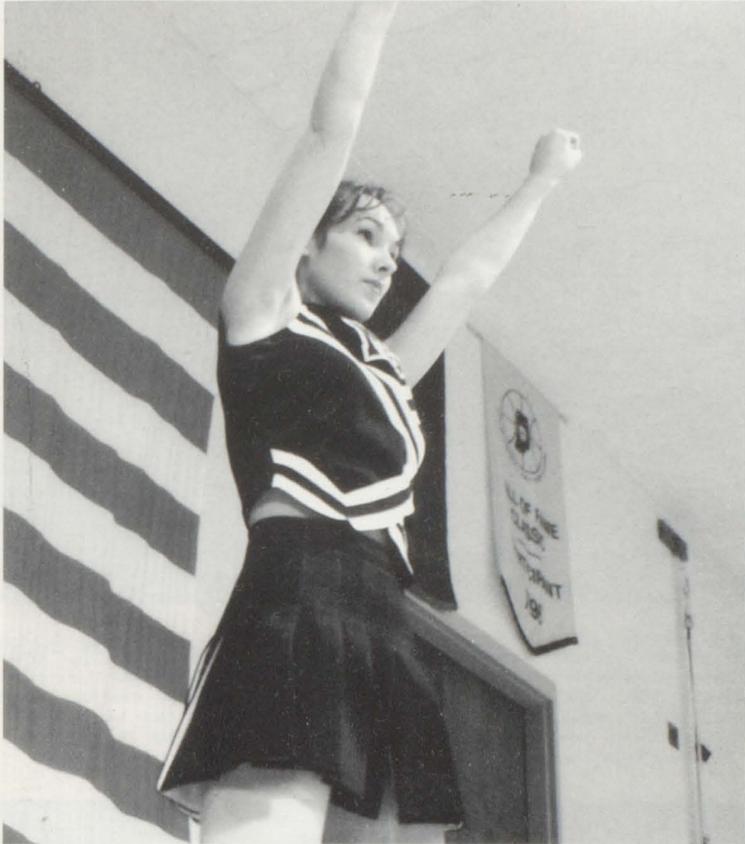

Sophomore Kelli McDuffee cheers to the crowd after an Argyll basket. "My favorite part of cheerleading was making up dances, and then teaching them to the rest of the squad," said Kelli. Along with cheerleading, Kelli has also been in dance for most of her life.

Senior Casey Blanton has been a cheerleader ever since she was in seventh grade. Her favorite part of being a cheerleader was the closeness of the girls. "I think that the whole squad got along really well this year," stated Casey.

Senior Sabrina Saathoff has been flying since junior high school. With the new bases this year, Sabrina was able to do more elite stunts. Sabrina takes cheerleading very seriously, but knows how to make the entire squad feel at ease, and keeps it all together.

The freshman, junior varsity, and varsity cheerleading squads all went to Dayton, Ohio this past summer for cheerleading camp at Wright State. The varsity squad's "big sister", Angie, helped the girls with their stunts and taught them new cheers and dances. The camp lasted four days.

Each year, as part of freshman initiation, the freshmen have to do a skit for the rest of the cheerleaders at camp. This year the freshmen did a skit based on the "Jerry Springer Show". Freshman initiation is done just for fun to help the new cheerleaders get acquainted with the other cheerleaders.

Taking last second instructions from the coach, senior Clint Jump prepares to re-enter the game. Clint received most valuable defensive line at the fall sports banquet. Clint was one of the team leaders.

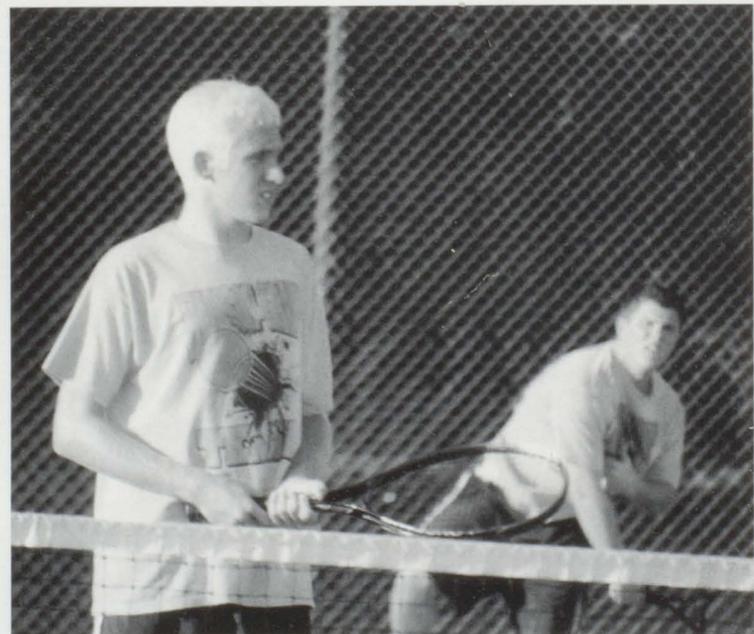

Senior Andy Stanley takes a deep breath as he looks ahead while coaches and trainers try to determine what he did to his ankle. It was only a sprain but a major upset for the team. Andy was a very strong player for the Argyll varsity football team.

Boys Fall Sports

Varsity doubles tennis player, senior Ross Click, is waiting very patiently for senior partner Kevin Cline to finish his serve to their opponents, the Mississinewa Indians. Even though Madison-Grant as a team did not come out on top, Ross and Kevin came home with a win.

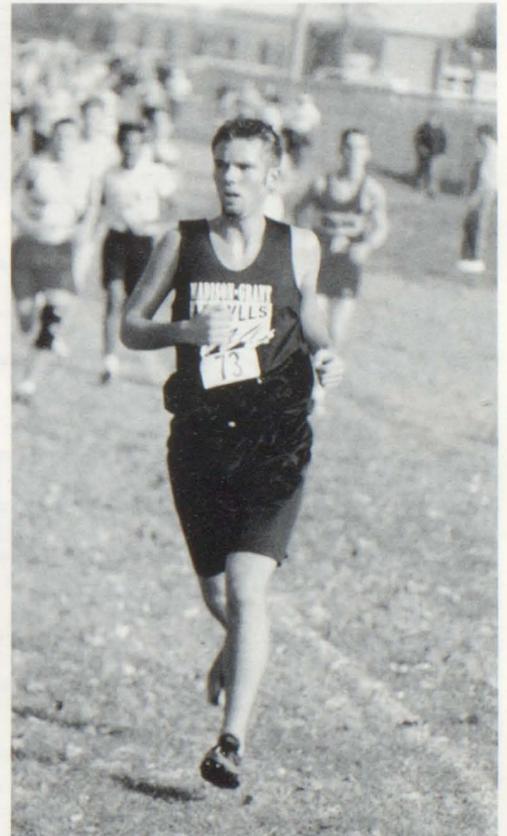

Sophomore Shawn Barkdull gives a reassuring hug to freshman Andy Miller after a meet with Eastbrook. Andy had a great freshman year running for Madison-Grant. Shawn also had a good year running. Both are to return next year.

Coming up from the baseline to hit a forehand, senior Darrick Cain keeps his eye on the ball during a home tennis meet against Muncie Burris. Darrick played number two singles for most of the season. He earned his first varsity tennis letter as a senior.

Showing an awesome act of ability, senior Matt Stephenson gets in for a hit against Mississinewa. Playing number one singles the past two years, Matt's ability has greatly improved.

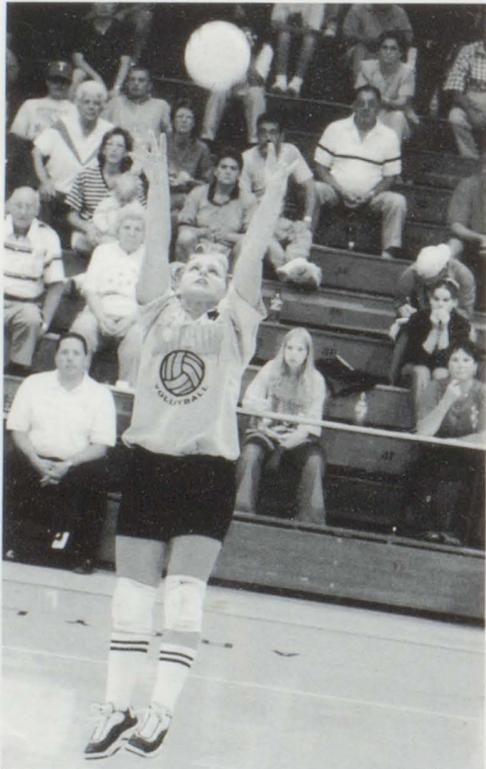

Moving to the front of the pack, Senior Ryan Hochenberger shows his determination to win. The cross country team was very competitive this season.

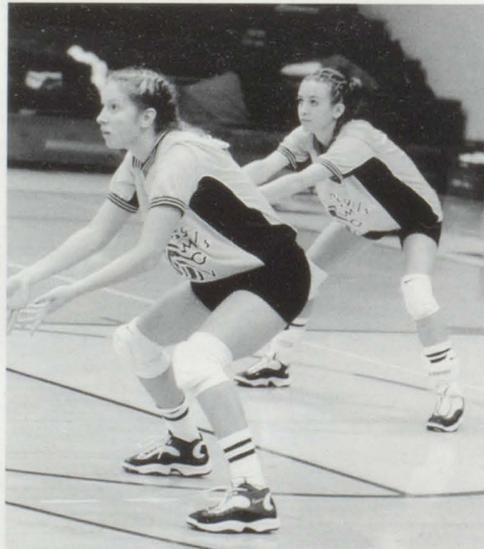

Out jumping her opponent, senior Alyssa Pattison tips the ball over a Tipton player. Alyssa earned All Conference for the second year in a row. "Volleyball is my favorite because of the competition in C.I.C. In the end we came in second, but we played our hearts out," stated the M.V.P.

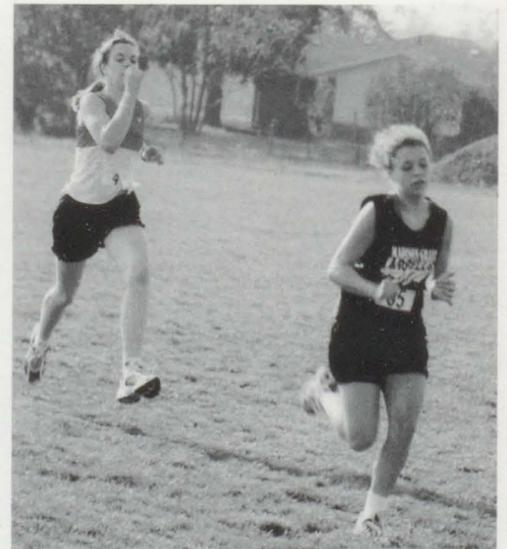

Varsity volleyball girls celebrate an ace over the Mississinewa opponents. The Lady Argylls' defeated the Indians in the conference game and ended their season 6-1 overall in the conference.

As she concentrates on the play, junior Leigh Ann Hasty sets the ball to her teammates. Leigh Ann stepped up to the challenge of becoming a setter for the first time and received Honorable Mention for conference honors. "Our team all got along and had a blast," commented Leigh Ann.

Senior varsity players, Beth Barnes and Jenny Dickey are down and ready for action against their Eastbrook opponents. A superstitious tradition for the team was for each member to fix her hair a certain way for conference games. Beth is sporting two frenchbraids, while Jenny had the cornrow do.

Giving it her all, freshman Amanda Casas digs deep to finish the sectional race. "At first I was scared to run because I didn't think that I would do good at all. It was just a lot of fun because the seniors are really fun people to run with," said the freshman.

Awarded most valuable runner, senior Nicole Skinner runs to make this season her best ever. According to fellow runner Shawn Barkdull, Nicole achieved this goal. Shawn stated, "Nicole was our leader. She was out there to do her best. During meets, she would take the lead for our team, and the rest would fall behind."

After working hard and building up her endurance all season, sophomore Shawn Barkdull makes use of what she learned during the season at the Indiana Wesleyan Sectional. Shawn worked hard and was awarded most improved runner for the girls cross country team.

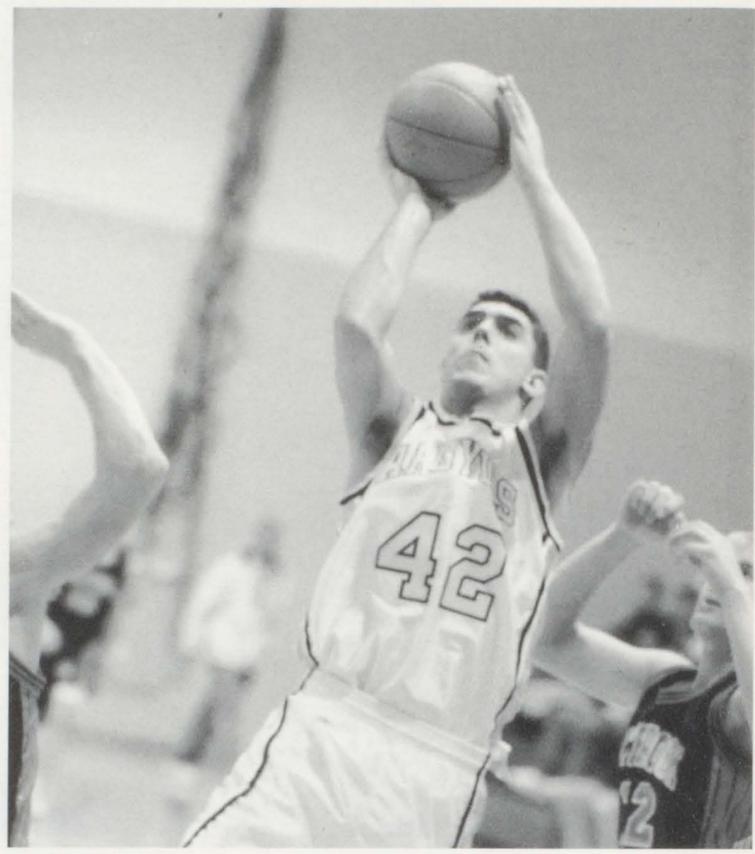

Stretching before a meet against Mississinewa, the cross country team waits for their turn to run. According to sophomore Adessa Spangler, Mississinewa was a very fun course and it went by quickly. Sophomore Shawn Barkdull also liked the course, except for the large hill they had to run over.

Girls Fall Sports

Trying to force a take-down against his opponent, senior Andy Stanley tried to force his opponent to the mat during an away wrestling match. Andy advanced to the regional matches. He was only one of a few seniors on the wrestling squad.

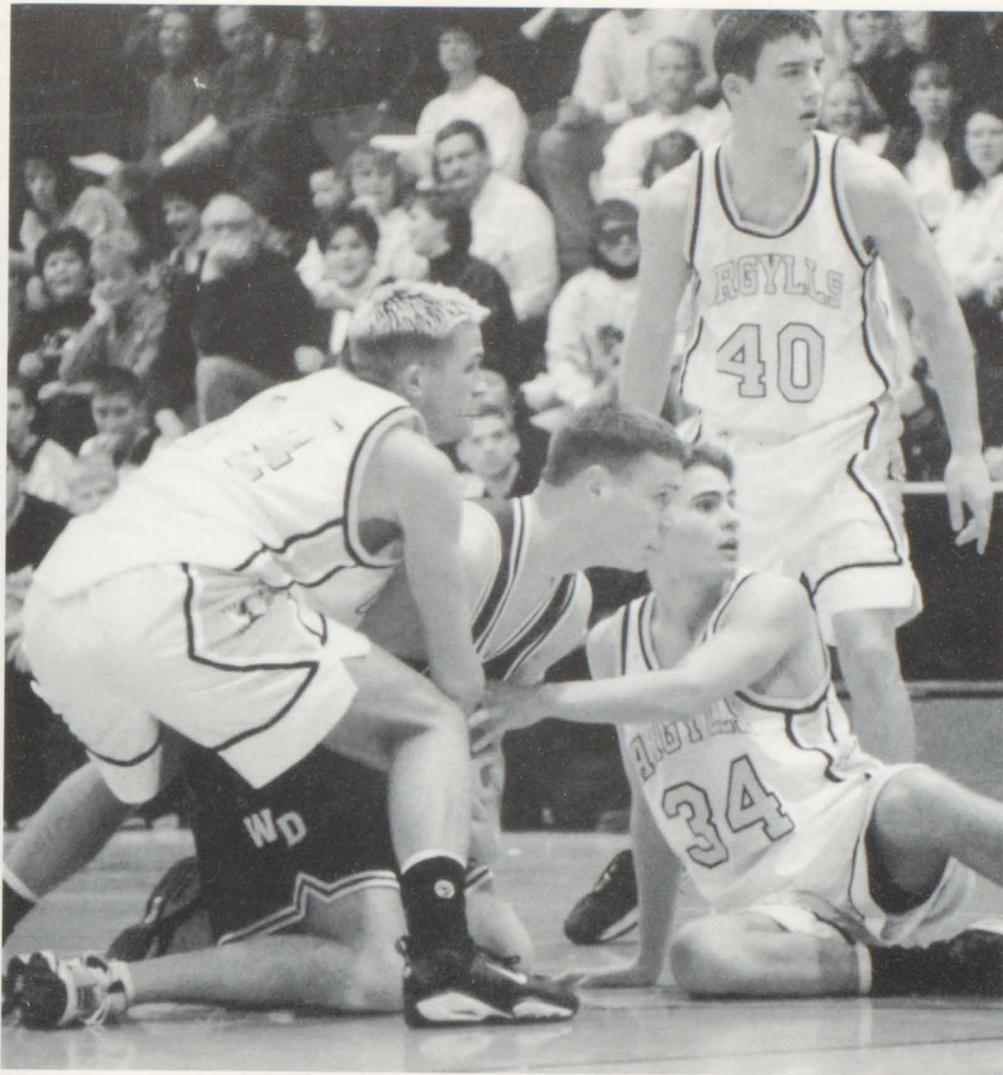

"I really enjoyed my final year of playing basketball for the M-G Argylls. I am going to miss the enjoyable practices and my lovely coach, Mr. Summers," said senior Zach Callahan about his final year of M-G basketball. Zach led the team as the highest scorer.

Boys Winter Sports

Working on trying to pin his opponent, senior Curt Haisley goes for a reversal move. Curt was the only Madison-Grant wrestler who advanced to the semi-state matches in Ft. Wayne. During the winter sports program, Curt won many awards, including the most valuable wrestler award.

Going after a loose ball against Wes Del, senior Justin Tobey, junior Brock Meyer, and sophomore Jason Dickey look up at the referee for the call. "We might not have been one of the best teams Madison-Grant ever had, but you'll have to admit we looked pretty sexy in those black socks," commented Justin.

Looking for an open man, freshman Andy Miller calls out a play to his teammates. Andy has been playing basketball all his life and played on the junior varsity team this year. He has also participated in many basketball camps including Converse, AAU, and Taylor.

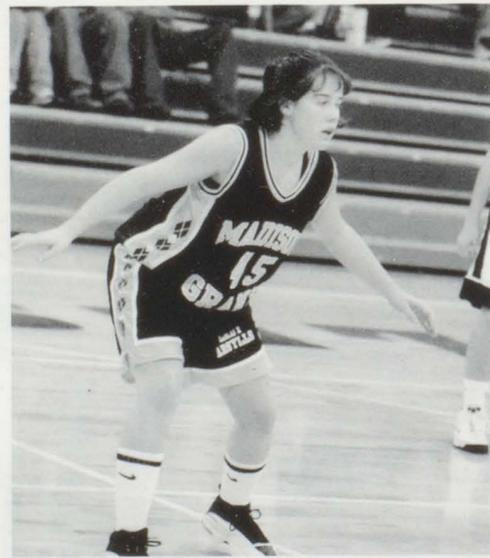

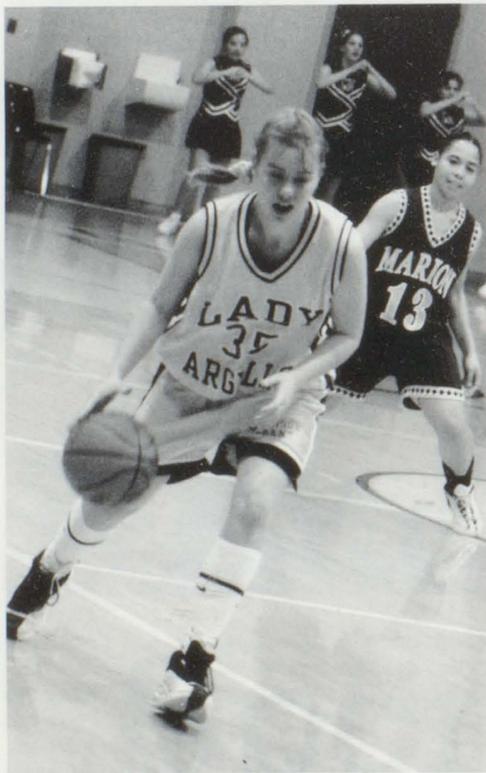

Penetrating into the lane, sophomore Tyler Croaff helps his team beat the Blackford Bruins. "I enjoyed watching Zach Callahan play basketball; he inspired me to play better. Watching him play with such ease made me enjoy the game more," said Tyler.

Freshman Bobby Yeagy anxiously awaits the referee's call, as he defends an Eastbrook Panther during a freshman away game. "I want to be like Brody Stitt," commented Bobby about his goals for next year.

Freshman Ashley Compton waits to rebound the basketball during a game against Oak Hill. "It's a lot more intense than junior high," commented Ashley. "I also think we could have done better," added Ashley. Ashley plans on playing basketball again next year.

Off balance senior Jenny Dickey reaches to rebound the ball without falling. "Our season was somewhat disappointing with only four wins, but all the girls played really hard and we always managed to have a good time." Jenny made all conference and all county. She also received a field goal percentage and the MVP award from her coach.

Dribbling the ball through her opponents, junior Aftan Pierce tries to avoid the trap defense set by the opposing Marion. "I think basketball is a great sport because it's a team effort. The whole team has to meet the challenge to be successful," commented Aftan.

"Even though it was a rough season, we still stuck together and made it fun," said junior Kandace Dunlap. Kandace played varsity for the Lady Argylls this season, and plans to return next year.

Senior Beth Barnes squares up to take a shot for two more points in hope of leading the Lady Argylls to a victory. Beth received honorable mention for all conference. Along with a rebounding award from her coach, Beth also shared most valuable player with teammates Jenny Dickey and Jessica Howard.

Fighting to keep the ball away from her defender, sophomore Shawn Barkdull looks for her teammates for the open pass. Shawn split her playing time with two quarters on the j.v. and three quarters with the varsity team. She received all county for the j.v. team.

Making her way to the basket, freshman Amanda Casas picks up her dribble after being stopped by an Eastbrook defender during the junior varsity game. As a freshman Amanda was in the starting line-up assuming the difficult role of being a point guard.

Racing to beat the opposing players down the court, freshman player Audrey Ball decides where to dribble the ball next. Audrey played both j.v. and varsity and received all county for the j.v. team. "The team was really great, and we had a lot of fun with Mr. John Fox as a coach," stated Audrey.

Girls Winter Sports.

Junior Michael LaPierre chips the ball closer to the green in the eight-team match during the Eastbrook Invitational. "A team that sleeps together, plays together, and we haven't quite got the team spirit yet," stated Michael.

After scoring one of the team's thirteen runs against Oak Hill, senior Micah Gates gets congratulated by junior Zach Enyeart. "Running around the bases wore me out," commented Micah. The baseball team won this game against their county rival 13-1.

Boys Spring Sports

After a rough inning in the field, Coach Shugart calls his team together for some advice. The team usually does this at the end of a bad inning in order to regroup and boost morale.

Concentrating on the plate, junior Zach Enyeart throws a pitch against Mississinewa. Although Zach was the starting third baseman for the team, he was given the chance to pitch against the Indians. Zach was also one of the team's best batters.

Passing his Taylor opponent senior Eric Deines runs his hardest during the 3200 relay at the MG Relays Invitational. "Since this was my first year of track, it gave me a lot more respect for runners that I used to make fun of. I also loved the new soft track. It made my feet feel cushy and nice," commented Eric.

Using all his strength senior Steve Jones heaves the discus during Grant Four. Steve has participated in track for all of his four years of high school. "I chucked it really far!" explained Steve when commenting on his throw at Grant Four.

Putting the ball in hopes of making it in the hole, senior Ethan Mahoney is ending a bad day on the course. "I'm just happy I got an 8 on this hole since I dropped 2 balls in the water," said Ethan.

With all her effort, junior Tara Morrison throws a perfect pitch against her opponent. Tara was the starting pitcher for the varsity team. "Even though our record wasn't the best, we still played hard and had lots of fun," stated Tara.

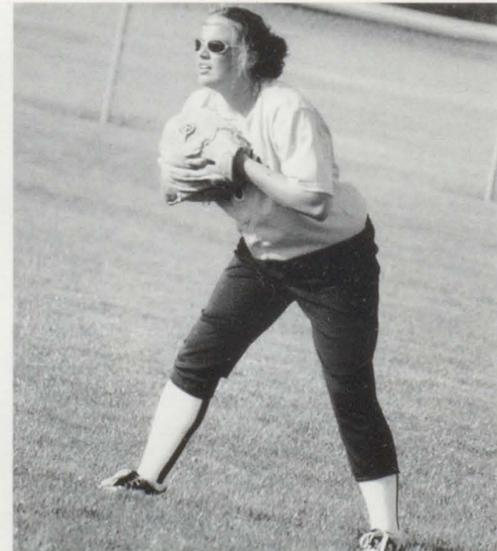

Returning the serve, senior Heather Hanlon hits the ball back over to her Frankton opponent. Heather held the position of varsity singles #1. "Having the number one position on the team meant that everyone was looking at me for something great. They never saw it, but I had a ton of fun anyway," commented Heather.

Putting all her strength into her jump, sophomore Karie Hiatt hurls her body forward. Unfortunately Karie spent most of the season injured with shin splints and missed some meets. This was Karie's first year of track, and long jump was her specialty.

Covering first base after a bunt, freshman Audrey Ball tags out the first base runner. Audrey played varsity softball as a freshman. "Softball is cool; it's the bomb!" stated Audrey.

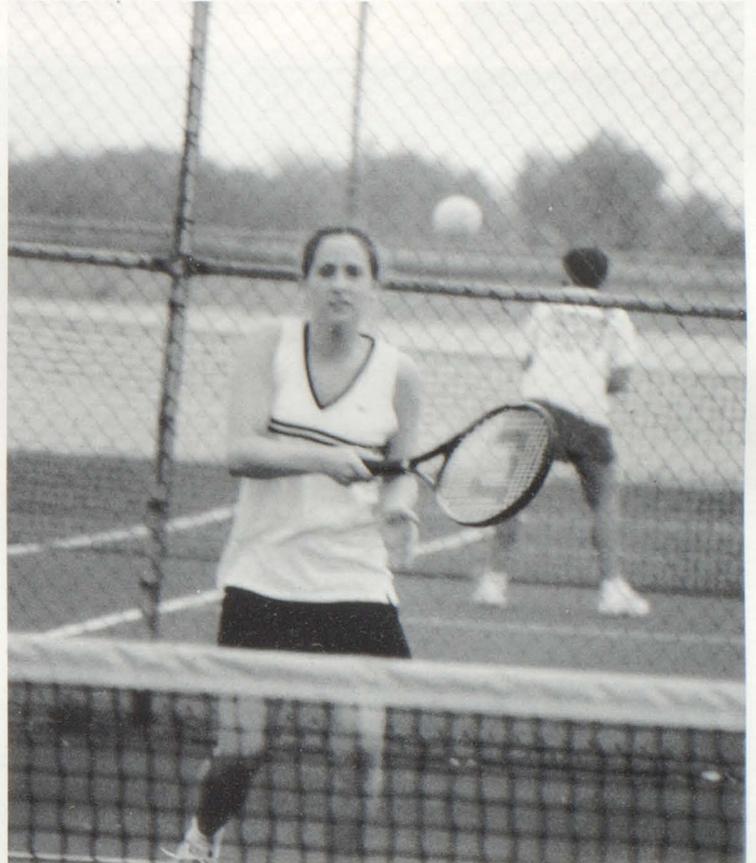

Ready for a pop fly, senior Casey Blanton focuses extra hard as she waits in right field. "Softball was a good time. Even though things were not always the greatest, all the girls pulled together when it meant the most. Determination and confidence were two things I became very familiar with this year," said Casey.

Getting ready to throw her disc, sophomore Annamarie Presley winds up. Her farthest throw this year was 69.1 feet. "I'm just carrying on a family tradition," stated Annamarie.

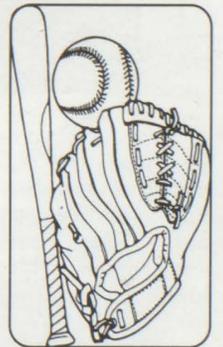

Senior Brooke Huntzinger concentrates on returning a ground stroke. Brooke has the position of #1 doubles with her four-year partner senior Sabrina Saathoff. "I love playing tennis with Sabrina because we always have so much fun, even if we lose," commented Brooke.

Clearing the final hurdle, senior Jenny Dickey makes her way toward the finish line. "I really enjoyed this season. We had a lot of fun with our new coach, Mr. Smedley," stated Jenny. Jenny went out with a "bang" winning Grant Four and conference.

Girls Spring Sports

Receiving his award for scholastic excellence, senior Sean Pogue shakes hands with Superintendent Dr. Robert Huff at the Scholastic Awards Banquet. The seniors received a paperweight for achieving at least a 3.5 grade point average during all four years. Sean was honored as salutatorian.

Sophomores Sheila Mahoney and Debbie Lamb, along with all the munchkins and other cast members, performed a popular play, The Wizard of Oz. The play was directed by elementary music teacher and drama club sponsor Anita Crull. The play was a huge success.

In complete concentration, each pair of competitors try to throw the perfect toss to their partners. The balloon toss was one of the many fun activities that took place during homecoming. "I liked the balloon toss because it got me very wet," commented senior April Vickery.

Remembering The Fun

Celebrating Mardi Gras sophomores Karie Hiatt and Jeryl Musick, along with French teacher Madame Phipps, flash the peace sign. This was the first year the French classes celebrated Mardi Gras. They also celebrated the French Independence which really takes place on July 14th.

During Cinco de Mayo, sophomore Annamarie Presley puts the finishing touches on her eggs. The Spanish class decorated these eggs with finger nail polish and filled them with flour, glitter, and papers. "It was a wonderful experience. I'm looking forward to it again next year," stated Annamarie.

Freshman Amanda Flowers shows her school spirit by wearing camouflage during one of the spirit days. These dress-up days were usually on Fridays to show the students' support for the athletic teams. Camouflage was the attire for the pep club, known as the A-team.

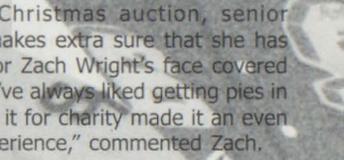

These freshmen friends show off their beautifully painted eggs. Ashley Compton, Megan DeVault, Leigha Cogdell, and Amanda Casas enjoy their time outside as they celebrate Cinco de Mayo during their Spanish I class. "Cinco de Mayo was really fun, especially getting eggs crushed on our head and getting flour in your hair," added Ashley.

Before entering into the Radisson hotel for the senior prom, Seniors Amanda Callahan and Jay Aslinger with junior Angela Aslinger and her date Tommy Billings, look forward to what the night might bring. The theme of the prom was "A Dream Come True." Seniors Jenny Dickey and Curt Haisley were crowned queen and king.

Enjoying the Christmas auction, senior Laina Wright makes extra sure that she has every inch of senior Zach Wright's face covered with Cool Whip. "I've always liked getting pies in the face and doing it for charity made it an even more pleasant experience," commented Zach.

HOMEcoming

Seniors Max Shutt and Christina Short beam with excitement after being crowned Homecoming king and queen for 1999. They were voted king and queen by the entire student body.

One, two, three, four.... Sophomore Tim Baughman jumps rope as fast as he can in order to get a win for the sophomore class during Homecoming. Tim got second place in the obstacle course.

Freshman Class Attendants:
Brody Stitt and Ashley Compton

Tyler Croaff and Karie Hiatt

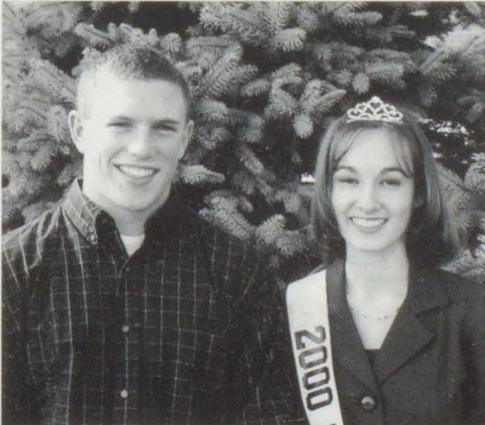

Junior Class Attendants:
Kory Gipson and Brandi Tucker

Showing her school spirit, junior Alycia Brooker puts the 90s to shame as she sports the style of the 1950s, the juniors' chosen decade for Homecoming week. The juniors worked really hard this year during Homecoming to achieve their goal--to beat the seniors.

HOME COMING

Sweet dreams kids. Taking a noon time nap during "A" lunch these students filled with Homecoming spirit try to contain their excitement for the upcoming game. Many students participated in spirit dress-up days like pajama day, demonstrated by these students.

The Madison-Grant football team let their balloons go during the pep session. These "good luck" balloons were purchased by the senior moms, along with a vile of dirt, which represents the poem written by Carolyn Jones, Stephen Jones' mother. Though the Argylls "let go" to Blackford, they never gave up.

Mrs. Haviland's sixth period English class, dress up for punk and crazy hair day during Homecoming week. Many teachers and students participated in punk day, including Mr. Wilson and Mrs. Shock. Punk day consisted of spiked and brightly colored hair, wacky clothing, and a lot of black make-up.

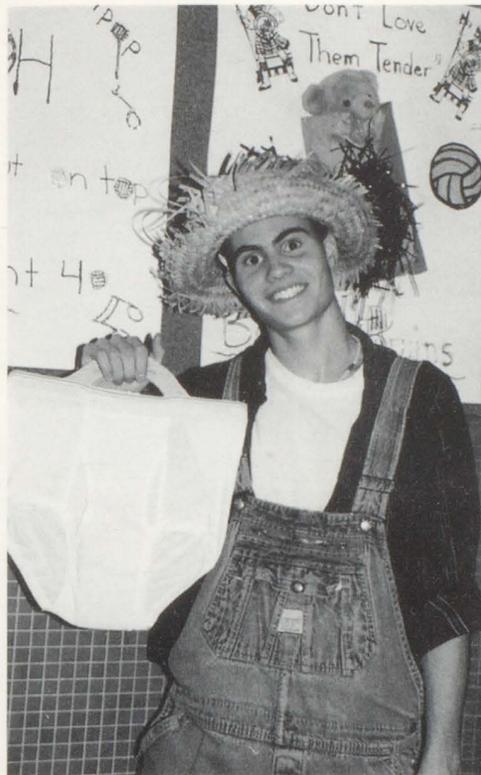

Madison-Grant's Concert Band plays during the pep session on the last day of Homecoming week. The band also played during the game that night to try to encourage the team. Regretfully, the football team lost, but not without a fight.

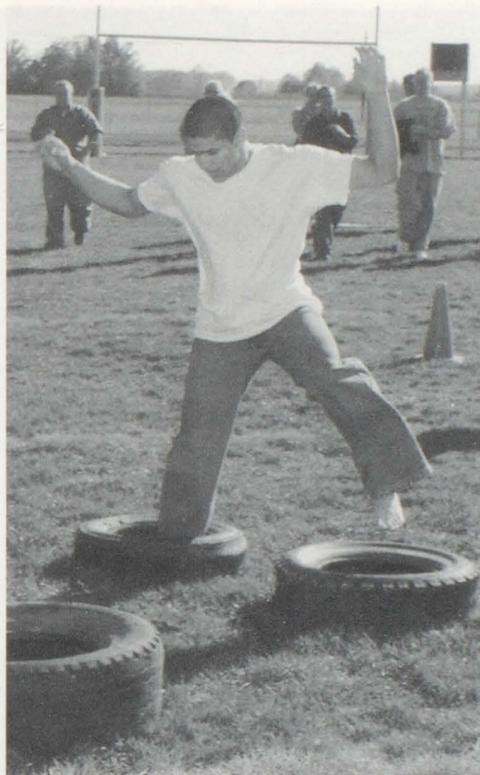

"Gettin' jiggy wit it" during the skit competition for Homecoming, seniors Eric Deines and Andy Stanley prove there is no competition. Instead of decorating hallways as in the past, each class put on a skit for a decade their class chose. The seniors picked The Salem Witch Trials of 1690s.

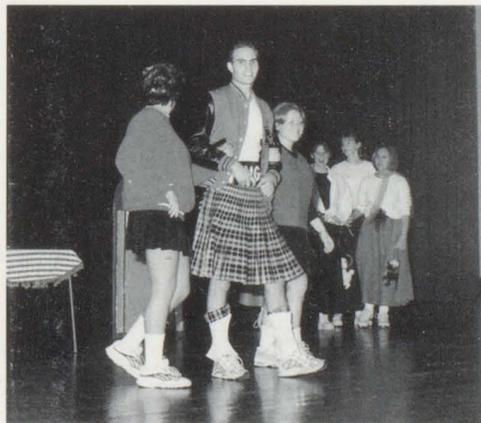

Is that a briefcase? Junior Brock Meyers displays his less than tasteful fashion sense for farmer day during Homecoming '99. Overstepping the policy on bookbags, Brock dares to defy the authority figures. So now he answers the question, boxers or briefs?

Rushing through the obstacle in record time, senior Eric Gonzales runs rapidly through the tires for Homecoming. The obstacle course consisted of bat spinning, jumping rope, bear walking, and tire hopping. Eric was greeted at the finish line by the football players and a number one finish.

Juniors, juniors, juniors! After coming in dead last during Homecoming last year, the juniors were more determined than ever before. Showing the school what they were really made of was their goal, and they reached it. Juniors won Homecoming! Looks like their hard work paid off.

Juniors Shawnzy Howard, Brock Meyer, and Andrea Webb take part in the junior skit. The junior theme was the 50s. Brock really shined in the skit with his speech to the football players from the movie "Hoosiers". Most of the juniors participated in Homecoming to make it a big success.

Sophomores Steven Randol, Billy Williams, and Jason Dickey put a foot down during their skit for Homecoming. These three were just a few of the sophomores who participated in the skit. The other two performers are sophomores Jeff McNutt and Nathan Mitchell.

Freshmen Vanessa Pugh, Lindsay Jones and Zach Melton take part in the freshmen skit during Homecoming week. The freshmen skit had to do with the medieval times. The freshmen came in third place in the Homecoming competition.

FRIENDS

Taking a break after lunch, juniors Tiffany Shockey and Shelby Freeman chat about the day's latest news. Many students proceed to the gym after lunch to spend time with friends, play basketball, and just relax before they have to return to the classroom.

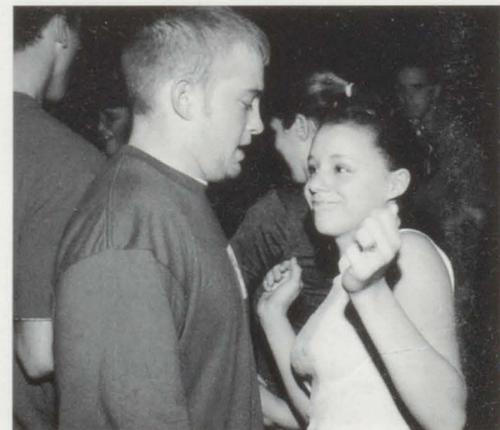

Brian and Eric sittin' in a tree...Juniors Eric Avery and Brian Bennett are puckering up for each other after a "French" field trip to see the play Le bourgeois gentilhomme, meaning a middle class gentleman.

Best friends since first grade, juniors Courtney Campbell and Sara Lainhart act crazy and have their usual fun at the Sadie Hawkins Dance. Courtney and Sara work together at Dor-Tee's, go to Myrtle Beach together every summer, and are both varsity cheerleaders.

Taking a break in Ms. Harbin's genetics class, juniors Brittany Hirst and Katie Burris show their school spirit and friendship. Ever since the fifth grade, Brittany and Katie have enjoyed hanging out together, going shopping, and bowling.

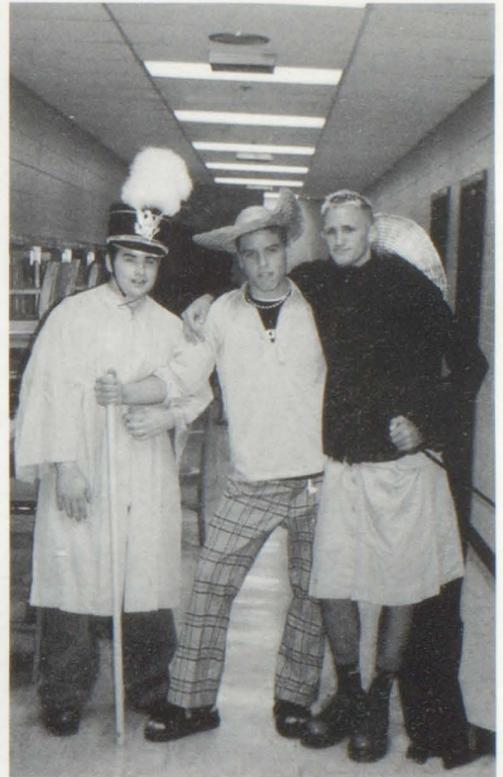

Who said seniors and freshmen can't get along? Senior Clint Jump and freshmen Amanda Casas get their groove on at one of the many dances held by the school. This dance is the very first. This dance is held after a girls basketball game.

During Mrs. Herring's fifth period class, seniors Brooke Jones, Dawn LaShure, Nicole Skinner, and Shannon Compton watch as the rest of the class completes the play Hamlet. The girls have been friends throughout high school. When best friends Brooke and Dawn and Nicole and Shannon get together, they're destined to have a good time. These friends get four thumbs up!

Preparing for the Hamlet skit, seniors Zach Wright, Eric Deines, and Justin Tobey are getting prettied-up backstage as they are waiting for their "big moment" in the spotlight. All these boys have been close friends throughout school.

Who are these mobsters? Juniors Brock Meyer and Kory Gipson enjoy the first ever M-G Sadies Hawkins Dance. Brock and Kory have been good friends for quite some time. In matching outfits and spiffy hats, they show everyone how to have a good time.

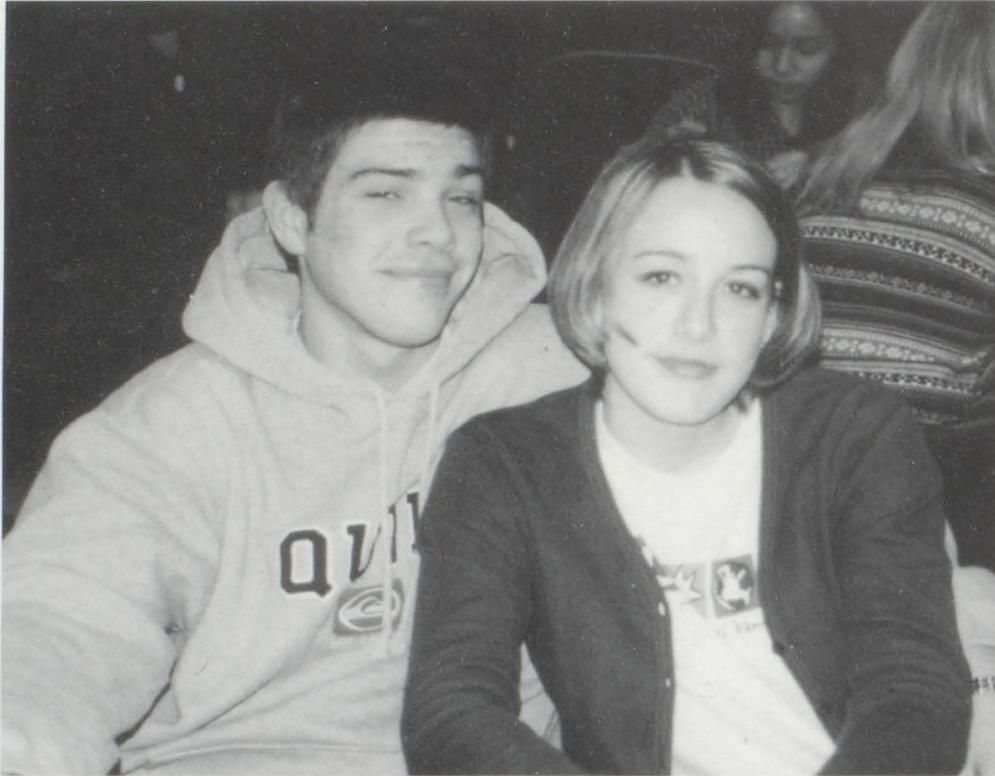

Sophomores Joni Ayers and Andrea Short have a great time at the Sadie Hawkins dance. Whenever there's a dance, you can count on seeing these two close friends bustin' a move on the dance floor. You go girls! Shake that groove thing!

COUPLES

Two peas in a pod, Senior Travis Hood and junior Emily Whirl have been together for over two years. Some of their best times together include going to Quaker Haven, late night movies, and playing monopoly.

After returning from a French field trip, sophomore Annie Melton and senior Micah Gates spend a little more time together before the bell rings. "Even though Micah always wins, we like to play Checkers and Battleship together. We love being together because we always make each other laugh," commented Annie.

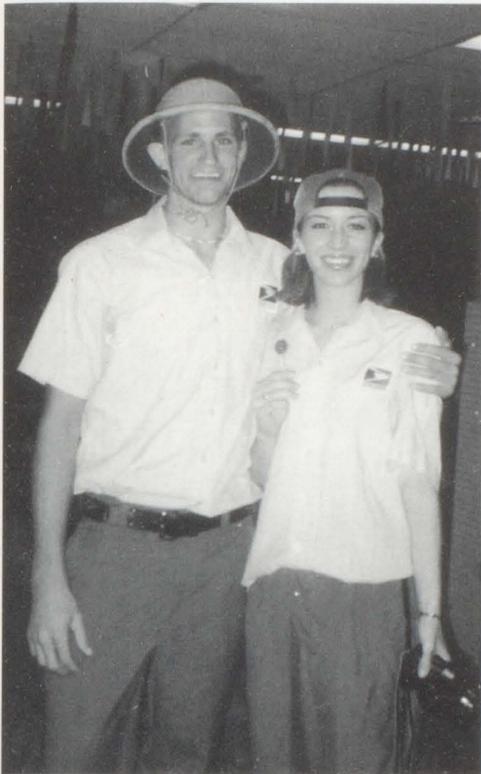

Seniors Whitney Schultz and Curt Haisley definitely hold the title for longest relationship! They have been together for five years. Commenting on what their secret to success is, Whitney said, "I think what makes our relationship last is that not only is Curt my boyfriend, but he is also my best friend."

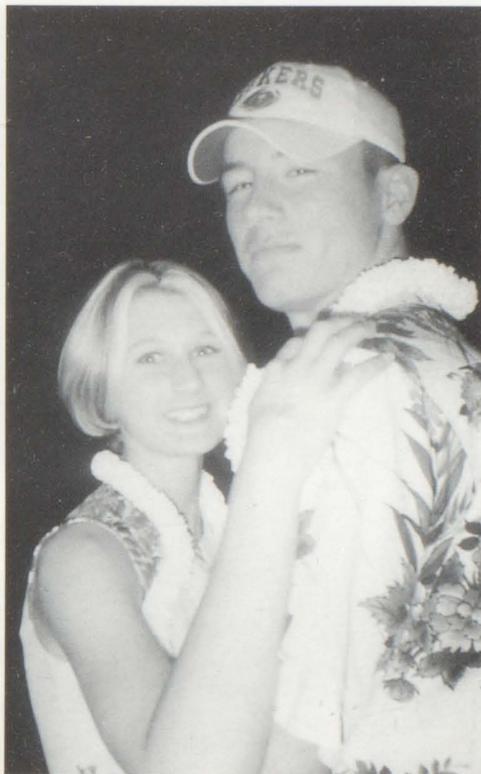

Showing their affection for one another, seniors David Austin and April Vickery prove that opposites truly do attract. Commenting on their relationship, April said, "No one ever imagined us together because I'm more outgoing, while David is more laid back." David added, "Yeah, what she said."

Two years ago, this relationship began when sophomore Jeryl Musick slipped her number on a gum wrapper to senior Mark Branch in Mrs. Sharkey's choir class. That night Mark called Jeryl. The two really hit it off and have been a couple ever since.

Seniors Justin Tobey and Jenny Dickey have been close friends since seventh grade. Then, during their junior year their friendship blossomed into something more. The two have been together for a year now. They are both very active in sports, but enjoy being together in their spare time.

Junior Brandi Tucker and sophomore Jason Dickey have been a couple since the end of the summer. They got together during Jason's surprise party for his sixteenth birthday. The outfits Jason and Brandi wore to the Sadie Hawkins Dance were borrowed from Jason's parents. His parents wore them on their honeymoon to Hawaii.

Expressing themselves in their own unique way, juniors Teresa Cisney and boyfriend, Ryan Morrow take a break in front of "Jerry's Kids" football goal on punk day during Homecoming week. Ryan and Teresa have been together for more than a year.

Freshmen Brody Stitt and Ashley Compton have been going out for nine months. They were both chosen as the freshmen Homecoming candidates. When reminiscing on their best memories, Ashley said, "It would have to be our first kiss." These two are athletic, outgoing, and both have a lot of fun together.

Andy Stanley and Adessa Spangler dress up as punk rockers for the '99 Sadie Hawkins dance. The theme of this dance is for couples to dress up alike. To prepare for the dance, the two went shopping together at Gadzooks.

Lindsay Hickman and senior Caleb Gates have been a couple for over a year. When asked what has kept the two of them together, sophomore Lindsay said, "We can talk to each other about anything, and we're always there for one another."

The WIZARD OF OZ

Part of the Emerald City crew, freshman Alice Bennett, freshman Britany Barkdull, sophomore Jerin Harvey, and sophomore Alissa Williams have the important task of grooming Dorothy and her friends before they meet the wizard.

Ready to gather around the cauldron are five witches including The Wicked Witch of the West, sophomore Ashley Nester, surrounded by junior Teresa Cisney, freshman Meggan Peters, sophomore Joni Ayers, and senior Angela Cisney. Though not in the movie, these other four witches provided some comedy to the play.

Proving he is boss, Lord Growlie, played by senior Brandon Turschman commands his soldier. Being the tallest person in the play, Brandon's part fit him, as Lord Growlie showed a lot of authority.

Dressed up in old Madison-Grant marching band uniforms, freshmen Meggan Peters and Julia Hood and junior Britney Hirst give orders to freshman Nathan Mitchell playing a soldier in a one man army.

To become a scarecrow is no easy task for junior Justin Crist. Justin sat patiently while having his stage face painted on, then went to visit the munchkins to help prepare them for the play.

"No Dorothy, I'm Glinda, the Witch of the North," proclaims sophomore Sheila Mahoney who played Glinda in the Wizard of Oz. "I liked being Glinda because after the play, we would go out and greet the audience. It was amazing to see how mesmerized the kids were. It made me realize how much of a role model I was."

The Drama Club returned to M-G this year after having a break. Elementary music teacher Mrs. Crull came to the high-school with a plan to direct the play "The Wizard of Oz." It was a success. The play made over three thousand dollars in two nights and was shown to more than three elementary schools. Shown here is senior Heather Huffman as the Cowardly Lion, sophomore Eric Fernung as the Tin Man, junior Justin Crist as the Scarecrow, and sophomore Debbie Lamb as Dorothy.

Closing her eyes while being transformed into Cowardly Lion, senior Heather Huffman tries her best to hold still. After putting on all of that make-up three different times, by the last day most characters were applying it themselves.

Handing a diploma over to the scarecrow, the Wizard of Oz, played by senior Sean Pogue states, "By the power invested in me, by the institute of Oz University I present to you this diploma." The scarecrow finally received his brain.

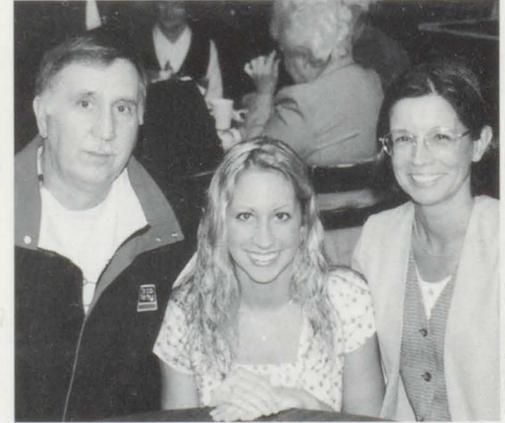

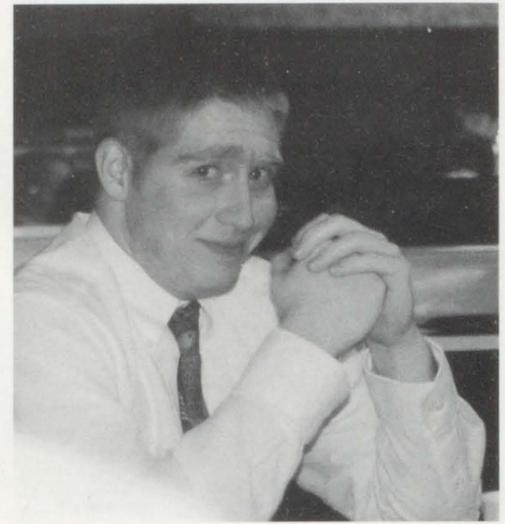

"Ding Dong the witch is dead." Sophomore Alissa Williams playing the munchkin mayor and junior Britney Hirst playing the munchkin farmer look at the wicked witch's feet. Besides these two high school students, there were several elementary students playing munchkins.

Row 3: Morgan Rhetts, Leanna Huff, Aftan Pierce, Laura Floyd, Beth Barnes
Back Row: Sara Stephenson, Jenny Dickey, Brian Bennett, Noah Meeks, and Kory Gipson.

Looking Sly, Senior Steven Jones enjoys the reception after the NHS induction. "NHS is a respected organization that gives its members a chance to help others in school and the community," stated Steven. Steven has been a member of NHS for two years.

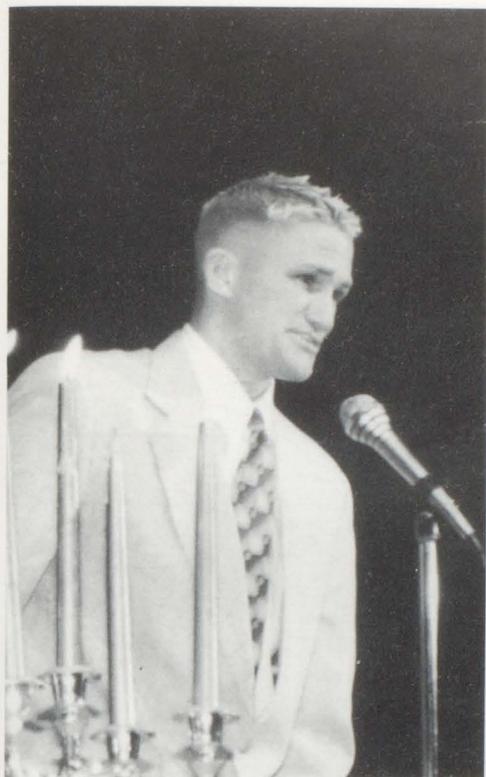

Senior NHS President Kevin Cline hands junior Brian Bennett his candle. "It's been a fantastic learning experience with NHS. It has been a lot of hard work, but the chance to help another person is something that anyone should jump at. This opportunity has made me feel like I can be a real good guy," stated Kevin.

"I was surprised to be inducted and I'm excited about being involved in all the activities the club participates in," stated senior Jenny Dickey. Jenny is enjoying herself along with her parents Steve and Deb Dickey at the reception following the induction.

After being inducted into the NHS, Senior Beth Barnes celebrates with her parents at the reception that followed. "It really meant a lot to me because it let me know that the teachers thought I was deserving enough to earn that high of an honor. My hard work at grades paid off," stated Beth.

Smoothly stumbling over his lines, senior NHS vice-president Justin Tobey puts a lot of emotion into his speech based on leadership during induction of new members. "I love being a part of NHS because it lets me know that I'm the cream of the crop. Plus, we always get out of class for activity period and that rocks," replied Justin.

Finishing up her dessert junior Sara Stephenson smiles with her parents, Teresa and Scott Boucher. Sara was excited to be inducted into the National Honor Society. "I was really excited to be inducted. My parent's wouldn't tell me so I was really surprised," Sara commented.

"Being inducted into NHS made all the long hours of studying worth while," stated Aftan. Junior Aftan Pierce and her very proud parents, Randy and Kathy Pierce, enjoy their cake during the reception which followed the National Honor Society induction.

"It's a great feeling that my academic achievements are being noticed," stated junior Abbey Carey after being inducted into NHS. "I really want to thank all of the important people in my life for their support, like my parents, my sisters and friends."

Repeating the NHS pledge during the induction front row members, Noah Meeks, Aftan Pierce, Morgan Rhettts, and Sara Stephenson hold up their plaques and candles. "NHS is a great honor to be involved in and to serve the community. I look forward to participating more," added Noah.

This happy family smiles proudly at the reception following the NHS induction. Junior Brian Bennett was truly happy. "It was pretty exciting. I will never forget how quiet the room was when the older members walked in. It really makes me feel good. I'm glad to know that teachers think highly of me," commented Brian.

Celebrations

Sophomores Karie Hiatt and Jeryl Musick wear masks during Mardi Gras in French class to disguise themselves for protection against evil spirits that were thought to be wandering about. Even though these two "coppines" are wearing their every-day clothes, the tradition of Mardi Gras is to wear costumes such as devils, bishops, and the opposite sex.

Sporting a Mardi Gras mask and beads, senior Troy King participates in the Greasy Tuesday shin-dig. This is Troy's third year in French, and this is the French class's first Mardi Gras celebration.

Freshman Alice Bennett helps up freshman Hanna Havens. Hanna was knocked down during all the commotion of smashing eggs. The students were allowed to fill their eggs with glitter, flour, and other particles except liquids to celebrate Cinco de Mayo.

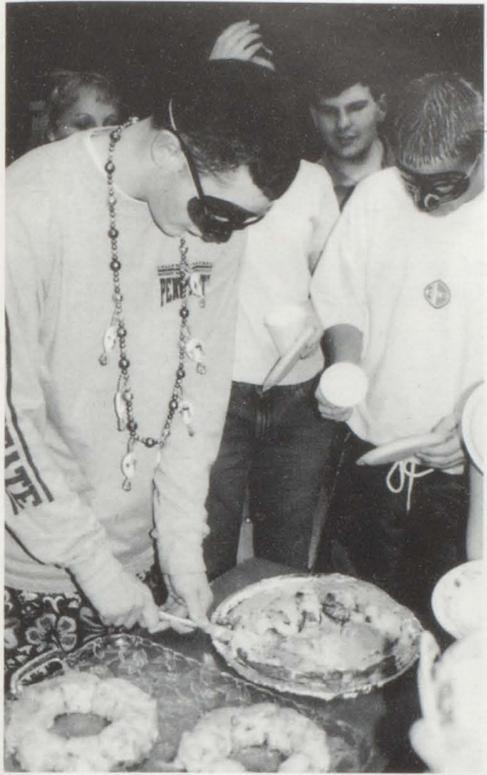

Mardi Gras was held on Tuesday, March 7th. Mardi Gras, also known as Greasy Tuesday, is the last day of the carnival, because it's the last day to use up the butter and other forbidden foods that one wouldn't be using during "Careme."

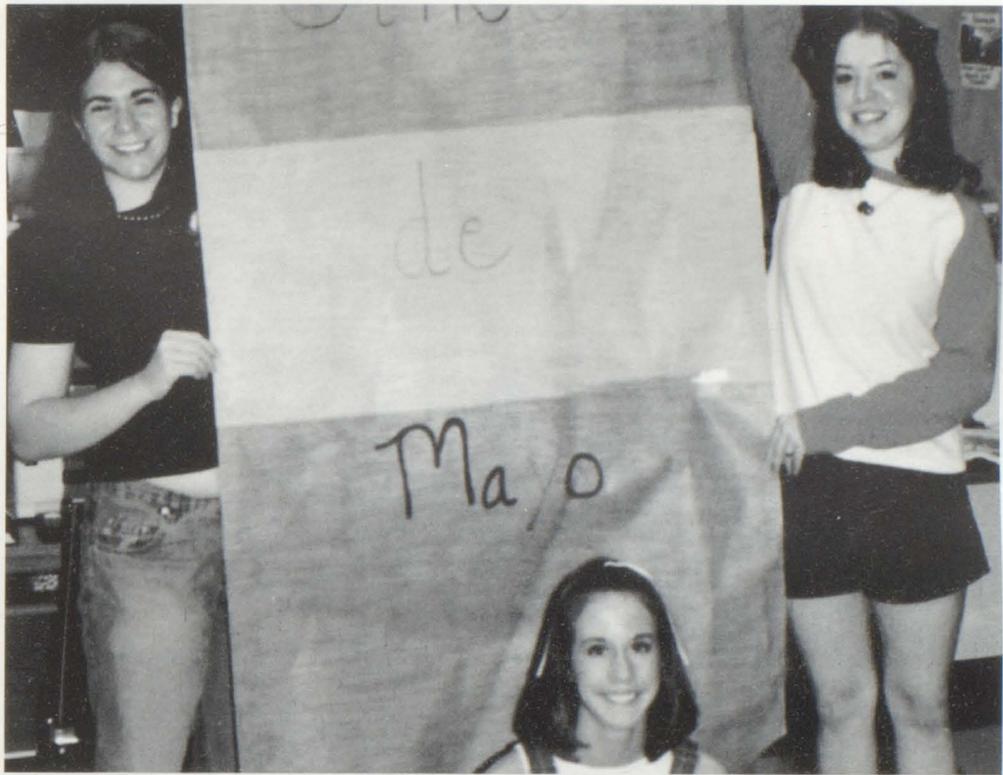

Juniors Leigh Ann Hasty, Eric Avery, Brian Bennett, and Jacqueline Nance catch the coins as they are being thrown by Mrs. Phipps. The throwing of the coins, along with the necklaces and beads are usually thrown during a Mardi Gras parade.

Junior Justin Crist watches as junior Brian Bennett cuts a piece of King's cake during the Mardi Gras celebration. The King's cake is a sugar flavored pastry dyed yellow, purple, and green, the colors of Mardi Gras. Placed inside the cake is a coin. Whoever finds the coin is pronounced king or queen for the day.

Juniors Betsy Matchette and Abbey Carey along with senior Whitney Schultz show off their excellent art work. This Cinco de Mayo flag was hung by the Spanish room as a symbol of the Cinco de Mayo celebration.

Trying to get the flour and glitter out of her hair, Spanish teacher Mrs. Melson moves away from the students during the egg throwing. Students received extra credit for bringing glitter/flour filled eggs in for the occasion.

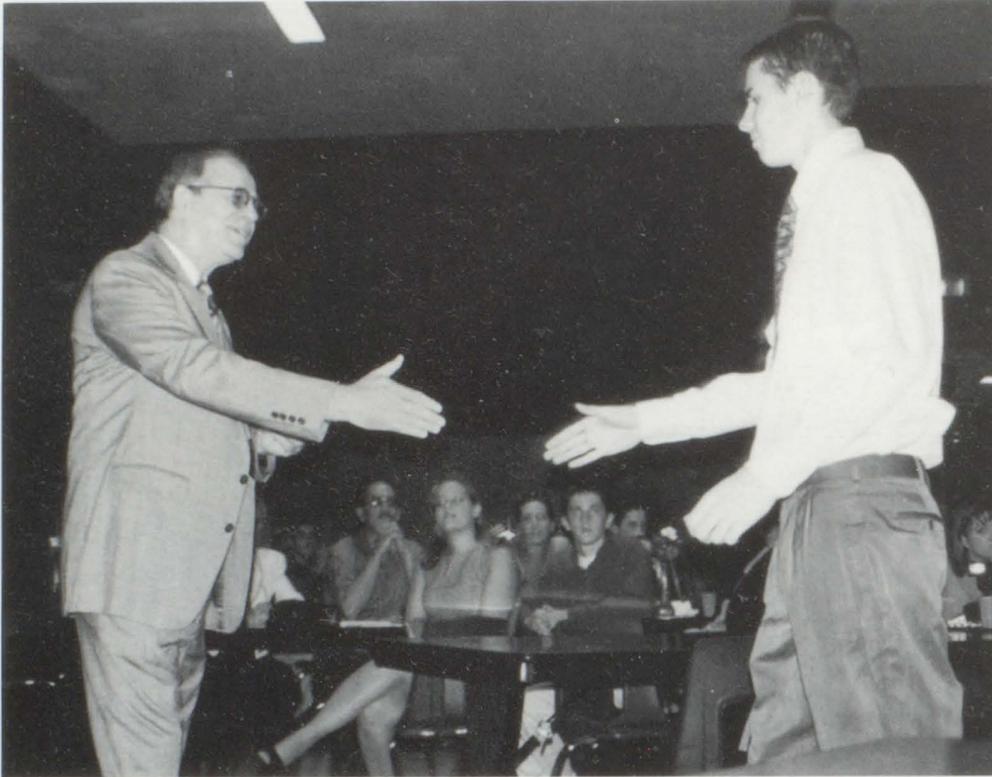

Celebrating Cinco de Mayo outside, this group chows down on some great Mexican food. The Spanish classes usually eat foods such as burritos, enchiladas, and tortilla chips to help celebrate the holiday.

Tying on the string, freshman Kari Austin gets ready to fly her kite. Egg smashing, eating Mexican foods, along with flying kites were just some of the fun activities that took place during Cinco de Mayo.

Scholastic Awards Banquet

Junior Kory Gipson is ready to accept his plaque and shake hands with Superintendent Dr. Robert Huff. "It's good to be recognized each year for something as honorable as that," said Kory. This was Kory's second year to receive a scholastic award.

"I decided to speak on the goals and beliefs which continue to guide in our ascension into the men or women we will become. I enjoyed the challenge of writing a speech from scratch," stated senior Kevin Cline. Kevin had the honor of giving the student response at the annual Scholastic Awards Banquet.

Senior Sean Pogue gives a speech at the Scholastic Awards Banquet. He has received this award for three years by maintaining a high grade point average through hard work and setting goals. "It means a lot to me to be part of the Scholastic Awards because the honor adds meaning to academic honor and achievement," stated Sean.

Senior Morgan Rhetts receives her scholastic award, a paper weight, from Superintendent Dr. Robert Huff. Sophomores received key chains, juniors received plaques, and seniors received paper weights.

Addressing the audience at the Scholastic Awards Banquet, Principal R. Larry Martin describes the importance of scholastic awards. "It is really a wonderful evening to honor students who have excelled in the pursuit of their studies at Madison-Grant High School. We are recognizing the best of the best, with students having to achieve a minimum of a 3.5 grade point average to be honored.

Proud of the honor of receiving a scholastic award, sophomore Annie Melton feels the pressure of maintaining good grades. "I feel a little bit of pressure, like people think if I made it two years, I should make it the other two years also," Annie explained.

Prom: A Dream Come True

The candidates stand anxiously awaiting the announcement of the 2000 king and queen. The candidates are : Justin Tobey, Jenny Dickey, Josh Nieman, Stephanie Randol, Curt Haisley, Amanda Callahan, Mark Branch, and Tiffany Allen. This will be a night all of them will remember.

Sharing a smile between each other, Prom Queen Jenny Dickey, and King Curt Haisley dance to the theme song, Brian McKnight's "Back at One." Although a close race, these two seniors came out on top for the honor of queen and king.

Having had a great time at prom, senior Jeremy Pheffer went in style with his kickin' shoes. He leaves the prom strutting his stuff. Jeremy is known for having a good time wherever he is.

Helping themselves to the punch bowl, seniors and also brother and sister, Amanda and Jeff Sweat prepare their drinks for the evening. These two siblings seem to have a very close relationship, always seen together in and out of school.

Taking a break from dancing, junior Ryan Nelson and his date enjoy sitting together at their table. Many Madison-Grant students were accompanied by students from other schools.

Relaxing in an easy chair, junior Betsy Matchette sits to watch others. This was Betsy's first year at the prom, and she was escorted by junior Justin Crist. Betsy made her own prom dress, which made it so unique.

Having a short chat, senior Zach Wright and his date keep senior Shannon Compton company as she waits for her date senior Matt Mason to pick her up before heading to the after prom. The after prom was held at the high school, with a carnival theme that the students thoroughly enjoyed.

Enjoying their time at prom, these two underclassmen, sophomores Jerin Harvey and Annie Melton, chat with Jerin's date senior Stephen Jones. Many underclassmen got the privilege of going to the prom.

Having a good time at his prom, senior Chris Seybert smiles at his date. The theme of the prom was "A Dream Come True."

Getting punch for him and his date, junior Emily Whirl, senior Travis Hood receives some help from one of the waitresses. The punch was light blue to go with the prom theme.
