Start Your Engines

It's the middle of August, and as the annoying alarm clock kicks on to the tune of the early day's weather forecast and recent news broadcast, it interrupts students pleasantly peaceful dreams of sitting by the pool while working on their tan. Reality soon sets in as they realize the grim fact that the lazy days of summer have just been replaced by piles of textbooks, assignment-obsessed teachers, and homework to fill their spare time. Along with the annual passing out of books, paying fees, schedule adjusting, and orientations, come new experiences, fun activities, sports, and new as well as old, friendship reunions.

The year was off and running with fall sports, such as the cross country team who had been in training long before the end of summer, boys tennis players preparing for the upcoming matches, and football and volleyball athletes getting ready for the season with long and dedicated practices.

Soon homecoming activities were in full swing, with plenty to keep students busy besides homework. Hallway decorating took place, the theme of the year being TV shows. Seniors decorated their hallway with various television shows on ABC such as Tool Time, Coach, and Oprah. Juniors were busy in the operating room, fixing up a injured football player in their hallways with ER, as well as the Conan O' Brian Show, and The Today Show. Sophomores went with a younger style of TV shows, with the channel PBS. Making an appearance in their hallway was Cookie Monster, Big Bird, and the kids' game show, Where in the World is Carmen San Deigo?. Freshmen were in the spotlight with various shows from MTV, such as a round of Singled Out, MG-TV News, and Sandblast.

Though on the twenty-first of August the "fun in the sun" of summer came to an abrupt end, there were plenty of activities to keep students distracted from the lackluster life of a bored high school student. Racing into the new year with ambition, willingness, and spirit made the transition from summer to school a smooth ride.

Junior Dallas Coleman proves that his game of tennis rates right up there with Pete Sampras and Andre Agassi during a tough match in Advanced P.E. When it comes to the latest trends and fashions. M-G students have a...

In the busy class of algebra, the only variables that freshman Eric Deines takes the time to think about are GQ.

Calvin Klein, BOSS, Levi, Dr. Marten, Dollhouse, Abercrombie & Fitch, and Mossimo. Those are just examples of some of the brand names that students were wearing. Not all students prefer name brand. "I try to stay away from brand names as much as possible," said senior Justin Saathoff.

Students dressed in many different ways. The majority of the students wore their clothes baggy. They want to be comfortable. The mood of the person also determined what they were going to wear. "It kind of matters what kind of a mood I am in. Sometimes when I want to be relaxed and still look half-way decent then I wear baggy clothes. But if I am going out on a date then I will wear short and tight clothes," said junior Crissy Vetor.

Favorite fads among students varied, from body piercing to sweaters, from going to concerts to wearing big rings. Corduroy pants rated number one for freshman Jonni Parks, sophomore Gwyn Musick,and senior Carrie Johnson,while junior Laura Linn prefers being comfortable in her relaxed jeans and T-shirt.

"Plaid hip-huggers that flare at the bottom" are junior Maia Dickerson's favorite fad.

When wearing tennis shoes students chose brands like Nike, Airwalk, and Reebok. "My favorite brand of shoes are Dr. Martens."

High school styles and fads repeat themselves. The clothes worn now are more like the clothes in the 60's and 70's. Jewelry and accessories are one of the main repeats.

The "grunge," "alternative," and

"vintage" looks were popular. Sophomore Wendy Stephenson said, "We dress more vintage like and carry modern looking purses and bags."

"Good-bye crew cut hello purple hair," is a slogan that can be used for the fad in students' hair style now. Girls are going for shorter hair, highlighted, or long and layerd. The girls also wear any kind of baby barretts or the kind that are metal and snap. Girls also wear the prong like clips that hold their hair in a French twist pony tail. Boys wear their hair either long on top or short sometimes with the underneath shaved. The different colored hair seems to be popular for both boys and girls.

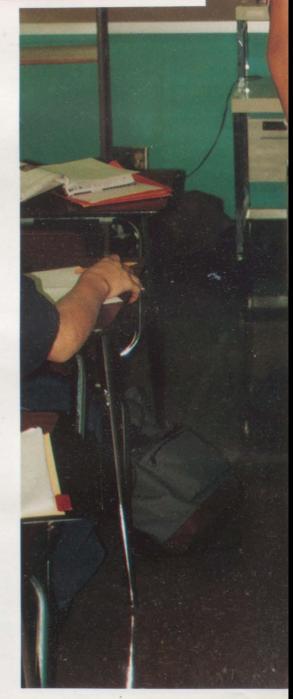

"Dying your hair that reddish color or any color," is the fad in hairstyles said sophomore Katie Runyan.

"Whatever," from the movie Cluless is the happening saying for high school students. "Keep it real," "my bad," "Yo,Yo," "keep it clean," and "shut up Richard," are only a few more of the many sayings of students.

Of all of the different kinds of music, altenative is listened to the most by students. The alternative station, X-103 out of Indianapolis, is where the students tune in to hear alternative music. A majority of the students said their favorite group is No Doubt. Singers Alanis Morissette and the late 2Pac bring up second place as favorite for the students.

At Madison-Grant High School students seem to think backpacks are the most trendy, brands like Jansport, Eastpack, and Eddie Bauer are just a few.

Barney and Friends to Beavis and "Boars" head. Saturday Night Live to Sesame Street. Tool Time to The Today Show. M-G students found network television programs an interesting theme for the homecoming hallways.

As the representatives from each class came together to create "living" hallways, a lot of hard work and group participation paid off as M-G students created some of the most vibrant hallways in M-G history. "Hallways are the hardest part of the homecoming competition, it's fun and all worth the while," commented sophomore Lesli Hussey.

Since networks were the hallway theme of the year, students spent hours building sets and making props to accommodate the network they chose. The freshman class selected MTV. Singled Out, Sand Blast, and Beavis and "Boars" head rounded out their hallway scenes. The sophomores chose the Public Broadcasting Station, better known as PBS. They recreated favorite children's programs such as Barney and Friends, Where in the World is Carmen San Diego?, and Sesame Street. The juniors selected NBC. They created sets for the popular programs: Saturday Night Live, ER, The Conan O'Brien Show, and The Today Show. And finally the seniors chose ABC. They constructed scenes for The Oprah Winfrey Show, Home Improvement, Coach, and Monday Night Football.

The "Battle of Classes" proved to be even throughout homecoming week, and the judges votes ruled that the hallway competition would be close, too. The seniors and juniors tied for first place, while the sophomores took third, and the freshmen came in last. "I think the hallway competition is really neat. It adds to the excitement of homecoming week." said junior Cara Hussey.

Even though the hallways transformed back to their drab selves in a matter of hours, the students and staff who participated will always remember the hard work and fun they had being television stars for a day. "Preparing for the hallways was fun, but I'm glad it's all over until next year." said junior Amanda Dunlap. "It really wore me out!"

Racing side by side freshmen, sophomores, juniors, seniors, and faculty members got ready to qualify for the future. The freshmen stepped it up into second gear ready to qualify as sophomores, while the sophomores raced into their junior year with no looking back. The juniors changed their fuel to head for the home stretch, and the seniors were the champoins, qualifying for their own personal futures. The faculty members made a lot of pit stops along their way, but in the process helped many make it to the checkered flag.

The '97 race was a great year for Madison-Grant High School students. All the way from competing in the homcoming hallway decorations, to the varsity boys basketball team qualifying for the Hall of Fame at New Castle. In the end everyone made it to the finish line, passed the checkered flag and qualified for the future.

WE'VE GOT THE BLUES

Four long years. Senior year is always a fun and exciting year with an ample amount of neat events, good times, and great memories. Senior students always want to make the best of their final year in high school, but more times than none, the seniors become lackadaisical in their studies and catch a bad case of senioritis.

There are many reasons why seniors are influenced by senioritis. At times seniors find themselves becoming bored with the same surroundings they have been around for four years. These students have walked the same halls, had almost every teacher, and ate in the same cafeteria for a long time."Twe been in this building for four years now, and I want out," said senior JoleneFloyd.

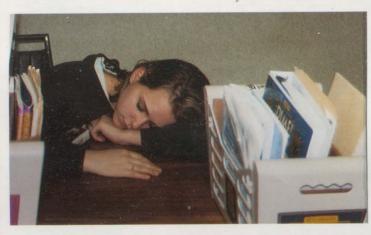

Senior Abby Peacock also commented, 'I feel like I'm stuck in a time-warp. I'm ready to move on with my life."

While some seniors found their surroundings a cause of senioritis, many just wanted to move on to another part of their life. College, military, and even the work force were all options for seniors after high school, and most of them were ready to embark on new things. "I've had a lot of fun times here at M-G, but I think I'm ready to try something new in a different atmosphere," stated senior Amber Heiny.

The seniors themselves were not the only ones who noticed the senioritis. Teachers also recognized if the seniors were not working up to their capability. "Some students begin the year with senioritis," commented Spanish teacher Senora Melson. "Other students are in a hurry for every assignment well or not."

Even though most seniors wanted to hurry up their final year of school, they will look back in a few years and think of all of the good times they shared with thier classmates.

THE BEST CLASS

The class of 1997--the best class ever? Well, some may have thought so, others may not have. And they aren't hesitant to tell anyone either.

"We're the best class athletically to ever go through M-G. And we're good academically, too," commented senior Heath Druck. "We have friendly people who get along with other classes," he said.

Senior Ben Gibson liked the fact that "everybody's into their own thing." He explained, "Since we're a large class, it makes eveyone not want to follow a group as much."

"We're smart and good at sports," said Nick Durr.

A lot of this year's seniors were involved in extracurricular activities. "A lot of the boys played football, and for girls, it was softball or volleyball," said Ben Gibson. "And most of the school's in SADD."

Although the size of this year's graduating class didn't compare with recent years, because it was bigger, some students were still very close. Heath Druck explained, "Since such a large number of seniors play sports, we spend a lot of time together at practices and games."

One thing they all agreed on though, was that the class of 1997 was different than any other, and much more special.

SENIOR MEMORIES

Some of the best things seniors commit to memory are their happy, sad, embarrassing, and unforgettable moments.

Usually they look back and laugh about it or even cry. "One of the saddest things about high school was when my best friend graduated. I felt so alone," said senior Christina Nance.

It is sad to graduate and move on, but usually one's senior year is one of special and funny moments. "One embarrassing thing that happened to me in school was when I was in the lunchroom waiting on a friend, and I leaned back against the wall, when suddenly the room went black and all was silent. I screamed really loud as I realized I had turned out the lights. I felt so stupid," chuckled senior Julia Crawford.

Other events seniors most remember when they get out of high school are clubs, activities, friends, and prom. "I will remember my friends a lot, because I'm friendswith each of them in a different way. Hopefully we stay in touch," commented senior Julia Crawford.

Graduation is the final chapter in the memory book for seniors, the final thing at school before they leaveon their own, away from the stuctured routine of school. "The best thing will be just graduating and getting out of here," said senior Josh Gipson.

HERRING VS. HULL

Writing themes, taking vocabulary tests, learning about famous authors, putting up with English workbooks, and reading literature stories were a few activities that took place in Mrs. Herring and Mrs. Hull's junior academic English classes.

Even if the work is hard in academicÉnglish, students feel that the diligent work will pay off in the future.

The work may have been difficult, but most of Mrs. Hull's students enjoyed spending fifty minutes with her every day. "I love to listen to and watch Mrs. Hull. There is never a dull moment in class. The way she changes her voice and facial expressions really helps me visualize what she is talking about. I think it is also neat that she seems to really enjoy teaching," explained junior Brooke Justus.

Mrs. Hull's style of teaching usually kept the attention of all her students. Some students wished that more teachers were like Mrs. Hull. If most of the junior academic English students had their choice of teacher, they would stick with the one they got. Mrs. Herring prepared her students for the difficult English classes in their future, which will help them become successful. "I love it! We need more teachers like her," said junior Kerry Clark.

Even if the academic class was combined with difficult grading and learning a lot, these juniors were prepared to stay with it 'till the end. "It isn't too tough, but I might just think that because I'm so smart," commented junior academic English student Aaron Aschendorf.

WHAT'S IN A NAME?

"I think nicknames are cool because they give a person a sense of individualism," explained junior Keith Williams. In today's high schools it seems as though everyone is striving for individualism, and nicknames can be a large part of that.

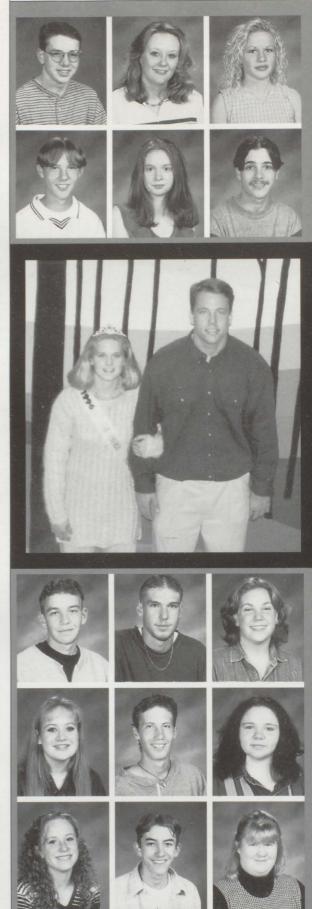

In the junior class, students, such as, Jeremiah "Norm" Lovins and Brett "Pete" Hamilton roamed the halls with their tags given to them by their friends, teachers, or even coaches, as was the case with Aaron "Picasso" Eden's name which was given to him by coach Grant Zgunda because of a hat that "Picasso" wore which looked as though it may have been something a renaissance artist might have worn. Nicknames could describe a person's personality, his looks, his resemblance to a famous person, or a strange occurrence that has happened to him. Cara "Buns O' Steel" Hussey got her name in eighth grade when Kelly Cox served the ball at the Madison County volleyball tournament and hit "Buns O' Steel" square in the rear. Although the name was given to "Buns" in good humor, she explained that she didn't really like it, "because the way I got it was quite embarrassing."

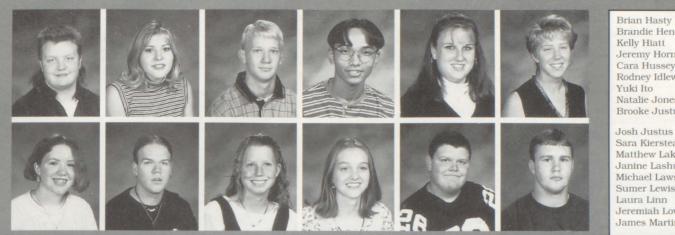

Some nicknames were very subtle, such as Josh Tobey's, who was also known as "Tobe" and Brooke Justus's who was often called "Brookey" but some nicknames are quite different. Examples of these nicknames are Tim "Stem" Ahrens, Kyle "Doughboy" Martin, Neal "Squirrel" Yeater, Nick "Stick" Roth, and Crissy "Nixon" Vetor.

Although the origin of many of these names may never be revealed, some were quite obvious. Nick "Stick" Roth got his name because of his physical status, and Jeremiah "Norm" Lovins got his name because he looks like the character of the same name from the television show Cheers.

Nicknames can give a person an idea about the personality or views of an individual. Junior Jodi Staggs commented, "Nicknames add excitement to every not-so-exciting school day."

WHO HAS TIME?

Who has free time anymore? Because of busy schedules, many students found they had little free time. Some students played sports, others did after school activites, and others had jobs. There were some, though, who spent their whole time at home, mostly at their computer or their television.

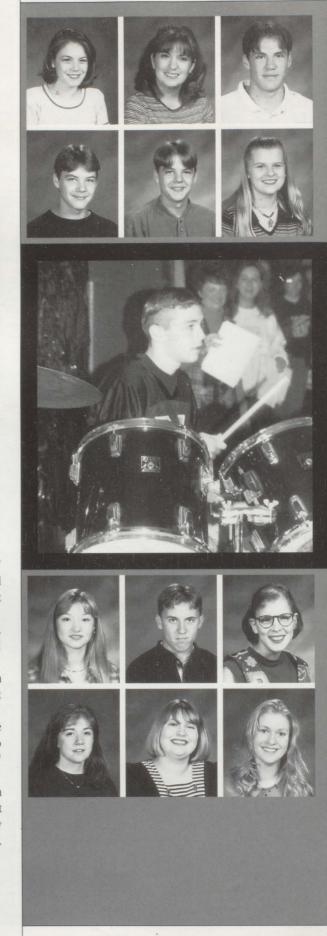

Junior Stephanie Maurer worked a type of secretarial job after school. "I only work until 5:30 p.m., so I still have time to do what I want," said Stephanie. "I like spending time with my boyfriend and talking with my mom."

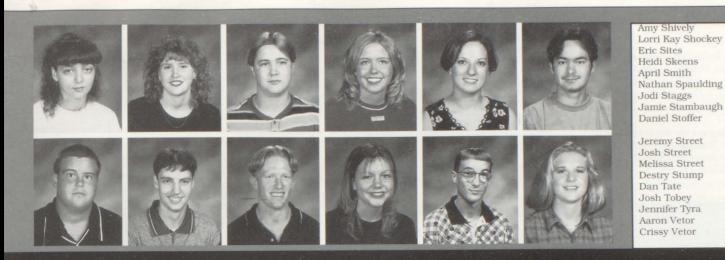

Junior Abby Matchette enjoyed spending time at her church youth group. "When I had studies I did not go anywhere. I wished I could have spent more time reading, though," said Abby.

Junior Amanda Cash enjoyed her free time because she didn't have much time and appreciated the little she found. "I wished I had more time to spend with my friends. I spent most of my free time with family and homework," said Amanda.

A lot of juniors spent their time doing what they liked such as youth group or being with their boyfriends or girlfriends. But one of the things that plagued a lot of juniors was the homework and responsibility of school. Many juniors wished they had more time to do some of the things that they enjoyed.

TURNING SIXTEEN

What did most sophomores think about when they turned 16? Sophomore Charley Pollock said, "The most exciting part about turning 16 would have to be getting your license and having much more freedom."

There were many extra privileges that came with the age of 16. Sophomore Gwyn Musick said, "I can date now."

Sophomore Wendy Stephenson agreed that when she turned 16 she received many more privileges. "I get to have an extended curfew," she added.

But along with a lot of these privileges came more responsibility. Sophomore Beth Stephenson said, "Parents are always on your back about more responsibility. They are constantly telling you to act your age."

Sophomore Amy Bess had a lot of extra things to do since she turned 16. She said," I have to keep the house clean if I want to go out. Everybody has to be responsible when they're sixteen. It's scary thinking of all my friends on the road driving when they're not very experienced."

Another problem many new drivers faced was getting gas money. Sophomore Wendy Stephenson may have found a solution to this problem however. "I plan on getting a job or kissing up to my parents real good."

YOU'RE MY HERO

A hero by definition is a person admired for his noble achievements and noble qualities. Choosing a hero or a role model is difficult for some people; however, for others it is a very easy task. Role models can come in a variety of forms -- as teachers, parents, celebrities, famous athletes, or just the one special person someone admires most.

"Thurman Thomas is my hero," sophomore Craig Holloway said. "He is my favorite athlete," he added.

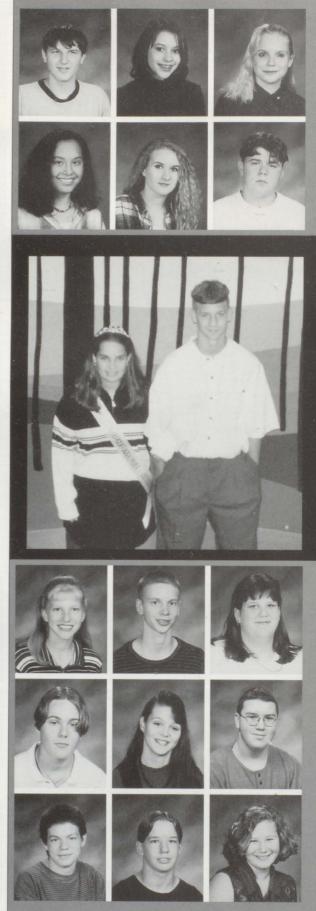

"I look up to Terry Martin," sophomore Damon Stansberry said of Madison-Grant teacher and basketball coach, "because he is taller than me."

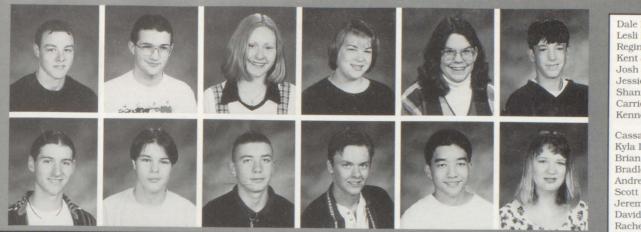

Some students chose a hero that excited them or fulfilled what they thought of as the "perfect person," but that was not always the case. "Mrs. Pattison, my second grade teacher, is my role model, " sophomore Gwyn Musick said. "She always gave the extra effort to help us out, " she added.

Some students didn't need a specific role model. " I don't have a role model because different people do cool things that I would like to do," sophomore Wendy Stephenson commented.

Though many movie stars and famous athletes tend to stand in the spotlight as role models of today, a hero doesn't necessarily come from a movie or a basketball court. A role model, one special person who has made a positive impact on a life can be found anywhere, often unnoticed in the form of a friend.

SOPHOMORE MILESTONES

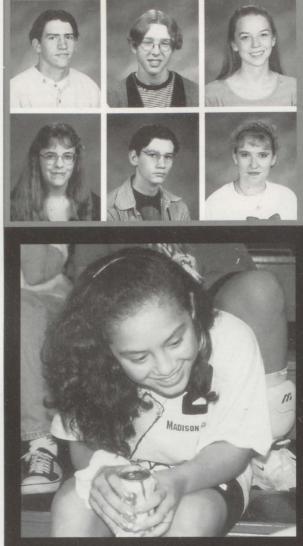

Sophomores have many things to be thankful for, and one is that they no longer hold the title of freshmen. Even though they are still underclassmen, they usually aquire more freedom as their high school years progress. Along with more maturity, dating, driving, and curfew extensions, students tend to act more maturely as sophomores.

Most students looked upon getting their license as a new advance toward individuality and independence. No longer being dependent on an older person or friend to transport them was a large benefit of turning sixteen, while also becoming a large responsibility. Sophomore Shana Wheadon said, "I'm ready to get my license, so I don't have to stay at home when I don't feel like it."

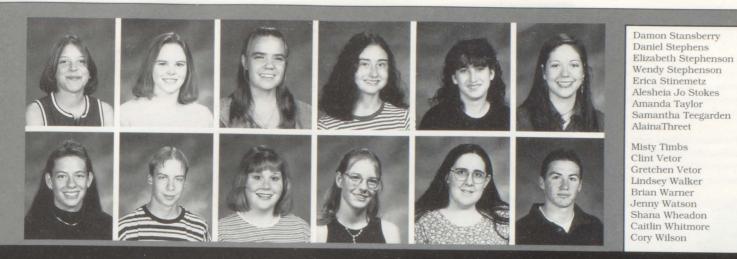

Dating was another new experience for some sophomores because most parents felt that sixteen was an appropriate age to begin going out. Sophomore Lesli Hussey stated, "I was allowed to date at 15, it was a lot of fun."

After their freshman year was over, students were more confident in knowing their way around the school, were more experienced at homecoming and other events, and often had many more friends, some older students whom they may have been intimidated by in the past. "As a sophomore I don't feel nervous around upperclassmen anymore," said sophomore Casey Clevenger.

EYES ON THE FUTURE

Robots, aliens, the end of the world, the Jetsons, computerized homes, solar-powered cars, science fiction, and advanced technology are all items that the year 2000 may bring to mind. All of these things might not be the first things that come to mind for the year 2000 graduates, however.

"It kind of makes me worried about going to college and everything that comes with that, but hearing it also gets me excited about the future," freshman Eric Deines said about the year 2000. The year 2000 is not as far into the future as many people think.

"The greatest part is knowing that everyone looks at the year of 2000 as the future," freshman Jenny Dickey said. The class of 2000 was not only excited about the world's future as well as theirs, but also being the first to graduate in a futuristic year.

"Knowing that I am the first to graduate in a new century is one of the greatest parts of being a part of the class of 2000," said freshman Matt Mason. The class of 2000 thought of graduating and attending college, but some students have planned otherwise.

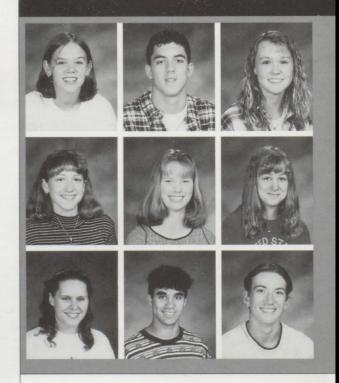

"Retirement and new beginnings" were in Mr. Bach's futuristic idea of what he can look forward to.

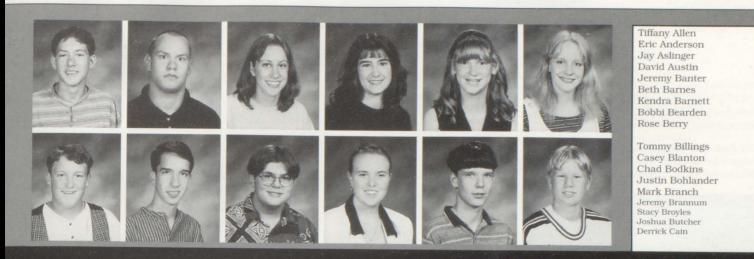

So as the year of 2000 approaches, freshman Eric Deines was thinking ahead for his class motto for the 21st century. "Get your surf board ready, here comes the wave of the future!"

SCHOOL INSPIRATIONS

These days living up to a parent's expectations as a high school student carries enough pressure. But for one freshman at Madison-Grant, an extra set of circumstances adds to her high school education.

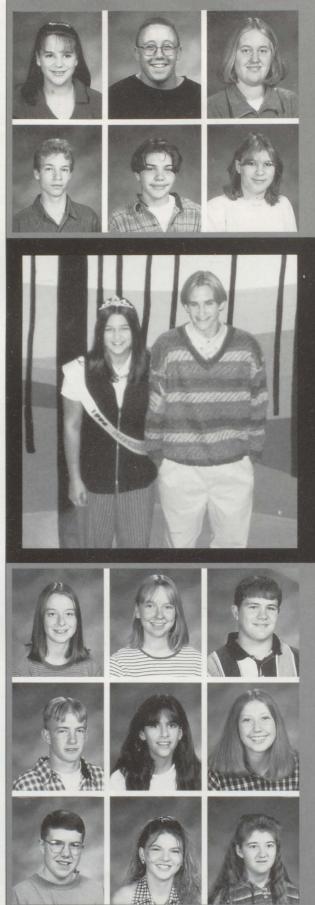

Leanna Huff is the daughter of Dr. Robert Huff, our superintendent, and she is a freshman at Madison-Grant. Being the daughter of the superintendent of schools in your area would seem to have some advantages; yet, it carries little importance on Leanna's education. Some students may think that Leanna would get more attention from teachers and more of a break at school if she were to try and take advantage of her unique situation of her father being in the position that he is. Leanna disagreed and commented, "He's just my dad. He's the only dad I have."

Most students have the opportunity to get away from the school, teachers, and personnel by gong home in the evenings; however, for Leanna, school has become a part of every day life, whether through her father's position in the school community, or through her attendance and classes.

Growing up with her father around, Leanna has often seen sides of her father that are not visible to the rest of the community. Leanna enjoys spending time with her father and stated, "My dad's funny at times, kind of strict, but he likes to go to water parks and do fun stuff with me."

Though having a superintendent as a father may bring some extra pressure, and it certainly has its good and bad points, Leanna has adjusted well to her unique position and continues her high school years as any normal high school student would.

SIZE MATTERS

Starting in elementary school, changes had to be made just for the large class of 2000. Some elementary schools had to hire additional staff to accommodate the large class.

The class of 2000 also affected the high school's student body by greatly increasing its size. When the high school first opened, there were about 900 students attending Madison-Grant. With only 500 students attending at the present, the student body seems to be a small amount compared to the once 900. The astonishing point to these statistics is that of the 500 students, 150 of them are made up of the freshman class of 2000.

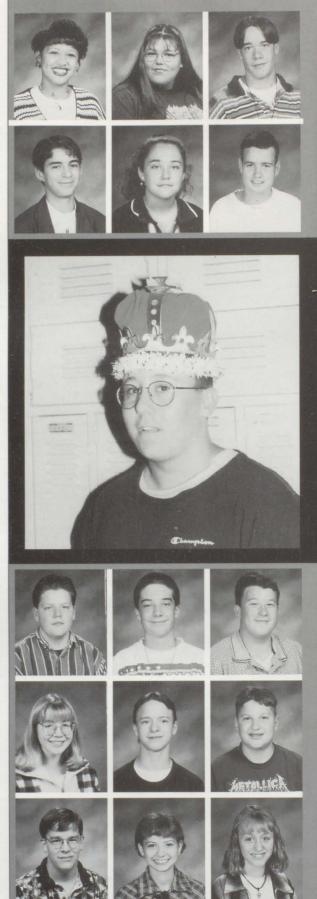

"There are too many of us, so we can't always take the classes that we want to," explained freshman Kevin Giselbach. Being large didn't always help the class of 2000. There were some advantages, however.

"We get to meet more people," said freshman Andy Stanley. Even if being in a large class made things difficult academically for the class of 2000, the students still found enjoyment and relaxation in thier social lives. Sports on the other hand, seemed to form a bit of a problem for those who were trying to excel.

Freshman Kendra Barnett explained the class of 2000's situation very clearly when she said, "We have a disadvantage in sports, because there is so much competition." That point seemed to be true in both girls' and boys' sports.

"So many people went out for the (football) team, so I didn't get to play as much," said freshman Kevin Giselbach.

No one said that it was easy being a freshman athlete in high school. But all athletes have to experience the changes and challenges of competing in freshmen sports if they plan on succeeding. Sometimes when varsity sports are being played, the freshmen athletes usually do not get much attention. The freshmen made the best of their year in athletics anyway.

"It was fun playing on the freshman volleyball team, since it was the last time that our class got to play together as a team before splitting up and going to junior varsity and varsity," said freshman volleyball player Shannon Compton. Splitting up is hard to do after playing together for the past two years. Not everyone has to split up though. In some sports classmates remain together.

"It meant a lot to me to know that I am so good as a freshman on the varsity team. The time was very enlightening," said freshman tennis player Steven Ott.

BOOKS ON THE BEACH

After a grueling year of education, most every student was ready for a break. The tedious hours of reading, the long nights of studying, and the pressures of getting good grades got to many of the students, and they looked forward to every break they received. But just as the students tried to escape the pressures of school, so too did the teachers.

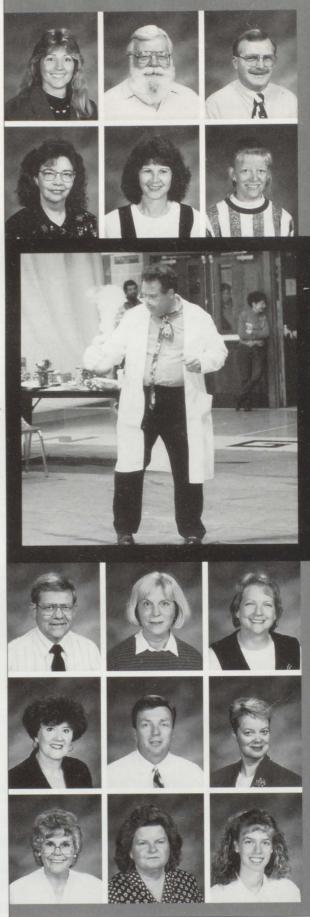

The teachers enjoyed their time off just as much as the students, if not more. With their time off many of the teachers went on vacation. They've traveled anywhere from France, to California, to Florida. "Fort Myers, Florida is my favorite spot because it's warm and my parents live there, so I have a cheap place to stay," commented Mr. Summers who travels to Fort Myers annually during spring break.

While on vacation, teachers escaped the stresses of the classroom by shopping, sightseeing, playing volleyball, or just reading a good book on the beach as Mrs. Kirby explained, "My favorite activities have changed over the years. Beach parties have been replaced with reading a good book on the beach."

Although most teachers would have rather flown to their favorite vacation spots, there are a few that preferred driving. The teachers enjoyed driving because they like sightseeing, they're afraid of flying, or just because it's more economical. "I would prefer driving to Europe, but I find that flying is more practical," stated Mrs. Herring who traveled to France with some Madison-Grant students a few years ago.

Vacationing can be great fun no matter who a person is or how old he may be, and teachers enjoy themselves just as much as the students when they travel. Although their classes may be drab and boring, remember, teachers have lives too.

THE ROAD TO RETIREMENT

The idea of when to retire has become a big question for many Madison-Grant teachers. Even though several teachers have neared the age to retire, they don't want to consider it. Other teachers can not wait for retirement to arrive, so they can enjoy many activities like relaxing with their families, traveling around the country, and taking on fun-filled part-time jobs.

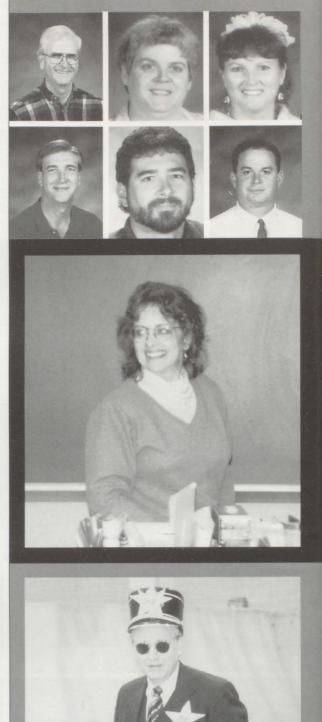

"I hope to teach part time in a local collge. In a few years, when my wife retires I plan on going to Florida for a few months each winter," said Mr. Palmer. Mr. Palmer showed the students at Madison-Grant that a job shouldn't just be a job, but also a hobby. Other teachers who planned to retire also want to spend more time with their hobbies after retirement.

"I want to work at a golf course, or I would like to work with computers," Mr. Bach commented. The Madison-Grant teachers loved their hobbies and doing their job so much that they might even miss their job when they retire.

Even though Mr. Earnest loved to travel and was excited to do so after retirement, he will miss the students. "Most of the students are great. I will miss trying to help young people step closer to their goals, dreams, and future." Many teachers agreed that they would miss the students and the faculty after retirement. Even with the sorrow of leaving, many teachers were excited to do the traveling that they had always wanted to do after retirement.

"I want to go to Alaska, but I would like to do that before retirement. Other than Scotland and Australia, other "dream" destinations would be within the United States," said Mrs. Kirby. -sports-The Greatest Spectacle...

Argyll athletics haven't been too shy in the win department over the past few years. Season after season Madison-Grant has fielded many outstanding teams and became a true nemesis in central Indiana. Argylls are proud of their athletic program and show unique pride when stepping onto the field, court, track, and course.

While Sectional victories were few and far between, the Argylls won a number of C.I.C. championships and Grant Four titles. The number two ranked football team had an outstanding season with a 9-1 record and its third straight C.I.C. crown, while the girls' basketball team claimed its first C.I.C. title in the school's history. The boys' cross country team claimed its first C.I. C. title and its third straight Grant Four to dominate the area, while the girls' volleyball team claimed back to back Grant Four championships. The boys' basketball team won its second straight Grant Four and also placed a strong third in the prestigious Hall of Fame Classic. The Argylls posted a 19-5 record and were ranked as high as six during the season.

Indvidually, senior Mike Spencer advanced to the Semi-State in wrestling, while senior standout Kyle Runyan was the ninth highest scorer in Indiana and became M-G's all time leading scorer in basketball. In cheerleading, senior Renee Smith and junior Amy Record were honored to be named as All-American Cheerleaders.

While many Argyll athletic teams stood out, some teams struggled to gain a single victory. The boys' tennis team failed to win a single meet for the fourth straight year, and the wrestling team struggled also. But even with the struggles, not once did an M-G athlete show lack of pride or unsportsman like conduct. Each and every athlete strove for glory and lived up to their role as a Madison-Grant Argyll.

Making his way out of the woods, number one runner junior Brett Hamilton contributes to the Argylls' success at the Mississinewa cross country meet.

Getting pumped up for the sectional game against Marion, the Argyll cheerleaders show their spirit by following senior Amber Heiny in the rollercoaster cheer. Putting a hand in the face of the Tipton defender, senior Ben Caudell dodges a tackle. Quick pivots and smart decisions were keys to a successful back field that scored many touchdowns during the course of the year.

With the atmosphere of the RCA Dome around them, Coach Zgunda and assistant Coach Hartman tell senior Kyle Runyan the next play. The Argylls whipped up on the Wabash Apaches 47-0 in the home of the Colts.

Tackled by three Wabash players, sophomore Damon Stansberry gets a few extra yards near the end of the game. The "blow-out" gave non-starters plenty of playing time and many memories at the RCA Dome.

"We had a great season. We all worked as a t e a m a n d acted like one big family. We won together and at the end of the season we sadly lost together."

FOOTBALL Three in a Row

Dedication is essential in order to pursue one's goals. Hard work and a positive attitude can conquer any opponent. While the Argyll football team dedicated themselves to preparing for the upcoming season in the weight room, success was lurking in each one of their minds.

Success was not too scarce for the number two ranked Argylls, as they rolled over their opponents in a truly dominant fashion. Teamwork was essential and the members of the team proved that they had the right chemistry to form an immense bond. "We are like one big family with one common goal in mind. We all work hard each week in order to reach that goal," stated senior Kyle Young.

Junior Max Miller also commented, "No one person stood out greatly. We stood out as a team."

With fans, media, and parents asking "Who could top the 1995 season?," the Argylls proved that they could indeed top their previous performance with a perfect regular season record of 8-0 and M-G's first ever out right conference championship. The team had tied for the conference crown the past two seasons. "I think winning the conference out right for the first time is a great accomplishment for the team and the school," said senior Ben Caudell.

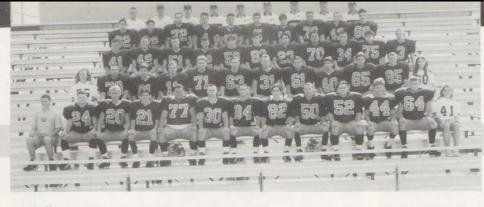

Along with the perfect C.I.C. record of 7-0, the Argylls truly claimed "bragging rights" of the conference when they won the traveling conference milk can trophy. The milk can, in its first year of existence, proved to intensify the tough C.I.C. race. The team took the milk can from Tipton, as the Argylls beat the Blue Devils for the second straight year.

The Argylls also received the chance to play in the RCA Dome in Indianapolis for the first time in four years. The team was amazed by the dome's immense size, but that didn't stop them from trouncing the Wabash Apaches 47. 0. The team didn't put their appearance in the dome in the back of their minds though. They hoped to return at the end of the season to play in the state championship game.

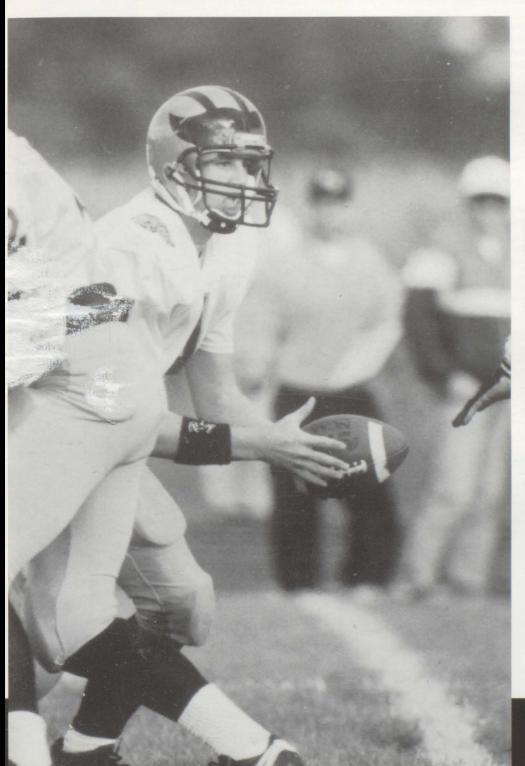

One year after getting nipped by the eventual regional clear Knights of Southwood in Sectional play, the Argylls told themselves they would prevail as Sectional champions in '96. The Argylls ran by the Taylor Titans in the first Sectional match-up with a score of 31-0, but in the semi-regame with the host Apaches, the Argylls faced their only loss of the season. The Apaches rallied to beat M-G 20-14 and to end one of the best bootball seasons in M-G history.

During a victorious home meet, senior Angie McCord looks ahead to the finish line. Angie was determined to push herself to the end of her high school cross country career.

Keeping a set pace ahead of a Southwood runner, freshman Desiree Justus and senior Amber Heiny have full concentration as they round the flag marker. The Lady Argylls found themselves running sideby-side to give competition and words of encouragement.

CROSS COUNTRY

Leading The Pack

"Our girls' cross country team was bigger than it has been in a long time, and this helped make us work harder. The season was a success and we hope to have a good turn out next season."

Wendy Stephenson, Sophomore The Madison-Grant three-peat on the boys' side was a victory by committee again. The Madison-Grant boys cross country team took five of the first 10 places and won the Grant Four cross country championship, for the third straight year.

"We were pretty confident, and it was important to win this one because we won the last two," said junior Brett Hamilton, who placed third in the Grant Four. "All of us stayed close together while everyone else was spread pretty far apart. I just ran as hard as I could, and I knew the other guys were trying their best, too."

The Argylls' success did not end with the Grant Four. The Argylls swept the first five positions in two different meets. Once against the host Elwood at a triangular meet and the other against Alexandria. The Argylls also claimed the first four spots in the victory over Mississinewa. To top it all off the Argylls also won the Central Indiana Conference meet at Tipton, defeating seven teams.

The Argylls finished with a spectacular season. The 16-2 record indicated all of the boys' hard work.

The girls team had a record breaking and undefeated regular season. The 14-3 record shows what a great performance these ladies displayed.

"I am very pleased with this year's season, because the team has done very well and worked together. In dual and triangular meets, the girls' team went undefeated. This was a big accomplishment for us," said senior Angie McCord.

To start the season out right the girls swept the first nine spots versus White's Inc., which featured only three White's runners.

The girls had the best C.I.C finish ever for Madison-Grant, placing second after the host Tipton's Lady Blue Devils. Senior Angie McCord placed ninth, with junior Crissy Vetor following seconds later taking tenth place.

In the Grant Four the Lady Argylls placed third beating Oak Hill and Eastbrook. The leading runner for Madison-Grant was junior Crissy Vetor, who placed third and a few spots back was senior Angie McCord placing ninth.

"You don't run cross country for fun. You run it because it is a challenge. We have so much fun running because we are together and that makes it fun. We are a family and we have a job to do," said junior Crissy Vetor.

-by Megan Diskey

Junior Brett Hamilton leads the pack out of the woods during the cross country meet at Mississinewa. Brett went on to receive the "Most Valuable Runner award" at the end of the season.

With looks of determination on their faces, juniors Josh Justus and Travis Haynes push themselves to a faster pace. At close view from one another, these two set their goals and accomplished them with victory.

The boys' cross country team concentrates on pacing themselves for the tough race ahead against the Eastern Comets. The Comets defeated the Argylls in one of the Argylls' few losses. Following through on a powerful serve number one doubles player Justin Tobey works hard all season to help his confidence for the future.

"The seniors this year saw many, many losses in their high school tennis careers, but every season we had a lot of fun. We each improved immensely on our games despite the 0-22 record."

> Doug Small, Senior

TENNIS Searching for a Win

Tennis, a sport that is not as popular as football, is one where the athlete has to work just as hard to excel. It's even tougher to work, and succeed, with mostly freshman players.

That's how it was at Madison-Grant, though all ten players were eager to play, only two were experienced upperclassmen. With a new assistant coach, Steve Shugart, the players began to learn the game and the main skills of tennis.

"We had a very young team, so we had kids with no experience playing juniors and seniors on other teams," commented assistant coach Shugart.

So off the team started with two main goals set: to win the first team match in four years, and to become a better, more improved team. Unfortunately, only the second goal was accomplishd. Though the new, young team came close to winning, two players tied in the end, still leaving their record 0-22

"I wanted to gain points for the team so that we might win," explained Ryan Williams.

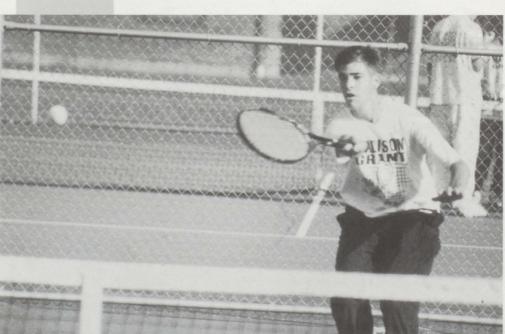

Even though this was a tough season, some left with pride and a feeling of accomplishment in their hearts. "This year I learned I loved playing. It became like a religion to me. I thought and did it everyday," said freshman Justin Tobey.

Getting a real taste for the game, freshman Jeremy Pfeffer jumps at his chance to return a ball to help his chances of winning his match. Jeremy was one of the many freshmen on the underclassmen dominated team.

Freshman Matt Stephenson utilizes his speed to return a ball hit to him across the court. Strong legs and agility were very vital to the boys' tennis team even though the boys failed to win a meet this season. These strong qualities will help the underclassmen achieve their goals in the future.

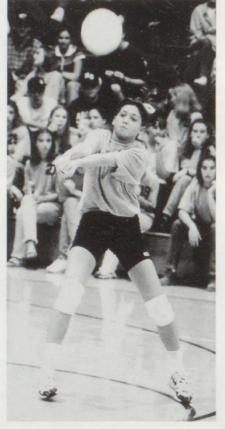

Adding style to his game, senior Ryan Jeffries sports his Oakley sunglasses while working on his forehand. Having such a young team, the seniors showed great leadership to their underclassmen teammates.

Timing and precision are key factors for senior Dawn Presley as she hits the ball. Dawn helped her team immensely by her consistent front row play.

Volleyball

Set on Perfection

"I'm glad I could come all the way from Idaho and play volleyball in Indiana. Usually some players can't concentrate and focus on their game after moving to a new school, but surprisingly I played well in that situation."

Tina Fonseca, Senior

All C.I.C, All County, All Sectional, Chronicle Tribune Player of the Year, Sports Hotline Player of the Year. As the members of th Lady Argyll volleyball team patiently watched the days of August slip by, they began to get worried about whether or not M-G would have a volleyball coach for the 1996 season. For weeks the girls practiced without a coach and made the best of a bad situation. Finally, after the seemingly endless two weeks, a coach was named. Lisa Schwinn became the third coach for the Lady Argylls in as many years when she took the team under her wing and began coaching them the game of volleyball. "We didn't care how long it took to get a coach because we didn't just want anyone off of the street coming in and coaching us. We wanted someone who knew the game of volleyball and someone who could coach well," stated senior Janet Babcock.

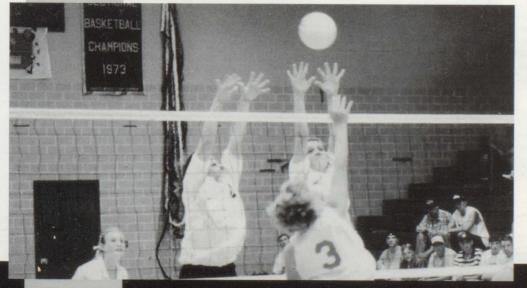

With all of the controversey concerning the coaching staff, the ladies looked to a disappointing year with few wins. But the opposite was true when the girls flourished and posted a 17-11 record, won their second straight Grant Four championship, placed third in the tough C.I.C. race, and were the Sectional runner-ups. During the first round of the Grant Four, the Lady Argylls were the underdogs to a tough Oak Hill team, but they conquered those odds and went on to beat the Lady Golden Eagles 15-9, 15-7. In the championship they beat the Lady Panthers of Eastbrook to take the title.

Taking the Grant Four championship "high" into the Sectional, the ladies quickly beat the Lakeview Christian Lady Lions 15-9, 15-12. But a loss came to the team after a three-set thriller with Oak Hill to end the girls' great season.

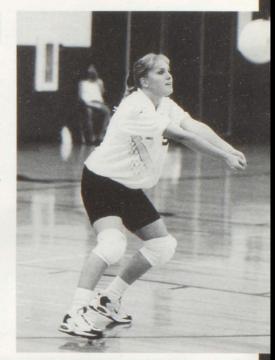

Another highlight to the great season was a move-in from Idaho named Tina Fonseca. Tina lead the team in almost every category and acquired the Chronicle Tribune and Sports Hotline player of the year honors. "Getting player of the year was a great honor," stated Fonseca. "I really worked hard to prove that I could play. I really enjoyed playing with the Lady Argylls."

Also leading the team were seniors Dawn Presley and Amber Shively. They, along with Fonseca, netted all-county and all-C.I.C. honors.

Keeping her eyes on the ball, senior Amber Shively carefully thinks over a crucial situation. Quick reflexes and split-second timing are essential in volleyball.

Getting low in order to make the perfect pass, senior Giovanna Myers plays the back row in a tough regular season match at Eastbrook.

Reaching high to block the hit of their Lakeview Christian opponent, junior Amanda Dunlap and senior Giovanna Myers extend their arms above the net. Senior setter Andrea Linn provides help as she watches the ball's next move. Carefully watching his opponent, junior Beau Engle plays tight zone defense against the C.I.C. rival Blackfork Bruins. M-G placed second behind Alexandria in league play with a record of 6-1.

Hesitating before following through with his free throw, junior center Max Miller concentrates on the "charity stripe." Max easily filled the shoes of Rob Helfen at the center position and also became a tremendous asset to the Argylls.

Palming the ball with one hand, senior point guard Kyle Elsworth controls an offensive play versus the Blackford Bruins. Offense was a very strong point for M-G as the team averaged eighty points per game.

"It meant a lot knowing that many people knew how good we were even though we're a small school. Class basketball will take away from the smaller schools like M-G next year. I think the larger schools will get more attention, and I am glad I won't be playing in the class basketball system."

BASKETBALL On the Map

One year after dominating one of the toughest sectionals in Indiana, the Madison-Grant varsity basketball team looked to follow the same shimmering path in the 1996-1997 season. Considering the starting line-up from a year ago was only missing standout center Rob Helfen due to graduation, the Argylls returned many key players and tons of varsity experience. The experience lead to a pre-season state ranking of six and an opportunity to play in the prestigious Hall of Fame Classic, played in the world's largest high school fieldhouse, New Castle High School's Chrysler Arena. M-G was joined with Anderson, Batesville, and DeKalb in the annual holiday tournament.

Even though the Argylls didn't stay amongst Indiana's finest in the polls all season, the team posted an outstanding regular season record of 18-4. This record was a great achievement because the Argylls faced one of the hardest schedules ever. They faced the number two Anderson Indians, the number five DeKalb Barons, and the number three Batesville Bulldogs. The only losses came from Anderson, Batesville, Alexandria, and Mount Vernon during the regular season. "This year our schedule was very challenging. We played a lot of highly ranked teams like DeKalb and Anderson. We may have came up short a few times against these teams, but I feel we played really well against some of the state's best competition," commented senior Kyle Runyan.

Junior All-Star Kyle Runyan became M-G's all-time leading scorer with 1,579 points. Kyle surpassed Chad Wilson at the midway point of the season against Elwood. Kyle's shooting abilities and all around play helped him earn many accomplishments during his outstanding high school career. This season he reclaimed his title as county player of the year, was the ninth leading scorer in Indiana, and was chosen to the all-C.I.C. and all-sectional teams. The team accomplishments included a second straight Grant Four championship title and a strong second place finish in the C.I.C. behind the Alexandria Tigers.

With Indiana facing its last single-class basketball tournament in 1997, the Argylls hoped to advance far in the state tournament to prove that the smaller schools could compete with the larger ones. As March came around the Argylls hoped to win back to back Marion Sectionals and hopefully win their first Marion Regional. After an easy 30 point win against the rival Mississinewa Indians, the Argylls were upset 81-75 by Marion in the finals.

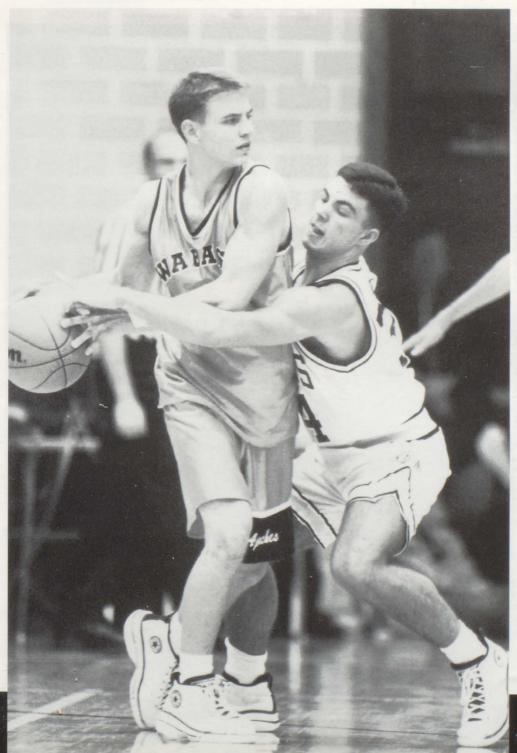

Even though the Argylls fell short in the very end, the team had a lot to be proud of. In three years the Argylls posted a 55-17 record putting the Argyll basketball program on the map.

Sophomore Brad Manning dribbles toward the basket while searching for an open man in the Marion Sectional semifinals. The Argylls were sadly upset by the host Giants to end their season at 19-5, which was one of the best finishes ever for M-G.

Looking toward the basket, senior Kyle Young pump fakes to trick his defenders and get an easier shot. Kyle was an offensive threat, but he was even better known for his defensive play on the court.

Playing very tough defense on his Wabash opponent, junior Dallas Coleman tries to steal the ball without fouling. Defense was a key for the Argylls as they held many oponents to under fifty points throughout the season.

J.V. Boys Basketball: Front Row: Brett Hamilton, Brock Ricks, Kyle Feller, Jason Hiatt. Second Row: Craig Holloway, Reid Druck, Jeremy Shelton, Jeremiah Downer, Nick Roth, Jeremy Freel, Coach Davis.

BASKETBALL

Playing for the Future

The junior varsity basketball team had a season full of ups and downs. Most of the games lost were only lost by a few points and the team had their share of overtimes.

"The season went pretty good. We had three experienced juniors, several improving sophomores, and we even brought up some freshmen towards the end of the season," commented team captain, junior Brett Hamilton.

The leaders of the J.V.team were the three juniors, Brett Hamilton, Nick Roth, and Jeremy Shelton. These three teammates averaged between six and nine points each during a game. Another player who stood out, standing 6'9" tall, was sophomore Rob Carty. Rob also got some experience by getting some playing time on the varsity team. Two players who really surprised everyone with their skill were freshmen Zach Callahan and Jeremiah Downer. These guys were nervous during their first few junior varsity games, but as the season progressed, they became more and more confident.

Mount Vernon proved to be the toughest competition this year. The Argylls put all they had into this game, but the quick moves and good defense of Mount Vernon resulted in an unfortunate loss. The Argylls really shined in the game against Elwood. This game was probably the easiest competition for the team; this time the effort resulted in a victory. The most exciting game of the J.V. season was the game against Mississinewa. The game was very close throughout, and it went into double overtime. Finally we came out on top with a score of 75-71.

The freshman basketball team had a good year going nine and six on the season. Though they had six losses, four of the losses were very close with one loss in overtime. Being new to a high school basketball team, many of the freshmen had to adjust to a higher level of play. Mr. Strasemeier explained, "A lot of the the time players think they're playing or woking hard, but they're not. I think as the season progressed they realized how hard they had to work."

The frehmen seemed to adjust well and gained a winning season in the progress.

With an Eastbrook defender sticking a hand in the way of his shot, sophomore Jason Hiatt draws a foul and receives a trip to the foul line. The J.V. team focused on free throws all season long and won a few close games by connecting from the line.

Freshman Justin Tobey pushes the ball up the court with the pressure of a tough Marion press. Hours of dribbling and ball-handling drills at practice greatly improved the guards for game situations.

Stepping around a Marion defender, freshman Clint Jump prepares to pass the ball back out to a guard when he forsees trouble near the basket. The freshman team improved dramatically from a year ago and posted ten wins this season.

the past four years. We started out slow this season, but toward the end of the season we were winning most of our games. We all came together to win against some tough J.V. teams like Mississinewa, Elwood, and Pendleton Heights."

> Reid Druck, Sophomore

Reaching high, senior co-captain Dawn Presley shoots over her Mississinewa opponent in the Grant Four consolation game. Dawn led her team in many categories and was the only player to play all four years on the varsity level.

Leading a fast break, senior Tina Fonseca prepares to jump stop and score. Tina came off of the bench to add quickness and leadership on the court after moving to Indiana from Twin Falls, Idaho.

Dribbling around an Oak Hill opponent in the Grant Four, junior Amanda Dunlap makes sure she doesn't step out of bounds and create a turn over. The Lady Argylls place third in the Grant Four by beating Mississinewa in the consolation game. "We worked hard to win C.I.C., and knowing that we did it feels great. I know that no matter how many teams accomplish this feat in the future, I will be part of the very first one."

BASKETBALL History in the Making

A new coach, new players, aggressive veterans, and an entire team of determined Lady Argylls were combined factors that assisted in the girls basketball team's numerous successes and victories.

The Lady Argylls accomplished many goals, including claiming their place in history. The varsity team was the first to win the C.I.C. championship title in the history of Madison-Grant. "Winning the C.I. C. makes me feel great! Just knowing that no other M-G girls basketball team in school history has ever been the C.I. C. champions makes the win so special to me. It is something that I will never forget," commented senior Amber Heiny.

Long hours of practice, determination, and dedication were all present among the team members as they worked together to accomplish the championship goal. Junior Joanna Dykhoff commented, "I believe that the team did a great job on being a team, and that is what gave us the C.I. C. title."

Besides winning the championship, the Lady Argylls also ended the season with a great record of 11-7. No matter how tough the teams, the Lady Argylls were always right there in the running. "We knew that if we lost a game it had better have been because the opposing team was better, and not because we gave up," commented junior Brooke Justus.

A new coach, Mr. Steve Younce, long practices, and large amounts of dedication played an important role in the team's accomplishments. "All of the sprints, drills, and getting up at 5:30 in the morning in order to shoot free throws or have practice was kind of a bummer, but I know the running and extra work helped us win the tough games," added Justus.

The future of girls basketball for Madison-Grant appears to be a bright one. The junior varsity team ended with an outstanding record of 14-2, the best girl's JuniorVarsity. team had ever done. In addition, the team won its first J.V. Northfield Invitational in the school's history.

At the end of an incredible record setting season, the team accomplished many goals, personal and as a team. Junior Lady Argyll Joanna Dykhoff stated, "Our team was very successful, and I felt privileged just to be a part of it."

Junior Aaron Aschendorf works to get behind a Mississinewa wrestler and gain control of the sectional match. Endurance and agility were needed for Aaron to conquer his opponent and win the sectional.

During the final seconds of his match against the Oak Hill Golden Eagles, junior Shaun Nelson grinds his teeth with determination as he struggles to pin his opponent.

Junior James Martin tries to stay low as he looks for an opening to shoot for a take down. Staying low is a very important part of James' wrestling techniques.

"Dedication is greater in wrestling than in any other sport. As well as being in top physical condition, you have to be able to wrestle before 9 a.m. at most Saturday morning meets."

WRESTLING

Success on the Mat

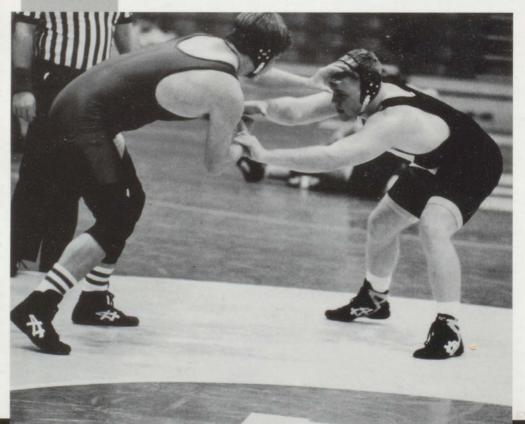

Running endless miles, repeating the same tedious move over and over, lifting pounds of iron, strict dieting, and long drawn-out pratices, all for what? It was a daily routine for the wrestling team in order to accomplish one goal...to win.

M-G wrestlers participated in the Grant Four and sectionals this year, where Shane Myers, Aaron Aschendorf, Mike Spencer, (who also went to semi-state) all received first and second places. The team also participated in the CIC Tournament.

Though the team did not achieve a perfect record in competitions this year, and the team as a whole was sometimes defeated, wrestlers were victorious in their matches individually. Yuki Ito commented, "We had a good season overall. Even though we didn't win all our matches, we learned that winning isn't everything. It's the effort you put forth, and knowing you've done the best you could do to represent the school and yourself."

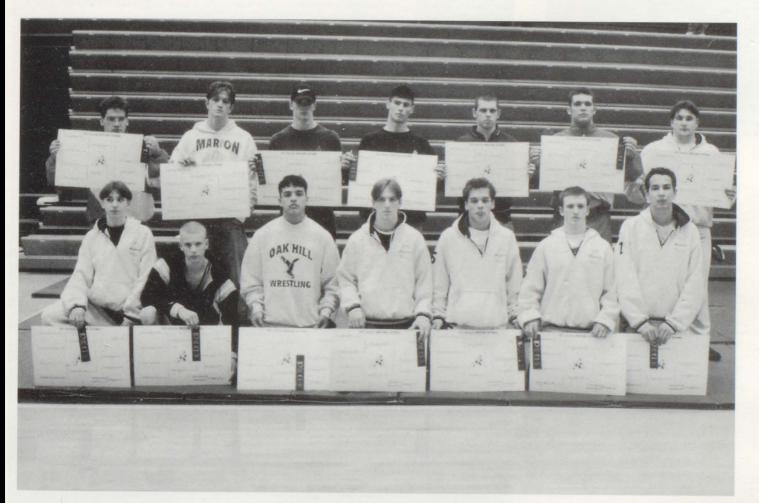

The team was a good size, with quite a few new eager freshmen, combined with the more experienced veterans. Learning to work as a team of competitors and forming a group of support from fellow wrestlers caused the team to be more successful than it may have appeared by looks of the records. Coach Tanner commented, "Wrestling is a sport where an individual, if they have the self-discipline, can succeed no matter what their size."

Presenting their first place ribbons and Sectional championship souvenirs, the Grant County Sectional champions stand proud after their accomplishments. Sophomore Shane Myers, junior Aaron Aschendorf, and Senior Mike Spencer were among these elite wrestlers. Senior Christina Nance follows through with her serve at #2 singles on the varsity. Christina and Missy Holloway, the team's two seniors, showed leadership and responsibility in their fourth year of tennis.

TENNIS Against the Wind

"The improvement of the team has come mostly from experience. The varsity is all iuniors and seniors and have been playing since freshmen. The team bonded by cheering for each other. Evervone had someone there to tell them good job or to keep their chins up. That helps when the coach cannot be there during a player's match." Joanna Dykhoff, Junior

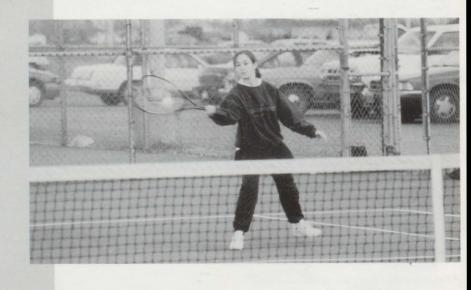

Mother Nature has always left her stormy mark on Indiana during the months of April and May. More times than none, spring in the Hoosier state has not been a pretty picture. Rain, thunderstorms, and wind weather seem to take over and spoil many spring athletic events. As for the girls' tennis team, rain and thunderstorms didn't seem to be the main problem. Monsoon-like gusts, along with high winds altered many of the girls' matches and strategies. "The windy weather can work for you and against you. Playing against the wind, you have to hit the ball harder with more force, but playing with the wind behind you, you have to adjust and hit the ball softer," commented senior Christina Nance.

Despite the harsh winds, the girls adjusted and were also very thankful for the warm, sunny days they received that were few and far between. Along with a new windy season, came new positions for most of the girls on the varsity squad. Junior Tracie Ott occupied the top position in singles competition, while senior Christina Nance enjoyed her new position at #2 singles. Junior Mandy Wilson also won many matches at her new position at #3 singles. In the doubles competition, senior Missy Holloway and junior Michele Crawl moved up to the #1 position, while juniors Sabra Carr and Joanna Dykhoff rounded out the varsity team in their move up from the J.V. Together the girls became united and produced fabulous wins for the team. Their camaraderie was evident in wins versus C.I.C. foe Blackford, Eastern, and Frankton.

The J.V. squad, mostly comprised of underclassmen, also posted many impressive victories for M-G. The squad consisted of Abby Matchette, Jennifer Wilson, and Amanda Osborn, #1, 2, and 3 singles respectively, freshmen Sabrina Saathoff and Brooke Huntzinger at #1 doubles, and freshmen Kendra Barnett, Leanna Huff, and Heather Hanlon rotated at the #2 doubles position. Foreign exchange students Akiyo Amaya and Isabell Siegert also helped out the J.V. team.

With young faces improving and gaining wins for the girls' tennis team, the next couple of seasons look optimistic for the Lady Argylls.

Sophomore Jennifer Wilson concentrates on her backhand technique during her match versus Madison Heights. Since windy weather plagued the girls' tennis team at most of their meets, concentration was very important in order to win.

Freshman Sabrina Saathoff reaches to return a shot at the #1 doubles position on the J.V. Sabrina, along with classmate Brooke Huntzinger defeated many opponents and led the J.V. to many tough victories.

Akiyo Amaya, foreign exchange student from Japan, serves in a match versus Southwood. Akiyo, along with her doubles partner, Isabell Seigert of Germany, enjoyed their tennis experience in the United States while also making a lot of new friends.

Eyeing the ball as it hits her racquet, junior Sabra Carr uses her forehand to stun her Madison Heights opponents. The Pirates defeated the Lady Argylls 5-0 in the second meet of the season.

Exhausted after running the 3,200 meter run, sophomore Brady Barnes raises his hands as he crosses the finish line. Running eight laps around the track can tire the runner fast, so intense workouts during practices help the athletes gain endurance.

Gliding through the air and over a hurdle, junior Yuki Ito swiftly runs the 300 meter low hurdle race. The 300 hurdles were very tricky to run for the athletes because the race combined hurdles as well as middle-distance running.

TRACK

Running to Victory

"My role as a freshman on the track team is no differnt than anyone else's role. I basically have to do my best at every event I do, to pick up points for the team. I hope to improve myself for the years to come so I can become more successful."

Jenny Dickey, Freshman The boys track team had a season full of victories, injuries, and downfalls. The boys ran through 40ugh weather, such as rough winds and rain, but they also had several great moments with winning.

As far as records go, the sprinters had the best season, especially senior Scott Stookey. Scott had record setting times of 10.9 seconds in the 100 meter dash, and 22.9 seconds in the 200 meter dash. Another top sprinter was a move-in from Logansport, sophomore Mitch Pelly. "I really enjoyed running with the Argylls this season. I'm glad I could come to M-G and be accepted by my teammates and help out with the team, " commented Mitch.

The distance runners had a lot of tough competition. Junior Brett Hamilton and sophomore Brady Barnes were the top distance runners, both running the 800, 1600, and 3,200 relay. Seniors Aaron Whirl and Kyle Elsworth also ran swiftly to help the team immensely.

In the field events, sophomore Jeremy Freel and senior Shawn Waymire proved to be successful in the shot put and discus, and senior Mike Spencer jumped to great heights in the high jump. Junior James Martin was the lone brave soul to have been the only pole vaulter.

The team placed a close second in the Grant Four and the Oak Hill Relays be hind Oak Hill and Peru respectively. The most outstanding victories of the season were winning the Pendleton Heights Invitational overcoming ten other teams. The Argylls also tied for first with Peru at the Southwood Relays. This win was a tough success due to Peru being one of the state's top teams.

The girls track team truly dominated nearly all of their opponents. They ran against every regular season opponent with a victory, finishing with a record of 9-0 in dual and triangular meets. Seniors Amber Heiny, Dawn Presley, and Angie McCord led the team during the season. Amber dominated many sprint races, while Dawn placed first many times in the shot put and discus. Angie came through with strong performances in the middle distance events and broke the school record in the 800 meter run.

The team tied for first with the Oak Hill Lady Golden Eagles in the Grant Four and looked to do well in the tough C.I. C. at Elwood, and the Sectional at Nortwestern.

Junior Britany Meyer jumps over the high jump bar with plenty of room to spare. Field events were very important to the girls' track team because they accumulated many useful points and decided many close meets.

Successfully winning another race with ease, senior star sprinter Scott Stookey runs by his Alexandria and Frankton opponents. Scott was the key factor in placing first in large meets such as the Southwood Relays and the Pendleton Heights Inv.

Handing off the baton to senior Scott Stookey, sophomore Mitch Pelly finishes his leg of the 4x400 meter relay. Mitch, a move-in from Logansport, helped the team greatly in the sprint category and scored many points. Varsity team member, junior Ryan Williams, keeps a close eye on the ball after carefully swinging his club with precision and grace.

Senior Chad Burton ponders his method for putting the ball while hoping the outcome will prove successful.

GOLF Hole in One

"Golf is a tough sport, sometimes you win, sometimes you lose."

Andy Maine Senior Fore! The season has started and gone. The golf team had a better season this year than most. After only eight meets the team tied last year's record. The reason for the improvement from last year was the fact that the team did not lose very many players.

"The fact that the varsity has played together more than one year has helped the team this year," said junior Ryan Williams.

Starting the golf season in the spring meant that the players had warm and cold weather. Over the entire season, the golf team had okay weather. A few of the meets had to be rescheduled.

"The trip to the meets was one of funnest parts of golf," said senior Chad Burton.

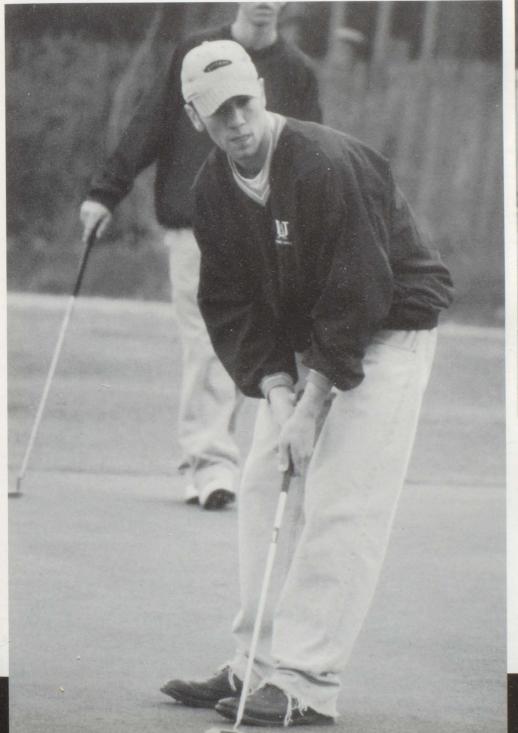

"Playing players who I have played in the past was a lot of fun," added Ryan Williams.

"I may not be a Tiger Woods, but I still try to improve and havea maximum amount of fun while I am playing golf," said senior Tim Earnest. Even though the team did not win every meet, the team still improved a lot from the past years.

Sophomore pitcher Lindsey Walker really puts all of her might into throwing a beautiful strike. Walker pitched an almost perfect season, to lead the Lady Argylls defensively over many teams.

Showing that she can be successful in more than one position, junior Crissy Vetor pitches the ball in with speed and precision. Vetor did an excellent job pitching, while also leading her team in hitting.

Softball

The Thrill of Victory

"Not every player gets a million chances to prove that you are the best for the iob. but I have realized over the many years that the one chance you get can mean a lot, so you should jump at the chance and give it all you've got.

Megan Diskey Junior Though many people had lost faith in the small Argyll softball team, the girls came out to prove that the winning tradition continued. Trying to get an early start on the season, by doing extra hitting at the batting cage, the Lady Argylls moved a big step ahead.

"Our practices started to pick up when we became three and zero in the conference. It was like we were not going to let this conference go right through our hands," said junior Brooke Justus.

Every time the girls stepped onto the field they knew that it was "ball time" and time to get the job done. Specializing in their good defense, the Argylls always gave their opponents a run for their money. With sophomore Lindsey Walker heading the pitching staff and junior Crissy Vetor for relief, the two of them gave it all they had to help the team immensely.

"Every time I step onto the ball field I think about winning, never losing, because I know I have a goal to reach," explained junior Crissy Vetor. Every player realized that she had a goal to reach and that is just what they did.

Madison-Grant's junior varsity suffered a setback when pitcher junior Heather Blaisdell moved out of the school district. The J.V. Lady Argylls were undefeated with Heather pitching.

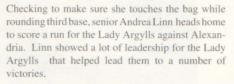

"We have been working with some freshmen to pitch, but it won't be the same," said Coach Amy Hoppes. The three who practiced pitching were freshmen Beth Barnes, Bridget Jones, and Jessica Howard.

"I think it will be hard getting used to, but it will work out in the long run," said freshman Jonni Parks. Jonni was the J.V. pitcher.

The Lady Argylls started their season off really well with a win over rival Eastbrook Panthers, then more wins against Northwestern, Alexandria, and Wes Del.

"Our team did a lot better than everyone expected; we did real well," commented Bridget Jones.

-by Megan Diskey, Lindsey Walker, and Gwyn Musick

During a home game versus Oak Hill, senior Dawn Presley gets down and ready to watch the third base coach Danny Justus' signals. The Argylls defeated Oak Hill 13-1, with great defensive help from Presley.

Getting her hands to the ball and hitting the ball out in front are key factors for senior Amber Shively as she hits the ball. Shively's hitting improved and the coaches had a lot of confidence in her not only in the field, but also at bat. Getting some advice from coach Carl Guarneri, junior Beau Engle gets ready for his turn at bat. Mental preparation was an important part of each game.

"Since this was the first time I played baseball since my freshman year, I felt as though I didn't belong on the baseball diamond. But after a couple of games, I adusted and everything.

> Kyle Young, Senior

Craig Holloway spins off a pitch as he throws a curve ball to psych out the batter. Curves were often used to confuse the opposing team.

Safely sliding head first into third base, junior Josh Tobey proves that baseball is not a clean and neat game. Sliding and base running were practiced quite frequently and earned many stolen bases for the Argylls.

BASEBALL Hit and Run

"Good things come to those who work hard and never give up." Coming from baseball coach Carl Guanerri after each game, these words of inspiration became the baseball team's motto in the midst of winning times as well as losing.

Under the reign of the second year coach, Carl Guanerri, the Argyll players improved from last season as coach advanced right along with his team.

Junior Aaron Eden commented, "I think the team is better this year, because we've matured and gained experience from past years."

With improved pitching and hitting skills, the team improved greatly as a whole, while outstanding players led the pack. Both achieving home runs throughout the season, junior Josh Tobey and senior Todd Rudy led the attack proving to be the top guns on the plate. Josh Tobey seemed to be part of the reason team members kept their heads held high.

"He's good at keeping people straight with what they need to do," said senior Kyle Beckley.

"He puts a lot of time and effort into baseball and he's a real leader on the field," explained Eden.

Freshman rookie Curt Haisley played solid ball for his first season, and Junior Nick Roth continued his productive pitching career despite his going the first of the season with an injury.

Sophomore Craig Holloway turned some heads this season with his curveball and balanced attack. "I think our pitching was great this year," he commented. "It pulled up through all season."

The Argylls stuck together with good play in the Grant Four and the sectional this year. "We had the sectional in mind all season," Senior Sean Monahan stated. "The team played great this year," he added. "I was glad to be a part of this team."

CHEERLEADING

Soaring High

"Our squad became really close. We spent a lot of hard hours working with each other. We had fun times and got to know each other really well. Once we saw what we could accomplish together, we began to reach goals we set for ourselves in the summer."

> Jodi Staggs, Junior

Most students' idea of a good time would not involve being at school at six a.m. to practice chants and cheers. But for a group of dedicated high school cheerleaders, two times a week this was a familiar task.

Along with learning chants to keep the crowds on their feet and cheers to boost team spirit, cheerleaders put in many hours of difficult training. New starting line-up stunts were made. Dances and routines took two to four practices to master. Though it may appear easy when a young cheerleader is tossed fifteen feet into the air, basket tosses and other dangerous stunts take patience and dedication to achieve. These stunts made Argyll cheerleaders stand out from other squads, making M-G a very competitive squad at many competitions.

Sophomore J.V. cheerleader Gwyn Musick commented, "We worked really hard on our stunts. It takes a lot of trust in the bases to catch you when you come down, and a lot of work to remember all that you have to do each time over and over."

The cheerleaders spent a week over the summer perfecting their abilities while attending cheer camp at Wright State University in Ohio. During this summer camp, many of the squad members tried out to become a UCA All-American Cheerleader. While only a small percentage of girls were chosen for this honor, M-G was proud to have two All-Americans. Senior Renee Smith and junior Amy Record were rated among the nation's best cheerleaders. "I think being chosen as an All-American is an important personal achievement. Some may not see the importance, but cheerleading is such a difficult sport to gain individual acknowledgement," stated senior Renee Smith.

Another organization made available to the students to participate in this year to boost school spirit was Pep Club. With 150 members, the Pep Club attended football and basketball games together, and cheered with the other students and cheerleaders in support of their athletic teams. Elected officers were: Co-Presidents Rob Wence and Kyle Hamilton, Vice President Karmen McCoy, Treasurer Tina George, and Secretary Amber Shively. Pep Club participated in cheering at the basketball Sectional in March and met one time per month for meetings during activity period to discuss upcoming events.

-academics-The Winner's Circle

Students who stand out appear in many different areas. With such a broad variety of academics to participate in during high school, students with different talents and interests each get a chance to be in the spotlight.

Two units of learning, one a year old and the other new, were studied this year in order to enhance the students' understanding of concepts in addition to those addressed in the traditional classroom setting.

The Holocaust Unit, prepared by the faculty and Assistant Principal Miss Goodman, made strong impressions on many of the students in one short week. The week began for students with acquiring a new identity. The Holocaust Museum in Washington, D.C., provided enough identification cards representing real people who suffered in concentration camps, for each student to wear throughout the week. Once entering the camp assigned to them, students experienced a few of the feelings that real prisoners may have had while learning about the survivors and tragedies that occurred during the Holocaust.

The Career Unit included a day dedicated to provide students with information on a popular and common college for Madison-Grant students to attend. Sophomores spent a week learning about area colleges, career opportunities that would fit their personal interests, and a day touring Ball State University, located in Muncie, Indiana. Sophomores received a professional tour, lunch in the Ball State Student Center, and a symposium featuring former Madison-Grant students who are now attending Ball State University.

In the past few years, the United States, along with most of the world, entered the world of technology. Madison-Grant was no exception. The school purchased computers with internet access in almost every room, giving students access to information on any topic imaginable, from sports to history to homework tips.

With the many courses and opportunities offered to students, each individual had a chance in his own personal winner's circle, no matter what area of personal interest each may have excelled in.

Foreign exchange students notice

Academic team member, foreign exchange student Danny Hansen, searches for the correct answer, while pondering what he will say during a quiz bowl.

Distinct Differences

As a foreign exchange student, one would think that all the environment around oneself would be strange, mysterious and different. Madison-Grant was fortunate enough to have four foreign exchage students from different parts of the world: Isabell Siegert from Germany, Danny Hansen from Sweden, Akiyo Amaya from Japan, and Kenneth Karkov from Denmark. Kenneth was unable to stay at Madison-Grant the whole year, but for the rest they stayed the whole school year.

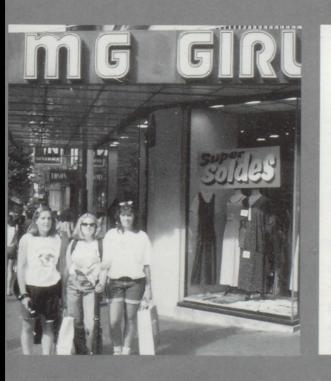

The schools that the exchange students went to in their home country and the schools here in America have some very distinct differences. First in most other countries sports are not a part of the school. The schools are only for academics and that is all. Danny said, "In Sweden we have more of the core classes. We don't have as many choices as here in America, but our classes are much harder academically. Our school isn't as strict, but a lot more is expected out of the students."

For Isabell school was much different too. "Oh, school's a lot of fun here. It is a new experience. I get to meet a lot of new people and make a lot of new friends." Isabell also thought that the teachers were a lot friendlier and personal. She thought it was very nice that the teachers would stay after school and help the students if they needed it, although she felt it was much easier here than in Germany. "It's a lot easier here academically, but what's neat is that students have so many opportunities to take specialized classes," Isabell said.

The experience for an exchange student to come to a new country is very exciting, but being away from home for so long can play on the student's emotions.

Akiyo said, "I miss my family, friends, and especially my dog." Even though the exchange students got homesick and missed so many things about their country, America will always hold a special place in their hearts.

For most athletes at M-G, their high school sports career does not consist of leaving Indiana or even leaving the country. But for senior Amber Heiny and juniors Crissy Vetor and Amanda Dunlap, traveling to Belgium to play basketball was the highlight of their summer.

After receiving a letter in the mail from Sports Challenge and attending an informational meeting in Indianapolis, all they had to do was raise $2,500 each and they were on their way.

"While shopping in Paris, we saw the actor Jaleel White, who plays the role of Steve Urkle on the TV show Family Matters. One of my teammates got lost in downtown Paris, while I shopped for two hours and spent all of my money. While touring along the Seine River, I saw people laying out on the concrete naked. All together I had a fun trip," explained junior Crissy Vetor.

The three girls agreed that the only bad thing about the trip was the food. "Amber, Crissy, and I starved ourselves for a week. We would eat apples and oranges for breakfast and lunch. We hardly ate dinner, and we drank water the whole time," Amanda Dunlap added.

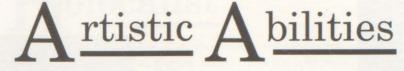

the perfect hue of color in her watercolor masterpiece. Students learned to bring out their artistic abilities in painting, stained glass, and printmaking.

Freshman Zachary Wright uses fine detail and an enormous amount of concentration as he creates an original drafting design. The students in Mr. Summer's drafting classes enjoy learning about the vast architectual field.

Student artists display their creativity and

From painting to dancing, writing to acting, ceramics to music. These are just a few activities student artists were involved in at Madison-Grant. What makes a good artist? Deidre Willsey explained, "I don't think that there is any boundary between what makes an artist good or bad, as long as they use their imagination, and their work is original."

Art was an important part of many students' lives. It helped students vent their frustrations. Whether it was stress from school work or even arguments with friends or family, many students found art as a big help in escaping from their daily problems. "Painting helps me to get away from feelings of pressure, and when things get to be too much for me, I can escape to my own little world and bring my feelings out into the open," explained Amanda Cash.

Madison-Grant has many different areas of art, such as the drama club, band, different types of choir classes, painting, drawing, ceramics, computer art, industrial arts, and though most students don't think of it, even English class. Creative writing is an area of art that few students can master. Students such as Senior Justin Saathoff, sophomore Annie Painter, and juniors Aaron Ashendorf and Jennifer Wright were just a few students who seem to have a real knack for the art. "I really enjoy writing articles for the yearbook and creating essays. I've entered a few writing contests as well, and I find that writing is a great way to express myself," commented junior Jennifer Wright.

Another student writer was senior Ryan Dailey who had a poem published in The National Anthology of American Poets.

Though M-G has many different areas of art, some students prefer to practice their favorite forms outside of school. One such students is junior Maia Dickerson who enjoys dancing. Maia explained, "I like dance because it gives me something to focus on other than my problems."

Art is important for many people. It is used for communication, to beautify surroundings, and for entertainment. Mrs. McConnell said, "Anyone that produces artwork is a student artist." Madison-Grant certainly has many gifted students who can perform, express, and create wonderful forms of art.

Most students in band love to play music, some more than others. Those who put all their heart into it produce a wonderful talent and become very skilled. Some of these students go on to become some of the best players and are recognized often by others. Seniors Brian Richards and Deanna Lamb were two such students. They were chosen to go to Europe with Mr. Lamb this past summer.

"I thought it would be exciting to see all the different countries and how the people lived and how they are different from people here," said Brian.

From June 16 to July 2, hundreds of students and teachers from around the nation went to Europe to unite together into a band made of some of the best players from high schools and colleges. During their European adventures, they visited places such as London, Paris, Montreux, Venice, Hansburg, and Rothenburg. They also visited the Swiss Alps and the Dachau concentration camp. "I thought it would be a good opportunity to take the kids to Europe. It was a good musical experience and learning experience to see other parts of the world. It was a good opportunity for all of us," said Mr. Lamb.

Students realize the experiences of the

Horrifying Holocaust

Branded with ID tags. Given a new identity. Removal of all personal items. Herded like cattle into concentration camps by stern military guards with booming voices and loud German accents. This was a surprising and meaningful way to begin the last week before the second semester of the school year.

It was a school week dedicated in its entirety to remembrance of human torture, suffering, cruelty, and death. Students were given the chance to not only learn about the Holocaust, but to experience in some small form what the real feelings may have been.

"It was something different to do, and it taught me a lot about what Jews went through, and it made me think of what it would be like if it actually happened to me. There's a difference between hearing about it and actually experiencing it," explained junior Amanda Cash.

Holocaust week began with students receiving new identities. Being divided into separate concentration camps and herded into order like cattle gave students only a grim perspective of what Jewishprisoners may have felt fifty-five years ago. Once in the camps, student prisoners were divided males from females against separate walls. In a loud, stern German accent students heard instructions to step forward when their name was called. Each had to report individually to receive his identification card. After the student prisoner received his card he was ordered to remove his shoes and place them into the center pile. The removal of shoes symbolized the removal of all possessions experienced by the actual Jews during the Holocaust.

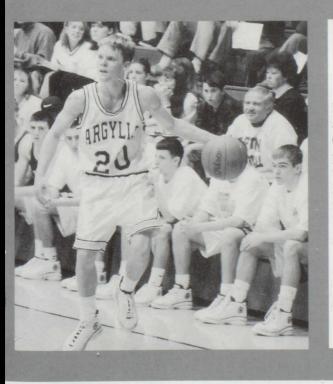

Students were ordered to remain standing at all times. After the process was completed, guards, played by teachers, then singled out individual students to read passages and poems. The poems were written by actual Holocaust survivors and described different aspects of the Holocaust and camp life. Then, at least mentally, students were stripped of all clothing, heads shaved, all freedoms removed. At the end of the session, a loud German voice was heard blaring from school intercoms. The translation was given-all blondes with blue eyes were dismissed to attend lunch. Soon after, other prisoners were released as well. A lunch of soup, bread, crackers, and milk was served; all other choices were taken away.

The camps then moved to the auditorium where students watched a performance of the play, I Never Saw Another Butterfly, put on by their peers in the drama club. "I really liked the whole thing. It was a really neat experience, and I learned a lot more about the Holocaust than I knew before," commented junior Cara Hussey.

Another feature of the week was a guest speaker, Susan Weintrob, an instructor from Ball State University, who gave an enlightening and informative speech about the Holocaust, followed by a question/answer session. A documentary film, Auschwitz, If You Cried, You Died, was also shown in the auditorium.

Even though the week was cut short because of bad weather, students still had a fewdays of learning, experience, and participation where they gained a new appreciation for freedom, and a new awareness concerning prejudice and stereotyping today. Assistant Principal Miss Goodman explained, "The part that we did get through was excellent. We wanted to tie the Holoaust to everyday life."

Even though the 1995-1996 boys' basketball season ended in a nail-biting loss to the nationally ranked Kokomo Wildkats in the regional finals, performances such as this qualified the Madison-Grant Argylls for the 1996 Hall of Fame Classic at New Castle High School's Chrysler Fieldhouse. The honor of participating in the prestigious holiday tournament was overhelming to th Argylls, as they placed a strong third in the Classic. The Argylls were joind by the Anderson Indians, the Dekalb Barons, and the Batesville Bulldogs which were all ranked in the top 15 of Indiana. The Argylls were defeated in their semi-final match-up by Batesville 59-43, but went on to beat a strong number five Dekalb squad 67-59 to grasp third place.

The Argylls' strong performance in the tournament made some noise around Indiana, proving that smaller schools can compete with the larger schools. "Getting a win out of this tournament was just icing on the cake for us," commented coach Terry Martin. "Had we lost both of these ball games, we'd still have had a great day. We played two great ball clubs and some great individuals."

The walking tour of Ball State's campus included a tour of the new University Arena. The sophomores were able to walk on the floor of the arena, which is the home of many BSU Cardinal athletics.

Enjoying personal pepperoni pan pizzas from Pizza Hut, sophomores Damon Stansberry and Amy Bess take advantage of Ball State's food court located in the student center.

Sophomores thoroughly study and discuss

Selecting a college or university is an important and sometimes confusing process. The choice students make will determine their homes for four years, help shape their futures, and foster the development of friendships.

The entire sophomore class went to Ball State University, in Muncie, Thursday, November 14. The day consisted of a campus walking tour, led by Ball State students, a general admissions information session about the four and two year degrees, a lunch break, a talk focusing on the importance of a liberal arts education, and a student forum presented by former Madison-Grant High School graduates.

The walking tour allowed students to visit dorm facilities, the new arena complex, and the four-story library in addition to becoming acquainted with the location of the other major buildings on campus.

In the presentations on four year and two year programs, the students split up, and the presenters talked about what the admission's staff looks for in high school students who are interested in attending Ball State. They told the M-G students what high school classes to take, the tests necessary for college entrance, and the importance of participating in extracurricular activities.

During lunch, all of the students ate at the food court in the student center where they could choose from: Pizza Hut, Taco Bell, Baskin-Robbins, and Charlie's Grill. After lunch everyone had the opportunity to check out the Ball State Bookstore, bowl, play pool, or play video games.

After the lunch break, everyone headed back to Cardinal Hall where professor John Barber, who teaches history at BSU, talked to the group about how important all classes are in the development of a person. "He was so funny and made you feel at home," said sophomore Beth Stephenson.

To end the college day at Ball State, the sophomores were reunited with some former M-G alumni. The former M-G students were freshman Rob Helfen who is in Ball State's prestigious architectural program and sophomore Scott Stevens, who is occupied with his major in biology/pre-med. They were also joined by junior Jaime Thompson, majoring in physical therapy, junior Doug Pack, preparing for the insurance business, and senior Jim Babcock, who will graduate this spring with a degree in accounting. All of these former M-G students shared with the class of 1999 about college life. They stressed the importance of time management and learning study skills in high school. Jake Savage commented, "I think this session was beneficial because they are actually in the situation, and you take it more seriously coming from people you know."

Traveling to foreign countries and playing basketball have always been among senior Dawn Presley's interests. When she had the chance to do both last summer, she jumped at the chance to travel the world. Dawn was one of the few area basketball players selected to go to Australia and play ball with teams from around the world.

Dawn stayed with eight different families on her trip. Each family took in one or more persons from her team. Her daily schedule was very hectic and she spent many hours on a bus traveling to the next playing site. She visited Sydney, the site of the 2000 Olympic Games, but spent most of her time in the province of Queensland. Along the way, Dawn encountered many beautiful sites and views of the Australian countryside. Some of the most memorable to her were the rain forests and the Great Barrier Reef. "The water is so clear all of the way to the bottom of the sea floor, and the tropical fish were very beautiful," commented Dawn. After Australia, Dawn's group traveled to Hawaii for their own enjoyment. She was able to work on her summer tan by soaking up the sun on some of the world's most famous beaches.

Beneficial Basics

Preparing a student for college, teaching the basics, helping a student in his area of career interest, or learning to understand a specific subject better, can all be part of the mechanics of a valuable class. Every class is valuable for an education, but there were some classes that students felt were most valuable in their eyes.

The basic courses--English, math, and science--were the most valuable to the students. Above all, English class overruled the other courses. "I think that English class is the most valuable class," senior Kyle Runyan said. "It will help you write reports and research papers in college." English class was not only most valuable to many M-G students for college purposes, but also for learning to understand literature, writing, and learning basic reading and speaking techniques.

Students did not only need English classes to help them in the future, but also math and science were both considered valuable. "I would say the most valuable class to have is math class," junior Josh Tobey said. "Math is something that everyone needs to know how to do in order for them to have a successful future." The future of the students played a large role in deciding which class was the most valuable to them.

"I would have to say chemistry is the most valuable class to me," explained sophomore Casey Clevenger. "I am going into the medical field so chemical information will be valuable to me."

No matter what the reason was, the basic classes outscored the elective and history classes in the popular vote. All classes are valuable, but there were many favorites among the student body.

"Just think of it as another game," Coach Zgunda explained. As much as the football players tried to think about the game against Wabash as just another game, the more nervous they became. They knew that the next day they were going to play at the home of the Colts, the RCA Dome in Indianapolis.

"I was nervous before the game, but once the game started I settled down," senior linebacker Josh Johnson said. The Argylls played an extraordinary game beating Wabash 47-0 despite the nerve racking conditions.

The Argylls scored seven times on the Wabash defense. Eric Sites lead the way with two rushing touchdowns. Todd Rudy, Ben Caudell, and Dallas Coleman each caught touchdown passes from Engle. Aaron Eden picked up a fumble and ran 53 yards for a score, and on the last play of the game Rodney Webb scored from 35 yards away.

It wan't only a great game for the Argylls, but it was also a great game for the family, fans, and spectators.

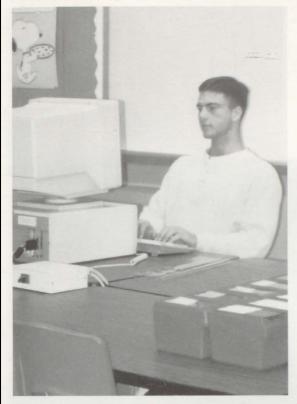

"It was exciting to see my friends playing on the same field as a professional football team," sophomore Brad Manning said. It was a day of firsts for Mr. Wayne Davis, our Athletic Director. He got to announce the game for the Argylls. "It was a great experience. I had the best seat in the house, and the audio made me sound good," said Mr. Davis.

DOS, Microsoft, Netscape, Yahoo!, cyber space, and Windows. Years ago any common person would be bewildered by these so-called "technical" terms. But today, with fast growing "cyber" technology lurking all around our every day world, most students are very aware of the power of the computer.

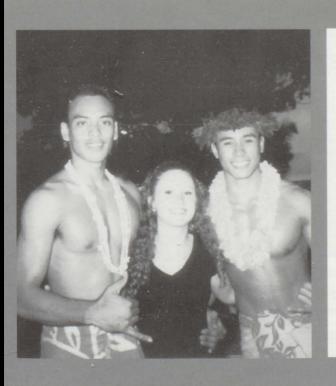

omputer ourses

The popularity of computers has increased dramatically over the past decade. In the late '70's and through the '80's, Apple was the choice in computer companies for M-G, but with computer wizards gaining useful knowledge every single day, the school's antiquated Apple computers have been replaced. Today, Gateway, IBM, and Saturn computers compromise most of M-G's computer system.

More and more every day, computers have become an important part of each and evey student's life at M-G. There are many classes offered that are centered totally around computers. Business Computer Literacy (BCL), Business Computer Applications (BCA), and Computer Art all incorporate computers into daily tasks. BCL and BCA are classes that teach the fundamentals and applications of the computer world, while Computer Art allows students to use the computers creatively and artistically by certain fantastic print-outs and posters. Computers are also important to drafting students in the Industrial Technology department, and to college-prep English students who type many stressful research papers and essays. "When students learn about the computer in a classroom situation, it carries through their work and life," commented computer art teacher Mrs. McConnell.

The technology of today is very vast and fascinating, but the computer world will keep growing as time progresses. One day students may even take college courses at home or may even be able to visit far-off galaxies by striking the keys of the ever-changing computer.

Most everyone would love a chance to go off to a tropical island with wonderful weather and warm sun during the grueling months of winter, though few ever get the chance. One of these few people was Amy Record who was picked, because of her great cheerleading talent, to travel to Hawaii and cheer in the Aloha Bowl on Christmas Day.

Amy spent a week of touring, shopping, and lying on the lush Hawaiian beaches of Oahu. However, the week was not just fun in the sun. "At first we practiced once a day for four hours at a time, but towards the end we practiced in the morning for four hours and six hours in the evening," explained Amy of the experience.

Amy was picked along with 477 of top high school cheerleaders in the U.S. "I wasn't really intimidated by anyone there because we were all in the same boat, and I got picked for the same reason as everyone else," commented Amy.

When game day arrived Amy cheered in front of a packed stadium at the University of Hawaii. "It was kind of nerve-racking, but it was more fun because I like a big crowd, plus I was only one person out of 477 people cheering and I wasn't really worried about being noticed."

Working intently on her trigonometry homework, senior Janet Babcock takes time to do her best.

When one is in extracurricular activities, it is very hard to find time to do everything. Whether it was a sport, a job, or even just keeping up with homework, organizing time and keeping priorities straight were major challenges for M-G students this year.

"It was really difficult to keep grades up all year. It took a lot of time outside of class and keeping everything organized for the most part," said sophomore Annie Painter.

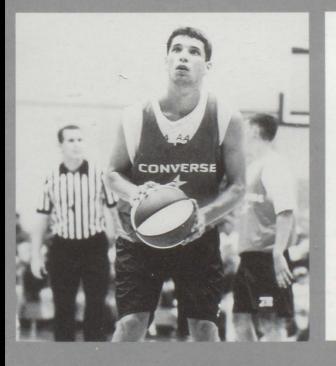

But not everyone had a lot of time outside of school. Sophomore Wendy Stephenson said, "I have a job that takes a lot of my time. It's really hard to get all of my homework done."

Other than jobs, sports also took up much time. Staying after school almost every day for practice and having games or meets in the evenings was pretty tough. Sophomore Chris Caudell said, "I'm in sports, and when I get home from a rough practice, the last thing I want to do is come home and work on homework. I usually just go home and rest and forget about my homework."

Some people were in an activity outside of school such as dance, gymnastics or maybe going to the gym to work out. Sophomore Jennifer Wilson said, "I go to the gym several times a week, but I just organize my time, and I seem to get most things done. Making lists seems to really help me out."

Although free time was especially hard to come by, students still managed to have a lot of fun. Between jobs, homework, sports, and countless other activities, this year was definitely one to remember.

With the fine performances of his sophomore and junior seasons, state standout Kyle Runyan made M-G proud by being selected to the Junior Indiana All-Star team. Runyan was the first to even be chosen from M-G to participate in this outstanding privilege of playing the Indiana Senior All-Stars.

Runyan joined the state's top players in two games last summer at Huntington North and Alexandria High Schools. His opponents included Mr. Basketball Kevin Ault of Warsaw and Mickey Hosier and Chris Hahn of Alexandria.

Runyan started and posted a Junior All-Star team high of 18 points, eight rebounds, and two assists at the Huntington North game. Despite the juniors' 101-69 loss to the seniors, Kyle still had a lot to be proud of. "I don't know if I have anything to prove to anybody, but I just wanted to play well. I know there are always scouts out there watching, but that didn't come into my mind," said Runyan.

And, yes, there have been many Division I scouts looking at Runyan. Northwestern, Loyola, Valparaiso, Ball State, Evansville, and none other than Indiana University and Bob Knight, himself have very seriously recruited him for his outstanding basketball talents.

Junior Lori Carey works hard to keep up her good grades as she works on a project for her Spanish III class. Her Spanish book was one of many books Lori toted home nightly in order to maintain her high grade point average.

Freshman Kevin Cline thinks good and hard about the question thrown at him during one of the Academic Team's many meets.

Most students liked to make the grades and most did, but a lot of the time they only did what they had to do in order to pass. They didn't like to study; they liked to go out and have fun. But there were some people who pushed themselves a little more and dedicated themselves to the task that was ahead of them. These were the M-G honor roll students.

When students got home from school, they liked to take time off and relax from the school day or go out and have some fun. Not most of the students did their homework as soon as they stepped in the door. They liked to have a social life too. But most honor roll students did do their homework as soon as they got home. How did they maintain the grades and a social life at the same time? Junior Lori Carey jokingly replied, "I don't have a life! But seriously, I try to stay organized, set priorities, and do what I feel is important first."

Freshman Kevin Cline commented, "I don't like to study, but I do anyway. I get a lot of work done in class, so I can have more free time. When I do have homework, I do it as soon as I get home."

"I usually do my homework when I get home so it's fresh in my mind. I find it more difficult to remember things when I wait until later," said sophomore Annie Painter.

If one made the honor roll, it made that person feel good about himself. But most honor roll students needed a little persuasion and the desire to push themselves. "It makes me feel proud to be on the honor roll and to know that my hard work has paid off in this way," said Kevin. "I want to get a scholarship for college, so I don't have to spend as much money."

"I understand that getting a higher education is the only way out in this world and the only real way to earn a living," added Annie.

Senior Isabell Seigert, a foreign exchange student from Germany, said, "I love making good grades, and it's not too hard for me over here. When I go back (to Germany), it will be harder because of the class differences, so I have to push myself over here. I'm expected to make good grades by the German Government and my parents."

Advice for the inquiring minds that wanted to know? "Get as much done in class as you can, and don't wait until the last minute to do something," Kevin said.

"Getting organized is the best thing to do for yourself," commented Lori. "Have a set place to sit down and think to do your homework with no interruptions."

Graduating from high school is a major highlight in a teenager's life, but especially for senior Shana Gates. Next fall Shana will be attending Flordia College. She has decided to study nursing.

Shana learned about this college through her church. It was a difficult decision for Shana to decide on this college, but the fact that Flordia College is a Christian school, and it is located in Flordia made the decision a little easier.

With fall approaching, Shana is getting very anxious for her departure. Shana has met many new friends who will be attending Florida College. She met them through church groups and by traveling down to the college over Thanksgiving break.

When Shana was at lunch with most of her friends she said, "I'm really excited about going to F.C., but I'm really going to miss everyone back home."

In the midst of balancing homework, sports, classes, and assignments, somehow most students managed to involve themselves in school clubs, to benefit the school, community, and to gain personal experiences. While clubs met at different rates throughout the year, most of them had a common goal: planning activities to make high school years fun, involved, and produce well rounded students.

Spanish and French clubs gave students a chance to learn about different cultures, experience different languages, and foreign foods.

Students who had a flare for being leaders and teachers, tended to join Bridge Builders or Series. Bridge Builders prepared meaningful skits with valuable lessons, which the students presented to the elementary classes in area schools. Much like Bridge Builders, Series members prepared lessons for young M-G students, teaching them science experiments and providing a strong academic experience. Student council members played strong leadership roles in the school, by listening to the student body's requests and suggestions, and representing them in meetings.

For students with creative talents, Art Club, Yearbook, and Newsletter provided opportunities to express themselves.

A new club introduced to students this year was Chess Club. Open to anyone who was interested in the game, the Chess Club planned to practice among themselves, gaining experience in order to compete in various competitions against other schools or organizations.

Such a variety of school clubs allowed students to express themselves, benefit the school, and gain experiences with friends, while learning leadership and working as a team at the same time.

The Victory Lay

Madison-Grant academics proved once again to be a vital part of our school. M-G scholars didn't always seem to receive as much recognition as athletes, but by earning awards from National Honor Society to the Scholastic Awards, students seemed to finally get a lot of the credit they had deserved.

One of the biggest honors to be named to in high school is to be accepted to the National Honor Society. To even be nominated to the society one must maintain a 3.5 grade point average, but not even all of these people are selected. Students may be accepted as either juniors or seniors and the ceremonies were held on April 3, 1997. Members inducted were seniors Carrie Johnson and Alicia Phillippe, and juniors Brooke Justus, Lori Carey, Josh Tobey, Ryan Williams, Janine Lashure, and Laura Linn.

Held on April 30, 1997, were the Scholastic Awards. This program honored sophomores, juniors, and seniors for holding at least a 3.5 grade point average. Sophomores honored received a gold M-G scholar keychain. Sohomore Katie Runyan stated, "The ceremony was very nice. I think it's great that scholars receive recognition for their hard work."

Juniors honored were presented with a beautiful plaque, and those juniors with at least a 3.75 grade point average also received a patch to put on a letter jacket. Seniors who have a 3.5 gpa after five semesters were presented with a lovely paperweight.

Seniors had their own special night of recgnition on May 21, 1997. On this night seniors shined with pride as many of them proudly accepted scholarships. Underclassmen awards were held on June 3, 1997, the last day of school. Juniors, sophomores, and freshmen received honors from individual class for hard work throughout the year. These students were presented with certificates.

Awards

Students are recognized for their athletic accomplishments with...

Oports

Af Madison-Grant High School, every year students are applauded for outstanding jobs academically and also in extracurricular activities. There were many special sports awards for each season.

For the winter sports, wrestling, boys and girls basketball, all were acknowledged on March 12, 1997. In wrestling, senior Mike Spencer was crowned the most outstanding wrestler award. Senior standout Aaron Whirl also was presented with most takedowns and most pins awards.

In girls basketball, junior Brooke Justus proved her place on the team by winning the hustle award, a picture plaque, and the NBA Sportsmanship Certificate. Both seniors Amber Heiny and Dawn Presley were honored with all-conference medals and honor rings. Heiny was also recognized as M.V.P.

After a very successful season, the boys' basketball team had many recognized players. Senior Kyle Runyan, who will be playing for the Evansville Purple Aces next season, was awarded the Don Rhoads Sportsmanship Award, WLHN Athlete of the Year, free throw percentage, all conference, and Most Valuable Player award. Senior Kyle Elsworth also was awarded an all-conference medal, the assists award, and the NBA Sportsmanship Certificate.

Football, boys tennis, volleyball and girls and boys cross country players were honored in the fall on November 20, 1996. As a first year M-G volleyball player, senior Tina Fonseca was a big asset to the team, proving that by wining the MVP award. For the CIC medals, seniors Tina Fonseca, Amber Shively, and Dawn Presley were all honored.

Coming out and having a successful season was junior Brett Hamilton's goal in cross country. Hamilton won the awards for most improved runner and most valuable runner. Junior Crissy Vetor lead the Lady Argylls and earned the most valuable runner award.

Though not a very successful season, the boys tennis team was led by a respectful leader, junior Ryan Williams. Williams was named most valuable player to the tennis team.

The Argyll football team was created from many tremendous players, but there were many stand-outs. Seniors Kyle Runyan, Shawn Waymire, Kyle Beckley, Ben Caudell, Jim Slate, Todd Rudy, KyleYoung, and junior Max Miller all were honored with the Central Indiana All conference medal.

The Argylls' boys track team celebrates a big win at the Pendlton Heights Invitational. The Argylls defeated ten teams to come out with first place over all.

After a long and frustrating evening at OakHill High School, the LadyArgylls track team takes a second to share their first place victory at Grant Four.

Enjoying the excitement of being on a professional football field, the Madison-Grant cheerleaders take a break from rooting the football team on.

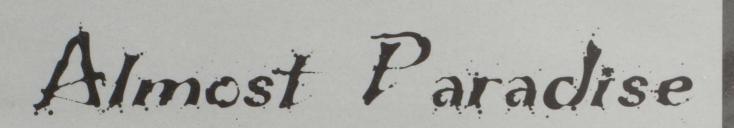

Cutting the net down is a ritual that comes along with the Grant Four title. Argyll coach Martin snips off his piece of the net after his boys defeated Eastbrook to take first place at Grant Four.

The M-G varsity basketball team was honored by being invited to play in the Hall of Fame tournament in New Castle. The above ticket stub was donated to the yearbook by Principal R. Larry Martin.

M-G students discover prom can be . . .

The theme of the prom, "Forever in Paradise," was meant to provide just that, a night of pure paradise and fun for students to enjoy. Held at the elegant Radisson Hotel in Muncie, prom was a wonderful experience for most students attending. Green and gold sparkly palm trees lined the wall. Wine glasses and mugs overflowing with bright blue and gold tinsel were placed on the bright white tables. Balloons, candles, a palm-tree and pineapple ice sculpture, dim lighting, and table decorations were used to set the mood of a tropical paradise at the dance. This year's prom King and Queen were Justin Saathoff and Molly Fix, who were elected by the senior class after nomination by the juniors.

Some big hassles accompanied this night of glamour and fun. Behind the scenes there were decisions to be made and organization to be done weeks, even months before hand. Sophomore Lesli Hussey stated, "Prom was a new experience for me, so it was all very exciting. I just didn't realize how much time it would take to get ready!"

Some people began to encounter problems before they even left home. Junior Crissy Vetor stated, "I bought two pairs of panty hose and they both ripped. After that I was really ticked off." Once students actually arrived at prom however, all of the time and preparation put into the dance seemed well worth it for one night of "Forever in Paradise."

While romantically gazing into each others eyes, seniors Andy Maine and Renee Smith enjoy dancing with one another.

Juniors Sabra Carr and Mandy Wilson joyfully show that prom can be full of smiles and good times.

Juniors Jodi Staggs and Laura Linn clap to the music while watching others dancing out on the floor.

Principal R.Larry Martin is a little nervous about the surprise physical he recieves from Connie the Clown during commencement practice on senior day.

Seniors Janet Babcock, Lee Ayers, and Jenny Beher listen to instructions during commencement practice.

Graduation

Parents and grandparents watched proudly from the stands as the school concert band began to play the familiar sounds of "Pomp and Circumstance." As seniors began the last long-awaited walk down the gym floor wearing the school colors represented in flowing black and gold caps and gowns, they realized through a few sad tears how much the last four years had contributed to their lives.

Late night studying for exams, homework, quizzes, reports, friends, parties, ball games, sports practices, and clubs were common activities that the 109 students who graduated had shared during the past school years. In spite of all the struggles and worries of school, there were many fond memories and good times to reflect on. Senior Tera Southard commented, "It's going to be hard to leave the people that I've been with for the past five or six years. I'll miss seeing all of the familiar faces when I go to college."

When these students began the year as tiny freshmen, most had no idea what the future was to hold in the big world of high school. As they progressed to sophomores with a general idea of teenage life, many began with dreams of what the world may hold in store for them. Upon entering their junior years, students began to form these dreams into possible realities. The senior year held many decisions and tough choices that would affect the rest of their lives, as well as the fond farewell to the school in which they had experienced so much.

In a strict four-year academic competition, two students showed strong dedication and intelligence. Tied for Valedictorian of the 1996-97 Senior class were Angie McCord and Kory Dickerson with grade point averages of exactly 4.0. Though these two students were in constant competition throughout school, both were content with sharing the position of valedictorian. "I feel honored that I can share the position with such an intelligent classmate as Angela. Even though we're in competition, I feel that in the long run that will help me prepare for my future endeavors," commented Kory.

Angie added, "It's been really difficult, but worth all of the effort. There was a lot of pressure not to slip up, but I really think it's neat that Kory and I can share the honor of valedictorian together."

Through many years of struggles and strife, most seniors felt that the effort of so much hard work had paid off on that special day of graduation. Senior Ben Gibson stated, "I'm finally graduating, and I've made a lot of good friends in these past years. I'll really miss playing football the most. We really had a lot of fun as a team." Graduation, the day to wish a final farewell to friends and school. Though friends and the good times of high school only last for a few short years, the memories will last a lifetime.

Articles, photographs, writer's block, and especially deadlines. These are a few of the things dealt with by the mass media classes every day.

The sixth hour Mass Media I class mostly created the newsletter, while the seventh hour Mass Media II class composed the yearbook.

Newsletter editor, senior Nick Durr said, "The newsletter is good for the school because students can express their views on things."

The newsletter staff had a great responsibility to keep the students and faculty informed on the events and problems happening within the school. Editorials gave students a chance to vent frustrations, and poetry sections involved students in artistic writing. Interviewing, writing, designing, and thinking up creative ways to improve the newsletter were tasks the newsletter staff completed.

The yearbook staff's responsibilities were similar to those of the newsletter staff, but the goals of the yearbook staff are more long term. These students work for over a year on the yearbook before they have the satisfaction of seeing their work and designs in print. It takes creativity, writing, photography, design, and computer skills to produce the yearbook.

"Knowing that the yearbook is always going to be a part of the students' memories makes the work all worthwhile," junior yearbook business manager Abby Matchette commented.

On Valentine's Day sophomore Casey Clevenger takes time out of class to sneak a peek at the flowers she received.

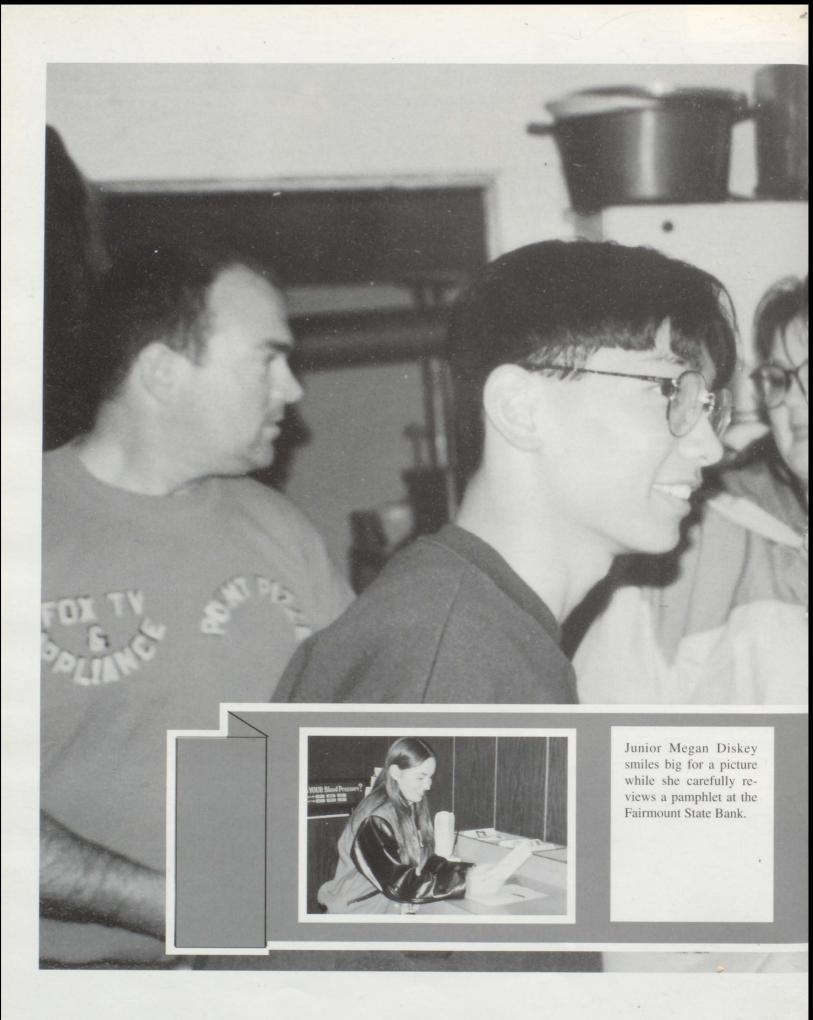

Having fun with the camera, junior Aaron Eden takes a picture before mass media class.

Dazed and confused, junior Megan Diskey silently expresses herself to the class.

A Special Note of Thanks

Producing a yearbook is very expensive and would have been impossible without the help and support of our local business sponsors. The mass media classes put a lot of hard work into the yearbook, work that most people don't realize is necessary unless they have been involved in the production themselves.

The yearbook classes started out the season before school began by traveling to surrounding towns and communities selling ads and collecting money. Once ads were sold, the staff began to put together the spreads. Along with designing spreads, students accomplished the tasks of writing and typing copy and attending school activities and functions to take pictures.

Even with all of the hard work involved in yearbook production, none of the color pages, color photos, or fun artwork and spreads would be possible without the financial support of all our community sponsors. With this in mind, the yearbook staff of 1997 would like to extend our thanks to all businesses and family patrons who made the yearbook production possible.
